Support for Big 4 Summit Meet Grows

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Support grew among lesser members of the United Nations today for a Big Four summit meeting proposed by Secretary-General U Thant in an effort to reduce East-West tensions and lessen the threat of nuclear war.

But there was no immediate reaction from the Big Four—the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France—to Thant's suggestion that their foreign ministers meet during the current U.N. General Assembly to pave the way for the top-level talks.

Thant in his annual report of the assembly Thursday night accused both the United States and the Soviet Union of resorting to strong-arm methods when they felt their security threatened.

Many of the smaller U.N. member countries agreed with these words by Thant:

"In reality, the two super powers hold the master key to peace in the world. Little wars, or wars by little states, can be contained so long as the Super Powers do not pose a threat of the big, the nuclear, the ultimate war.

"In the final analysis, there can be no solid foundation for peace in the world so long as the super powers insist on taking unilateral military action whenever they claim to see a threat to their security."

Enemy Loses 276 Men in Near Suicidal Attacks on 2 Camps

SAIGON (AP) - Enemy forces swarmed out of flooded ricelands close to the Cambodian border today and lost at least 276 of their men in almost suicidal assaults on two well defended South Vietnamese frontier camps.

The two attacking forces totaled about 900 men, and in addition to nearly a third of their men, they left large numbers of rifles, machine guns, grenade launchers, radios and other equipment on the fields of battle.

The defenders reported 11 South Vietnamese killed and 100 wounded. Four American Green Beret men in one of the camps were wounded.

Coinciding with the fierce ground assaults on the camps at Thien Ngon and Phuoc Tan, west of Tay Ninh City, enemy gunners laid a savage barrage of rocket and mortar fire on the Special Forces camp at Katum, north of the provincial capital, which was the target of an attack Wednesday in which 135 of the enemy were killed.

The attacks in Tay Ninh Province and intelligence reports of other enemy forces maneuvering in the area brought massive B52 strikes. Of 10 raids by the big bombers in the past 24 hours, nine went into Tay Ninh Province and some 800 tons of bombs fell on the principal infiltration route toward Saigon, 70 miles to the southeast.

While Tay Ninh Province was the scene of the heaviest action, U.S. headquarters reported more fighting in the northern provinces and three helicopters and a U.S. Marine jet were shot down there. Four of the helicopter crewmen and two Marine fliers were killed, and two helicopter crewmen were wounded.

The loss of the three helicopters brought to 11 the number of choppers shot down in the past week in South Vietnam.

The Marine jet and two of the choppers were downed Thursday in support of U.S. Americal Division troops who along with fighter-bombers, gunships and artillery killed 388 North Vietnamese regulars in a three-day running battle on the coastal lowlands of Quanyg Tin province.

Since the end of a two-month lull in the fighting in August, almost all significant combat has been in the northern provinces around Saigon and in the infiltration corridor northwest of the capital.

The frontal assaults on fortified camps along the border may be an enemy attempt to draw South Vietnamese and American forces away from Tay Ninh City and Saigon.

South Vietnamese headquarters estimated that about 600 men hit the Thien Ngon Special Forces camp, which was defended by South Vietnamese irregulars and about 12 American Green Beret advisers, and that another 300 hit the Phuoc Tan camp, which was garrisoned by local militiamen and an airborne unit that had recently moved in.

The camp at Phuoc Tan withstood similar ground and rocket attacks last Thursday and Friday in which 173 of the enemy and 14 defenders were killed.

Car Strikes Cow, Four Injured

Four were injured in a single car accident Thursday at 9:05 p.m. on route 153, and one-half miles south of Hunterville.

A 1965 Oldsmobile, driven by Violetta Lane, 48, route one, Essex, struck one of a herd of Black Angus cattle.

The Lane car came up on a herd of seven or eight of the animals that had broken through a fence.

A vehicle ahead struck and injured one and went on. The Lane car struck a second animal.

It was reported by the patrol that five of the animals had to be killed. The animals were owned by Sonny Merritt and Ladell Norman, Essex route one.

Injured were Mrs. Lane with cuts and bruises on the face; three passengers all of route one, Essex, were injured - Robert Lane, 50, cuts on his face and lip; Arthur Russell, 52, possible broken nose; and Esther Russell, severe cuts on her head.

All were treated at the Dexter Memorial hospital.

Floyd Nichols, 40, Parma, received a back and neck injury in a two-car accident today at 7:55 a.m., on highway 25, at the north edge of Malden.

He was driving a 1966 Chevrolet, when he stopped for a school bus, and was struck from behind by a 1965 GMC truck, driven by Norman Oxley, 44, Malden.

Nichols was treated at Croom's clinic, Malden.

Cloture Petition Filed

WASHINGTON (AP) - A petition to cut off Senate debate on the Abe Fortas nomination was filed today after Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen delivered a heavy blow to Fortas' chances for confirmation as chief justice.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., filed the petition to invoke the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule to halt a filibuster against his motion to take up the Fortas nomination for consideration.

A vote is to be taken at 1 p.m., Tuesday on the peitition. To cut off the debate will take a two-thirds majority of senators voting.

Dirksen, is a switch of his previous position, told newsmen he would not vote for cloture. And he left open whether he still favors confirmation of Fortas.

The petition filed by Mansfield had the signatures of 23 senators, 16 Democrats and 7 Republicans. Only 16 signers were required by the rules.

Dirksen was initially an outspoken supporter of President Johnson's nomination of Fortas to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren.

And although Dirksen voted with the majority of the Senate Judiciary Committee in approving the nomination, he said there was "a strict understanding in the committee that the vote did not bind anybody."

Word that Dirksen will not vote to put the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule into effect brought from Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the reaction that "it sure as hell will" make it more difficult to break a filibuster by opponents.

Young Singers Give Vigorous Musical Reply to Protesters

A musical explosion is taking place with the organization of a Sikeston Sing-Out group. The singers are aged from 14 to those students through the second year in college.

The group is the third in Missouri.

Other groups have been organized in Kansas City and St. Louis. They will be associated with more than 400 other groups throughout, the world.

The Sikeston group is sponsored by the Optimist club and Sikeston Council of the Arts.

The singing groups, whose theme is Up With People, originated in 1965 at Mackinac Island, Mich., when youngsters determined to ban together, to produce a new image had been tarnished by the protest singers, hippies and riot inciters mainly on college campuses.

The singing group has four standards, honesty, purity, and unselfishness and love. All the music is original. Each song has its own message, pertaining to patriotism, brotherhood and peace.

The first group of 100 singers was invited to display their talent in New York, Washington D. C., the U. S. Military and naval academies.

They then divided, dropped their high school and college careers temporarily and traveled to Europe and Asia.

At the first rehearsal of the Sikeston group 42 boys and girls responded including Bob Williamson, who is majoring in music at Southeast Missouri State College, in Cape Girardeau with Mrs. W. L. Clayton as director.

The group plans to give its first performance within 60 days.

Mrs. W. L. Clayton directs the Sikeston Sing-Out group.

Rehearsals will be held on Sundays in September at the Christian church education building, and in October in the Tanner Street Church of God education building.

Any boy or girl interested in joining may call Mrs. Clayton, 471-0664.

The south and west St. Louis county group will perform here Oct. 26 before a Sikeston audience in the Junior high school auditorium and will assist the Sikeston group.

The Sikeston group will go to Memphis Oct. 5, to attend a performance by one of the singing groups.

Curtis Calls War Confession of Failure

Congressman Thomas B. Curtis, St. Louis, Republican candidate for United States Senator, told nearly 200 in the Two Tony's banquet room that "the Vietnam war is a confession of failure."

"It could have been avoided seven years ago if the administration put the Vietnamese on their feet econically, which would have stopped Communist aggression there," he said.

"We all know that the struggles in Vietnam and Cuba were inspired by the Communists.

"Yes, the war can be stopped in six weeks, if France and Great Britain will help in blockading the port of Haiphong and stop the flow of oil and gas from Russia.

"And yet my opponent, together with leaders of the administration tell us it would lead to a third world war. How foolish can they get. It would stop the killing of an average of 100 or more of our men each week. But it can be stopped on Nov. 5, by the voice of our people."

Congressman Curtis was introduced by Gary Rust, Cape Girardeau, chairman of 10th district.

Republicans, Judge James Sickal was master of ceremonies.

Comments were made by Vernon H. Landgraf, Cape Girardeau Republican candidate for Congress in the 10th district, and Fred Steward Jr., Republican chairman of Scott county. Others seated at the head table were George Johnson, Republican candidate for county judge; Margaret Scott, candidate for prosecuting, attorney, Mrs. Rust, Mrs. Sickal and Mrs. Steward.

Curtis flew in from St. Louis and held a press conference before the meeting at the Holiday Inn.

On law and order Curtis said:

"The Constitution outlines the safety provided the American people and was written for hundreds of years ahead of its times. We had better be speaking up for our public servants and our police, as these acts of police brutality of which they speak are generally false. We may have a handful of over-zealous lawmen.

"Let's put the people on their feet, instead of putting them on their lower anatomy," he urged in criticizing welfare programs. He called for training of the unskilled.

"We could start on an immediate 20-year tax decreasing plan, balance the budget and bring our national debt down," he said. Curtis said the 10 per cent surtax on federal income tax payments was unnecessary.

Ball Blasts At Nixon

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. AP - George W. Ball, retiring U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, plunged into the presidential campaign today with a blast at Richard M. Nixon as cynical and callous. He called Nixon's Republican runningmate, Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, a fourth rate politician and a hack.

Aiming at Nixon, Ball said: "It's important that people not forget that he was called 'Tricky Dick'. I have known him for 20 years and I remember why he got that name. The very cynicism with which he selected his running mate is a grave indication of his narrow principles. He was willing to choose a fourth rate politician and a hack to a position which could be only a heartbeat from the presidency. This demonstrated shocking callousness."

Ball predicted that Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy would come out in support of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, and that other Democratic leaders now in government posts would join the Humphrey campaign.

In a farewell news conference, Ball said he was leaving Friday night for the West Coast to consult with Humphrey on what role he could play in the campaign. He said he expected to travel with Humphrey part of the time, as an adviser, and perhaps make some television speeches.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

We are not a bit bothered about the head of anyone of the three tickets to be voted on in November.

But we are worried about the success of the Democratic State ticket from Senator Tom Eagleton through Governor Hearnes, Jim Kirkpatrick, et all.

They need finincing, your opportunity to help them is Saturday evening September 28th at the Democratic Bootheel Rally in the Sikeston Armory where the entire ticket other than the candidates for President and Vice President will be present.

We have been reliably informed that none of the money raised at this affair will go to the National party, all will be in behalf of the State and local candidates.

Come out and hear Governor Hearnes deliver the principle address and have a good time. Tickets can be secured from Frank Ferrell ticket chairman, Bill Lewis Scott County committee chairman or at the door, only $10.00 with free "bootheel tea."

Sure its worth it.

IS A DEPRESSION THE ONLY WAY TO STOP INFLATION?

We can't say it any better than do Warner & Swasey in their latest message.

A depression would do it, for sure.

Let enough people lose faith in America's future progress, and they'll stop buying. Goods then accumulate, workers are discharged; then they stop buying so more are laid off - and the depression is on. Since you don't raise the price of goods that don't sell, inflation is stopped.

Don't let anyone tell you government would rescue us by pouring out money. Printing press money (which is all they'd have) is the most deadly, ruinous inflation of all.

But if workmen would produce more and so earn every dollar of wage, if government would cut out waste and so cut taxes, if business would respond by holding down prices - then inflation would be stopped in the right way. It takes teamwork (isn't that supposed to be truly American?); it marks the end of the "somebody-else-not-me" selfishness.

Shouldn't government which is supposed to represent us all, be the leader?

MAJOR OBSTACLES FOR THE DEMOCRATS

Should Southeast Missouri Democrats be complacent about the effort to be made to elect Republicans in this state this year, let them consider the work that already is underway.

In the past week, major policy papers, speeches and public statements have been issued by Thomas Curtis, Lawrence Roos, John Danforth and Vernon Landgraf. These men, all Republicans, are seeking election as Missouri's U.S. Senator, Governor, Attorney General and Tenth District Congressman.

The mailings have not bee confined to one or two pieces; rather the volume was heavy, with more effort indicated in the future. All of this points to major activity by the Republicans, and the volume in recent days is heavier than at the peak of many previous campaigns.

A good many Republicans in Missouri are convinced this is their year; they believe that the disarray of the Democratic party at the national level will aid them at the state level, and common sense dictates they have a point.

Although Democrats have, in recent years, outnumbered Republicans in Missouri by a margin of three-to-one, there is considerable evidence that 1968 will be a unique election for several reasons. Not the least of these reasons is Alabama's George Wallace, whose bid for the presidency was once considered little more than a joke. But Wallace now has a spot on the general election ticket, and his American Independent party can be expected to drain off considerable support the Democrats might have gained by tradition and habit. We believe Wallace's candidacy in Missouri will work against the Democrats more than the Republicans, the latter possessing a hard-core of voters that will not be inclined to bolt the GOP ticket.

Although Democratic pluralities have long been taken for granted in Missouri, this is one year when nothing can or should be assumed.

With the presence of George Wallace in Missouri and the unparalleled flurry of Republican efforts already established as fact, the Democrats would be foolish indeed if they believe they will retain state and federal offices without a major effort.

Nothing is going to be easy this year for the Democrats — at the national, state or local level.

BRING BACK FLY—PAPER?

Autumn is here, the time of year when damp and chilly spells bring flies indoors in quest of comfort and warmth, and the question arises: What's become of old-fashioned fly-paper?

There was a time when it dangled in curly strips from ceiling fixtures or lay inconspicuously in flat sheets in various corners of dining establishments and the home. But with the advent of DDT and other high-powered insecticide sprays the effective and utilitarian fly-paper has gone the way of the running-board and the base rocker.

The presence of numerous flies on the wing in public dining places suggests that no matter how thoroughly premises are sprayed, there are always new flies coming in from outside to roam unmolested.

Anything so crudely revolting as a fly-swatter would be unthinkable in a modern restaurant, as would another anachronism, the screen-and-bottle contraptions once used to trap flies.

Old-time fly-paper may be neither decorative nor appetizing. But it did the job of putting flies out of circulation in an effective manner, and seems preferable on all three counts of health, utility and esthetic appeal to the alternative nuisance - the flies themselves.

PAYMENTS TO DISPLACED BUSINESS

Most of us have seen mute evidence across the country as we travel the highways where businesses of all types have been left high - and dry by re-location of these highways.

However, relief for small businesses in the path of the Federal bulldozer is contained in a new Federal Aid Highway Act, sponsored by Sen. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, that is now law.

While business firms eliminated by highway construction programs have received compensation to help in setting up at a new location, reimbursement for the costs of moving have previously been held to a minimum of $3,000.

Surveys conducted at Congressional request among those who had been displaced by highway construction resulted in a report that in many cases the $3,000 limitation was inadequate to cover the costs of moving, especially among small manufacturers, laundry and dry cleaning establishments and other operations requiring the moving of heavy bulky equipment.

Under the new law, the full moving costs will be paid for, or if the displaced owner elects not to move to a new location, he can receive a cash settlement in lieu of moving costs.

Also included is a provision giving long-term, low-interest loans from the Small Business Administration to those firms damaged by Federal non-highway programs.

Furthermore, the Secretary of Transportation shall not approve any project for Federal- aid highways that will displace a business unless the State agrees to make relocation payments and provide relocation advisory assistance, etc.

Until July 1, 1970, the Federal government will assume 100 per cent of the first $25,000 of relocation payments to any single person. The reason for this is to provide one and a half years for some of the States to enact laws that will permit these States to participate in the Federal-aid highway program.

And so a wrong has been corrected which has affected the little guy caught in the squeeze.

NEW YORK (AP) - Britain's "ideal barmaid" is visiting here to see how the lads behind the mahogany on this side of the Atlantic pour the sauce.

"They're quick," admitted Margaret Winfield, "but they waste a lot. With what they spill I could make another drink. If a drop goes on the floor, it's no good to anyone, is it?"

Barmaids are traditional in England, and Margaret had a real battle of the taps to win the title of pub queen of the tight little isles. She won over 3,000 contestants.

"We were judged on personal appearance, drink-mixing skill, tidiness, and friendliness—how well we could chaff the customers," she said.

Margaret is endowed with a robust humor and robust proportions. She is 29, 5 feet 9, weighs 11 stone—or 154 pounds. She has dark eyes and a crown of pale ale-colored hair.

Married to a lorry driver—they have two children—Margaret reigns during the day over the Eagle Pub, not far from London, which is managed by her mother. She started pulling the pub taps at 15, now gets $14.55 for a 33-hour work week, and is completely happy with her lot in life.

"Mum says I'm worth 20 times my pay," she said. "Over there the pay is all you get. There are no tips, although the customers stand you to a treat now and then.

"I have done other kinds of work. I managed a baker's shop for a time, but I missed the pub and the chaffing.

"I love the atmosphere of a pub. Once you've been in it for a while you can't get away from it. You always have someone to talk to, and to make happy if they feel a bit down-hearted.

"Nearly every pub has one or two barmaids. Single girls like the job because they can always get plenty of dates, and the unhappily married girls like the job for—well, the same reason."

Many pensioners kill the long hours of retirement at her pub, and merry, warm-hearted Margaret likes to mother these lonely, time-tossed-away men.

"They talk about their memories of days gone by, the cost of living, and what's in the news," she said.

"We don't have very many Casanovas. British men don't pinch much. They want to kiss your cheek or stroke your arm. If one does get a bit fresh, I can always stop him by asking, '"Ow's your missus?'"

She wouldn't know how to mix you a bullshot or a sidecar, probably, but she is adept at pulling a pig's ear, or serving a dog's nose, a mother-in-law, a granny, or wallop and wompo.

A pig's ear is the Cockney term for beer. A dog's nose is gin with a beer chaser. A mother-in-law is a mixture of "stout and bitter" brew, granny a mixture of "old and mild." And wallop and wompo are kinds of ale.

Among the items to be checked on vehicles presented for inspection under the State's Motor Vehicle Inspection Law are the brakes. Adequate and equalized brakes are very important from the standpoint of safety, otherwise your vehicle may not be able to stop in an emergency. At the time of inspection, the inspector-mechanic will check the foot and emergency or parking brakes to determine their sufficiency and adjustment.

The foot brake must be able to stop a normal passenger car within 25 feet when the vehicle is moving 20 miles per hour. The brakes may be tested in a road test or with a brake testing machine. The brake pedal will be checked for reserve height. Approxiamtely one-fifth of the total available pedal travel must remain when the pedal is depressed. The brake pedal height must be maintained for one minute to pass inspection.

One front wheel and drum will be removed on all passenger cars and commercial motor vehicles licensed for a gross weight of 12,000 pounds or less. This includes pickup trucks. The drum is inspected for contamination, cracks, scoring or burning. The condition and the remaining thickness of the brake lining will also be checked and an examination for any leakage in the master and wheel cylinder will be made by the inspector-mechanic.

The vacuum system on power brake vehicles is to be check for leaks, clogs or restrictions.

Two sets of adequate brakes are required under the Missouri Motor Vehicle Law. In addition to the foot brake, the emergency or parking brake must be functioning.

A salesman, growing nervous about traveling by air, went to see a statistician one day. "Can you tell me what the odds might be against my boarding an aircraft on which somebody had hidden a bomb?"

"I can't tell you until I've analyzed the available data. Come back in a week or so."

"Certainly, the odds are 1 million to one against your getting on an aircraft with one bomb on it."

"Those are good odds. But I'm not sure they're good enough for me. I travel a good deal."

"Well, if you really want to be safe, carry a bomb with you. The odds are 1 billion to one against your boarding an aircraft with two bombs on it!"

STUDY OF THE FULBRIGHT RECORD

When the public tries to study the record of Sen. J. W. Fulbright they find it obscured by masses of nondescript verbiage that form a ream of riddles and defy understanding. Fulbright has the highest ADA ratings of any Arkansas lawmaker. In non-election years he really votes his true feelings of giving up U. S. sovereignty and "building bridges" to dictators of communist countries. Like the chameleon that changes his colors to match the background, Fulbright earns an ADA ratings of 53 in the first session of the 88th Congress while the senior sentaor John McClellan rates zero with ADA. Then, just before he has to face the Arkansas electorate, Fulbright's ADA rating falls to 38, which is still the highest ADA rating in Arkansas.

Between election years Fulbright pushes for spending U.S. tax money on foreign give-aways and for the Fulbright programs to send the nation's brightest young minds to foreign colleges for infection with the same leftist philosophy that afflicts him. Few Arkansas citizens will hear him boast of how much of their tax money goes for these Fulbright scholarships for student exchange. Since the program is operated by the Department of State it is no surprise that Fulbright gets the opportunity to praise Yugoslavia, run by Red dictator Tito, when that communist nation joins in the program. Other communist or pro-communist dictatorships participating in the Fulbright programs, which probably would not meet with approval of Arkansas voters, include Nasser's Egypt, Poland and Rumania.

There are the kind of people Fulbright demands that our government should be "reasonable" with an spend tax money on so that they will stop being frightened of "imperialist U.S.A." Fulbright and his cohorts wonder why the voters are all upset about crime, riots in the streets and surrenders to communist bullying. HLH

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Republican congressman Bob Wilson cheated on his vote; He was in California while pretending to be voting in Washington; Unobtrusively Wilson admitted his "error"

WASHINGTON--The chief money-raiser for the Republican Congressional campaign committee, Rep. Bob Wilson of San Diego, was caught redhanded recently in the worst type of cheating. He got his name recorded as Present and voting in the House of Representatives when actually he was back in Southern Califronia.

Wilson has now been forced to acknowledge his "error." However, he has made no apology to his congressional colleagues and the house leadership is trying to hush up the whole deal. There is no move so far to censure or discipline Wilson, though some of his colleagues say privately that the highly unethical manner in which he had himself registered as voting when he did not vote compares with some of the irregularities of Harlem's Adam Clayton Powell. Powell took all sorts of trips at the taxpayers' expense, but was quite open about it. He never tried to deceive the public into thinking he was in Washington when he was not. Powell was expelled.

Wilson's transgression was discovered when California colleagues noted in the San Diego union that Wilson was in San Diego on Sept. 9 and 10 attending money-raising functions. He gave an interview to the San Diego union on Sept. 9 and spoke at the Point Loma Optimist Club on Sept. 10.

Yet the Congressional record, which is supposed to contain an accurate account of Congressmen present and voting, showed that Wilson was in Washington. It showed him answering eight out of 13 roll-call votes on the very same days he was reported in San Diego.

On Sept. 9, for instance, the house voted on a farm marketing bill aimed at helping farmers in case of crop failures such as have occurred in California. Page 8360 of the Congressional record lists "Wilson, Bob" as voting against the bill. His illegal absentee vote helped defeat the bill.

Finally Rep. John Moss of Sacramento, one of the Democratic whips, called Wilson's cheating to the attention of Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, the Democratic leader. Albert in turn contacted Rep. Les Arends, the venerable Republican leader from Illinois.

WILSON SQUIRMS OUT

Arends got on the long-distance telephone immediately. He demanded that Wilson hustle back to Washington. Wilson returned, though not until after he had missed more roll-call votes on Sept. 16.

When he got back he made an inconspicous public admission of error. He got up on the House Floor and said: ,'Mr. Speaker, I was not present in the House on September 9, 10, and 16 when there were certain votes recorded for me on those days. I ask unanimous consent that the permanent record and journal be changed to show that I was not present."

In the tradition of the "Gentlmen's Club" which prevails in the House, no objection is ever made to a unanimous request. Furthermore, only two or three members knew what was up. Wilson's unobtrusive correction sailed through unnoticed.

Subsequently chief tally clerk Thomas Cooke was made the scapegoat. He was relieved of duty. However, it seems highly unlikely that Cooke is the culprit, and House Clerk Pat Jennings made it clear that he did not think so.

"I'm not going to let Tom Cooke be the fall guy for Bob Wilson or anyone else," said Jennings. Other Congressmen point out that the tally clerk merely listens to voices as the roll is called, and a friend of Wilson's could easily have answered the roll for him. Tally clerk Cooke would not have known whether it was Wilson's voice or someone else's.

Inquiry by this column shows that not in recent memory was a congressman cribbed regarding his absenteeism in the House. Some Congressmen will ride all night on "the red eye special," the allnight plane from California, to get to Washington in time to be recorded for a vote. Another Republican, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, the Lady from Maine, has sometimes driven all night from Maine to be present for a vote. Mrs. Smith has had the remarkable record of having being consistently present for 2,941 roll-call senate votes and only missed recently when taken to the hospital in New York for an arthritic condition from which she is still suffering.

It will be interesting to see what, if anything, the House ethics committee does about Wilson's cribbing. Will it censure him or will it follow the precedents outlined in the book "The Case Against Congress"? our prediction is that the shameful ehtics prevailing in the Gentlemen's Club will continue.

GOP CAMPAIGN CHEST

If you look over the records of campaign contributions to re-elect Congressmen, you can understand why Rep. Bob Wilson wanted to be in Southern California, yet have his vote recorded in Washington too. The GOP campaign chest is flush and overflowing. Thanks in part to Wilson, there's close to $5.5 million in the Republican Kitty for House elections; Republican Congressional committee, $3,454,000; Congressional Boosters club, $1,525,000; and the right-wing United Republicans of America, $500,000.

In contrast, Democratic fund raisers have brought in about $802,000.

What Wilson is aiming at is 30 to 50 new seats, which would give them control of the House. To this end they plan to dump even more money up to $100,000 in certain key districts.

This doesn't tell the whole story, however. Republicans also get money from outside sources such as the American Medical Association and the business and industrial action committee. However, Wilson, in his "spare time," has done a terrific job of money-raising.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

WALLACE BREAKS THROUGH: Wins Public Backing of National Union Chief: Runs Ahead in Old Militant CIO Territory.

Grand Rapids, Mich.: — A lot of old pros crisscrossing this land are taking a second, third and fourth look at George Wallace. Instead of peaking down, he's peaking up.

The Alabaman even has won the official endorsement of an AFL—CIO national union president.

In steel patches and along the gasoline alleys and used car lot "parkways," the Alabaman is no freak. He's a phenomenon. In districts where some of us have covered some of the roughest, toughest, most militant mass strikes, George Wallace could revive the Workingmen's Party, dead 140 years, and whip up vote-getting storms.

In districts where the old CIO marched its battalions against legions of police, waves of tear gas and forests of truncheons and seized plants three decades ago, the American Independent Party's nominee is outrunning Hubert Humphrey and Richard Nixon for the "working stiff's" vote.

Over in the "steel belt," down by Homestead, Pa., and on to Pittsburgh, where 50 years ago Socialists and Communists led squads of men in the new unionism against the "corporations," George Wallace is polling between 65 and 92 per cent of the steel workers support -- depending on the plants.

It's more than backlash, frontlash racial appeals, demands for "law and order," or anger against the "Eastern establishment."

It's the restless, silent, national protest vote. And it's going to the racy man from Montgomery instead of the confident front runner, Richard Nixon.

George Wallace even has cracked the national leadership front of the AFL-CIO. Not much of a split. But still a crack. He has a minority of one among the 129 national and international union leaders.

It all popped onto the political scene some days ago when Mr. Labor, George Meany, spoke to some of his colleagues.

"I would have liked to announce that we have the unanimous vote of our entire 129 presidents for Hubert Humphrey," said the stocky national leader. "But there is one president who is for Wallace. But this still gives us a fine majority of 128 to one."

This is not the point. The massive labor Federation always goes with the Democratic nominee like Proctor goes with Gamble.

What disturbed insiders was the defection to the ultra - right of one of their own.

Albert E. Hutchinson, general president of the 14,000-member International Assn. of Heat and Frost Insulators and Asbestos Workers, now backs Mr. Wallace. He has arranged for contributions to the campaign. But this has not stirred any revolt among the Asbestos union's 120 locals.

Furthermore, Mr. Hutchinson did it under spotlights. On Thursday night, Sept. 19, the union chief strode to the stage of the huge Montgomery (Ala.) Garrett Coliseum, took his place at the side of candidate Wallace, and before 15,000 roaring, $10-a-seat spectators, loudly endorsed the American Independent Party's nominee.

For the moment, this is better than the Nixon campaign has done.

Inside labor's leadership that is. The Republican candidate has been ambivalent toward wooing the national union chiefs.

He'd like some of them to swing with him. But he's not going hat in hand. Nor is he using the old Kennedy pressure tactics – the one which always wound up with, "if you're not with us, you'll be at the end of a long line waiting to get into the White House."

There have been Republican feelers. Some of the nation's top labor men -- each with powerful political machines stretching across this country – have been approached. Some of the contacts have been made by Senator Dirksen, who has maritime labor friends. Some have come from congressmen who have straightened out bits of legislation for labor leaders privately, while publicly feuding with them. It happens every day.

But there's been no Nixon breakthrough, though Mr. Wallace now has official support from several statewide labor chiefs and some 150 union locals, as well as the man from asbestos.

Everybody is worried. The Nixon people now feel that the American Independent Party is drawing off vital votes in tough industrial states where every tally is needed to balance off the black bloc, now quielty in Mr. Humphrey's corner.

The Humphrey people are aghast at the desertion by men for whom the Vice President has fought daily since he gave up mixing prescriptions. So Humphrey, running scared on the union vote, is scheduling more labor audiences.

But most troubled are the labor leaders. A huge Wallace vote certainly gives the impression, justifiably, that the national labor chiefs have less political influence in their own ranks than does George Wallace.

This, in the 19 "right to work" states, could cost the unions considerable membership. These are the states in which a worker does not need to join a union to keep his job.

There's more riding on this campaign than the election of a president.

God Speakes
On Conversion.

Speaking through His Son as recorded in Matt. 18:3, God said, "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." In Matt. 7:21 He said, "Not everyone that saith unto me Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." In Christ's conversation with Nicodemus He said, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." (Jno. 3—3). Note in connection with these instructions, the statement in Acts 2:47, "And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved." See also Matt. 16:18, 19. Have you detected that each of these is equal to the same thing; entrance into the kingdom, which is the church?

(1) To be born again equals, entrance into the kingdom.

(2) To be converted equals, entrance into the kingdom.

(3) To do God's will equals, entrance into the kingdom.

(4) To be saved equals, entrance into the kingdom.

What this means is simply this: things equal to the same thing, as these are, are equal to each other. Thus, there is not as much mystery about the new birth or conversion, as some think and would have others to believe. If a person cannot understand, as some contend they cannot, the new birth, then surely he can understand what it means to do God's will; and remember, these are equal to the same thing and are therefore, equal to mean the same thing. To even further simplify the means by which man is saved from sin, we have various examples of conversion recorded in the book of Acts. In each case the people heard the gospel of Christ preached, believed in Him as the Son of God, repented of their sins, and were baptized in His name for remission of sins, or in order to be saved, born again, converted, and enter the kingdom. You should read these accounts: Acts 2:22-47; 8:1-13; 8:26-40; 9:1-18; 10:1-48; 16:14-15; 16:25-34 18:1-8; 19:1-6. Don't be affraid to investigate, it won't take long. Have you done what these people did? If not, you have not been converted to Christ. For God to save you, you must meet His conditions!!! Have you stopped to think what it will be to miss heaven, and thus cast into hell? STOP AND THINK!!!

Gibson In Series Tuneup Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Gibson, St. Louis' likely first game pitcher, gets his final Series tuneup tonight against the Astros. The Cards will pitch Steve Carlton Saturday and Ray Washburn on Sunday.

St. Louis and Detroit go through their final World Series tuneups as baseball's regular season draws to a close this weekend with a batting title and several positions in the standings up for grabs.

In the National League, Cincinnati's Pete Rose and Pittsburgh's Matty Alou move into their final three games tied for the batting lead at .332. The Reds are at home for a threegame series with San Francisco while the Pirates close the schedule with three in Chicago.

In addition to the batting race, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh are involved in a four-team battle for third place. The Reds occupy that spot going into the final weekend but are only one game ahead of Chicago and two up on Atlanta and Pittsburgh.

Lower in the NL standings, Los Angeles and Philadelphia are tied for seventh place and New York has a one-game lead over Houston in the battle to avoid a cellar finish.

The Phillies are at New York, Los Angeles at Atlanta and Houston at St. Louis to finish the season.

In the American League, Boston holds a one-half game edge over Cleveland in the battle for third place after the Indians absorbed a 7-1 whipping from Baltimore in the only game played Thursday.

Dave McNally won his 22nd with a six-hitter and contributed two hits, driving in one run and scoring two.

The Indians, because of a cancellation against Washington last week, have only one game left to play—tonight against Baltimore—while the Red Sox have three left against New York.

Fifth place New York has a one-game lead over Oakland with the Yankees finishing their season with the three games in Boston while the Athletics close with three against Minnesota.

There's an eighth place showdown set at Anaheim where the California Angels host a threegame series against the Chicago White Sox. The Angels are in eighth place going into the series, one game up on the Sox. Last place Washington, 1½ games behind Chicago, closes with three games at Detroit.

The Tigers plan to start John Hiller tonight with Joe Sparma and Pat Dobson working the final two regular games. That leaves 31-game winner Denny McLain with eight days rest if Manager Mayo Smith chooses to use him in next Wednesday's Series opener.

Stop laughing!

We know our calls have been somewhat funny lately . . . but please don't laugh at us because of last week's outcome.

We'll not go into details.

We sure wouldn't have won the First National Bank's football contest!

Now with a little dusting here and there . . . we might get our eight ball out and see how it will fare this week.

It's been a long time for the old pro.

Now with no delay we put . . . the eight ball . . . to work for the first time and retire our own thoughts.

Cape Girardeau Central at Jonesboro, Ark. -- It's a long trip . . . but will be worth it for the Tigers who'll return with another Arkansas victim under its win column. Cape 35, Jonesboro 13.

Charleston at Sikeston -- Records mean nothing is this match and it's a good thing too. The Bulldogs seem to have Bruce Farris ready for another try and with that will eke out a win. Sikeston 21, Charleston 19.

Kennett at Jackson -- Both tribes will be out after this northern division league match. Kennett has been the surprise of the season so far and will turn in another one tonight. Kennett 21, Jackson 20.

Perryville at Poplar Bluff -- This will be a battle, but the Mules will be before the folks and get into the win column. Poplar Bluff 20, Perryville 14.

Dexter at Caruthersville -- With little hope to share in the southern division league crown after last week's loss to power packed Portageville, Dexter will keep what little hopes they have by adding Caruthersville to the win ledger, Dexter 27, Caruthersville 13.

East Prairie at Hayti - This should be a real field battle with the host taking the edge because of the home field. Hayti 14, East Prairie 0.

Chaffee at Portageville -- This could give the host Bulldogs their biggest win toward nailing down southern division league crown. It will meet this test of the Red Devils. P'ville 28, Chaffee 12.

Malden at Piggott, Ark. -- The Wave is having a tough year and generally if it loss in this match it's rated as a bad year. So get ready to rate as Piggott has the nod here. Piggott 14, Malden 13.

South Pemiscot at Gideon -- One set of Bulldogs are going to be upset after tonight's outcome. A loss by the host would put it out of the conference race and a loss by South Pemiscot would cut its chances in half. We see the Southern Pups taking this match. S. Pem. 12, Gideon 7.

Delta C-7 at Illmo-Scott City -- Still celebrating last week's win over Gideon, the Rams can almost assure themselves a share of the Bootheel division league title with a win here. They will. I-SC 20, C07 6.

Now let's have a little cooperation . . . please.

The Daily Standard sports desk will open at 9:30 p.m. tonight to take calls from coaches on the results of their games. It will remain open until midnight.

Coaches please call 471-1137 collect to report your results.

A dozen persons spent Wednesday night in front of the ticket window at Busch Stadium waiting for the sale of World Series bleacher tickets Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

Cornelius Blackman, a 71-year-old Chicago postal clerk who was first in line slept in a folding chair. Blackman claims he was one of the first in line at last year's sale.

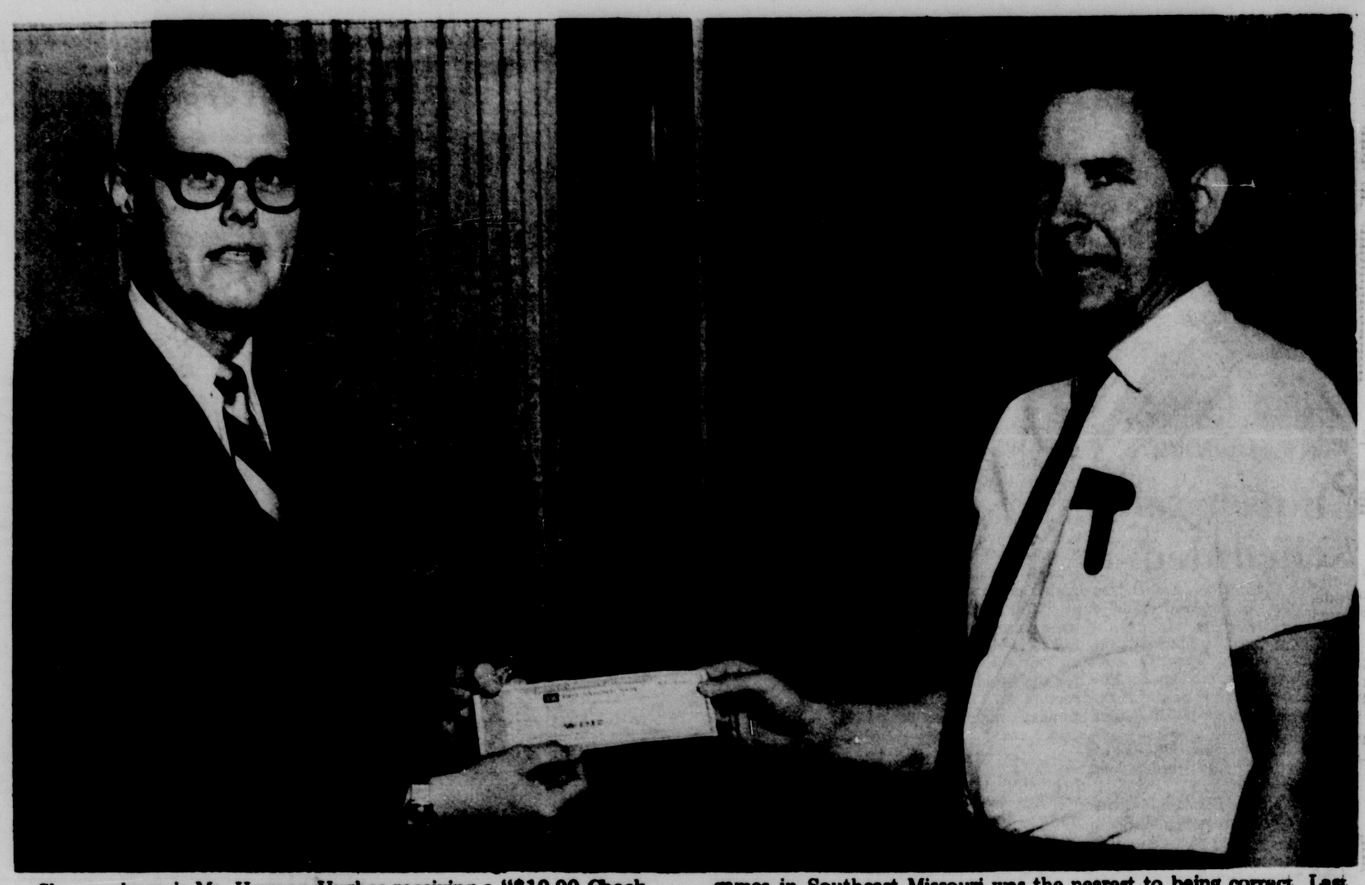

Other persons were wrapped in blankets, either in chairs or stretched out in the cold concrete.

In the group were three women and a 73-year-old Seminole, Okla. retired restaurant operator, Dewey Jones.

Mrs. Flora Davis, 61, of St. Louis renewed her acquantaince with Blackman when she took her place in line Wednesday. They had met in last year's line.

An usher, Ron Schuttenberg, served as an advisor for the early birds, offering them directions to washrooms and nearby coffee spots. He served in the same capacity last year. Schuttenberg said the fans discussed baseball and listened to transitor radios during the night.

"They ran out of coffee and conversation about one a.m. and settled down," he said.

Tax Simplification Change Endorsed

ST. LOUIS - The Missouri Bar and the Missouri Society of Certified Public Accountants today announced their endorsements and support of constitutional amendment 2 on the November, Missouri ballot which would permit the general assembly to simplify the state's complicated income tax laws.

Robert J. Baker of Webb City, spokesman for the CPAs and chairman of their taxation committee, said that "from the onset, CPAs have backed tax simplification legislation which would give Missouri taxpayers the opportunity to get out from under burdensome laws and filing procedures which have caused undue hardships."

Speaking for the Missouri Bar and likewise urging voter approval on Nov. 5, Edgar G. Boedeker of Clayton, president-elect, said "constitutional amendment 2 permits income tax simplification and would neither increase nor decrease Missouri income taxes. It is by far the most feasible means of effecting simplification and would not eliminate the present requirement that rates of taxation be stated in the Missouri statutes by the general assembly. The simplification amendment permits the general assembly to refer our laws to the federal tax statutes."

Sanford E. Sarasohn, president of The Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis, noted that the Missouri state tax study commission created by the general assembly in 1965 quickly and unanimously recognized that this was the most logical course of action. He stated that lawyers and certified public accountants immediately lent their support to the legislators and others interested in bringing this matter before the voters. Sarasohn, professor of law at St. Louis University, is a member of the bipartisan commission.

Baker noted that "passage of this simplification amendment will not only permit the lessening of the burden in the preparation of income tax returns but will make possible more efficient administration of the Missouri income tax."

Lawyers and accountants present at the news conference repeatedly emphasized the passage of amendment 2, the simplification amendment, was in the public's interest. It was noted that the Oklahoma voters on Aug. 27, 1968 approved a similar constitutional amendment. In 1966, the voters of neighboring Kansas and Nebraska also approved an income tax simplification amendment.

The experience of taxpayers and tax administrators of many other states has shown that this method of income tax simplification is in the best interest of both the state and the taxpayer, they argue.

Large Tax Increase in Sight for Missourians

JEFFERSON CITY - Mounting appropriations have exceeded the capacity of the state government's general revenue tax structure to meet revenue requirements, making a tax increase, probably a large one, likely, Missouri Public Expenditure Survey said in a report released today.

Appropriations for general purposes this fiscal year exceed revenues by $67 million -- $32 million for operating purposes and $35 million for capital outlay, the report said.

The deficit is being financed this year from an accumulated balance, but next year a continuing source of additional tax revenues will have to be found to finance the level of expenditures that has been reached, the report said. Any above - normal expansions of state services will further enlarge the amount of additional revenue required, the report said.

Such expansion, it noted, is embodied in proposals being put forward to provide greater aid for schools with economically disadvantaged pupils and to share school costs on a fifty - fifty basis between the state and school districts. Supplying state aid in an amount equal to present local tax revenues would require added state expenditures approximating $90 million annually, the study said. In future years it would cost more.

Several other expansions may be in prospect, the report said. It noted that formation of additional junior college districts coupled with mushrooming enrollments may bring faster than normal increase in state aid to these institutions. The federal government is turning over more of the cost of medicaid to the state government. And the state government is considering providing education for a large number of medical students.

The report also noted that, without an accumulated balance, revenues will also have to be provided to finance the state's building program. From $20 million to $60 million annually has been appropriated for this purpose in recent years, a total of $213 million in the last 10 years. The amount placed in the state budget for building purposes will need to be substantial, the report said, regardless of whether current revenues are utilized or a bond issue is employed. If a bond issue plan is adopted, revenues will have to be provided for interest costs, which are at a high level, as well as for debt retirement, the report pointed out.

The report said it is too early to determine the precise amount of revenue the state government will require but that it seems apparent that the amount will be substantial and that a major source of revenue will be needed.

Taking into consideration the taxes Missourians pay to all governments, the report said, the most logical choice for a principal source of added revenue is the sales tax. Missourians, the report said, are paying 12 times as much in income taxes as in sales taxes.

Of the taxes paid by Missouri taxpayers, three -- income, property, and sales -- emerge as major sources of revenue for general government purposes, the report said. The income tax, which is largely pre-empted by the federal government, accounts for 67 per cent of taxes paid by Missourians. The property tax, which is almost exclusively a local government tax in Missouri, accounts for 10 per cent. The sales tax, which is the state government's largest tax source, accounts for 5.5 per cent.

An additional cent of state sales tax would yield about $100 million, while an increase of about 75 per cent in the state income tax would be required to yield that amount, the report said.

It is sometimes contended, the report noted, that sales tax should not be utilized as a revenue source because those with lower incomes expend proportionately more of their income on items to which the tax applies. That contention loses significance, the report said, because it is a minor element in the way the total tax structure affects taxpayers. By far the greater part of total taxes is paid in the form of highly progressive income tax rates, the report said.

The report said that the state government's quest for more revenue will be against a background of the recent federal income tax increase, increased social security taxes, rising property and other local taxes and considerable inflation. It noted that social security taxes are scheduled to increase again in January.

"Those," it said, "are cogent reasons for the state government to exercise restraint in establishing the level of expenditures for the coming year and in taking actions that will affect the state expenditure level in the future."

Total taxes paid by Missouri taxpayers have more than doubled in the last 10 years, the report said, having risen from $2.8 billion in 1958 to $5.3 billion this year. Taxes now take 35 per cent of personal income in the state compared to 27 per cent 10 years ago, the report said.

Romanians Fear Czech-Type Invasion

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Light traffic, Victorian architecture and dusty, tree-lined streets give Romania's capital a deceptive air of calm. Behind it lies fear of occupation by Soviet troops and tanks.

Officials do not speak of the fear. President Nicolae Ceausescu goes his own independent way in foreign policy. That is what makes Soviet invasion a possibility. But he keeps a tight Communist rein on press and government. That policy should reassure Moscow.

Though Ceausescu denounced the Soviet-led occupation of Czechoslovakia, since then he has avoided irritating the Kremlin.

The Soviet Union pulled its last troops out of Romania in 1958, after an occupation of more than 13 years. A few years later, Romania began to show signs of independence.

Now it has virtually withdrawn from cooperation with the Warsaw military pact.

But Romania should have less reason to fear Soviet invasion than Czechoslovakia had.

Strategically, it presents no threat to Soviet security. Czechoslovakia has long borders with West Germany and Austria, only a short border with the Soviet Union. Romania has a long border with Russia, no border at all with the West.

Nevertheless, the nervous Romanians have been strengthening their forces along their borders with Communist countries, so much so that soldiers who usually help with the harvest are not available. This has worried university students, due back for the new term Oct. 1.

"I may have to 'volunteer' for a couple of weeks work in the fields just then," one of them said. "Anyhow, they call it volunteering."

In domestic politics, Czechoslovakia showed liberal tendencies the Soviets considered dangerous. Censorship was abolished. The possibility arose that non-Communist parties would be permitted to work freely. There was widespread sentiment for neutrality.

But Romania lives under a rigid Communist system. There are not even puppet non-Communist parties as there are in other East European countries.

Yet in his own way Ceausescu —just turned 50—belongs to the new generation of liberalizers in the Communist world. Political prisoners seem to have been all released, and a great burden of fear has been lifted from the shoulders of the average Romanian.

"The Romanian is still wary of contact with foreigners," the diplomat said. "He gets told all the time that it's dangerous—the difference is now that he is warned against foreigners from the East as well as the West. And the policeman's knock on the door in the middle of the night is gone."

All this may frighten the Soviets a little, especially when they see relations improving between Romania and its non-aligned Communist neighbor, Yugoslavia, an old thorn in Moscow's side. So the Soviet pressure on Romania is kept up.

Meanwhile, nothing much actually happens in Romania, but Romanians are afraid something just possibly might.

Bootheel as Fruit and Vegetable Center Faces Obstacles

Southeast Missouri Detla farmers have their work cut out for them if they hope to develop their region into a profitable vegetable producing area. This was the general tone of a feasibility study on the potential of the Missouri delta region as a fruit and vegetable center.

The study, discussed at a meeting Thursday, in Sikeston, was sponsored by the marketing division of the Missouri Department of Agriculture and dealt with the potentials of processing and marketing fruits and vegetables.

The overall conclusions drawn by Agri-Research Inc., Manhattan Kan. which conducted the study.

Most large food processors are unaware of the possibilities offered by the Delta area.

The prospects of success, for a locally owned cooperative without established markets, are small.

The talents and resources in the area would be put to more production use in developing an organized and cordinated program to inform interested processors on the potentials of the area rather than in promotion of a locally based processing group.

The area offers good production possibilities, soil, water and management, if the processing and marketing outlets can be developed.

The growing and marketing of fresh fruits and vegetables offers a good possibility if dependable sales outlets were established.

In condcuting the survey, researchers found that there out of four processors and buyers contacted indicated they were not familiar with the Missouri Delta area. Of the 25 per cent who did indicate knowledge of it, 68 per cent considered it a good vegetable production and processing area, 27 per cent rated it fair and only five per cent ocnsidered it a poor prospect. Five of the processors contacted indicated they would be interested in further inestigating the potentials of locating a processing plant in the area. This points out the need for a stepped-up program to educate the industry to the Delta's possibilities if any new plants are to be attracted to the area.

The study recommended the five steps to accomplish this:

1. Prepare an inventory on all aspects of the seven county area with which a processor might be concerned. This would include labor supplies, water, transporation, soils, climate conditions, potential plant sights and socio-economic conditions.

2. On the basis of the above inventory and studies, an informative and factual brochure should be prepared presenting the resources of the area, and plans for further development of theses resources.

3. The brochure should then be distributed to processors in a systematic and organized way to acquaint them with the area in a positive manner and to make them aware that the Southeast Missouri Delta has an aggressive and positive plan for development of vegetable processing opportunities.

No Trace of Greenlease Case Figure in 15 Years

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — It was 15 years ago that 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease was kidnapped in Kansas City, brutally murdered in Kansas, and buried in St. Joseph in a grave disguised as a crysanthemum bed.

Nearly $300,000 of the $600,000 ransom the kidnapers collected has never been located, but the big mystery is "What became of Tom Marsh?"

When Carl Austin Hall, who with his paramour Bonnie Brown Heady, was arrested in St. Louis Oct. 6, 1953, he told officers Tom Marsh was one of the kidnapers. He even accused Marsh of being the actual slayer of the Greenlease boy, son of a millionaire Kansas City car dealer.

Hall subsequently changed his story. He said no man named Marsh had been involved. He said he didn't even know a man named Tom Marsh.

"I was trying to blame the kidnaping and murder on a fall guy," Hall said. "The idea of putting the blame on Tom Marsh was a spontaneous thought. I know of no such individual."

Hall stayed with that contention to the last — that Dec. 18, 1953, early morning when he died in the gas chamber at the Missouri penitentiary, Bonnie gasping her last in a companion chair at his side in the barrellike execution chamber.

But despite the disavowls of Hall there was a Tom Marsh—and a strong likelihood Hall knew Marsh.

Tom Marsh, a floater who was also a wino, had been a convict in the Missouri penitentiary in 1951 when Hall was serving five years there for robbery. After Marsh completed his prison term he could be seen regularly around skid row areas of St. Joseph and Kansas City.

But since the day Hall named Marsh as the real slayer of little Bobby — only to deny the allegation — there has not been the slightest trace of Marsh.

His father has heard nothing of him, nor have other relatives or the police.

"If up to a short time before the kidnaping we had been asked to pick up Tom Marsh, we could have located him in almost a matter of minutes in the slum areas of Kansas City or in some skid row territory here," Chief of Police Edward C. Burke says.

"But there has been no trace whatever of him since the day Carl Austin Hall injected his name into the Greenlease case."

Marsh, who would now be 62, wouldn't be readily able to disguise himself. Stocky, ruddy complexioned, with blue eyes and brown hair, Marsh bore the following tatoos:

Around the police station here some veteran officers hold to the theory that Hall knew Marsh in the penitentiary; that they engaged in crimes together after both were released; that Hall killed Marsh so there would be no witness against him; then decided not to talk anymore about him when it definitely proved that Hall and Bonnie were stuck with the guilt of kidnaping and murder.

The searcch for Marsh is likely to go on for years to come— or until his death is proved.

The dour-visaged Hall was a wastrel son of a Kansas businessman who in a little more than a year after his father's death had spent his way through an inheritance of $200,000 in high living, most of it around Kansas City.

He had attended a private military school in Missouri and it was there he became acquainted with an older brother of Bobby Greenlease. He knew the Greenlease family had money.

In a Missouri penitentiary cell Hall had figured out what he thought would be a perfect crime. Meticulously planned, it was as cruel and as bizarre as this nation had ever known.

He arrived at the ransom sum of $600,000 by ascertaining that such a sum in $10 and $20 bills would weigh 85 pounds. He figured that this was as much as he could carry in a duffle bag or suitcase.

He specified the bills should be from all 12 Federal Reserve districts — to make the money more difficult to trace.

The Greenlease family met that demand, unaware that the boy had been taken across the state line from Kansas City, shot to death when Hall failed to strangle him with a short rope, then brought to St. Joseph and buried in the yard of the house where the Heady woman was living at 38th and Penn streets.

Hall had personal effects from the boy, a smattering of facts based on small talk from the boy just before he was killed, that he used to sell his ransom demand to the Greenleases. The demands by telephone went on to the family days after the boy was dead.

Bonnie had gone to the private school in Kansas City Sept. 28 to entice the boy away with a story to the nun there that a close relative was critically ill.

Hall collected the ransom — tossed from a car on a lonely road east of Kansas City just as he had demanded — and went to St. Louis with Bonnie. There he went on a spree, during which a prostitute companion tipped off police on how Hall was tossing money around.

Police Lt. Louis Shoulders arrested Hall and wrung from him information that led to the arrest of Bonnie. But from the role of hero, Shoulders soon slid to that of villain. He went to prison for lying about the ransom money when he testified before a grand jury.

Hall insisted he had all of the $600,000 save the amount he had spent on his fling when he was arrested. But at the police station only $300,000 showed up. A little of the missing money straggled in from divergent places during the next several years. But probably $295,000 is still missing.

Early the morning of Oct. 6, 1953, Richard E. Martin, then an FBI agent here and now a St. Joseph city councilman, was called from St. Louis. Martin was instructed to enter the Heady home at 38th and Penn and wait for another phone call.

At that point Martin was aware that he might find Marsh in the house and that Marsh had been designated by Hall as the killer.

And Martin knew that neighbors might see him as he pried open a window to enter and they might shoot him. But he entered and, after a considerable wait, was joined in the house by two other FBI men. Then came another telepone call from St. Louis.

Go out to the flower bed, Martin was told, and dig to see if there is a body there encased in blue plastic.

The body, first positively identified by Chief Burke, then captain of detectives, was that of the missing boy.

Hall and Bonnie had talked. The Greenlease case, with a maximum of heartbreak, had been solved.

Hearnes Turns Down Invitation To Face Roos

PRAIRIE VILLAGE, Kan. (AP)—Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes declined an invitation Wednesday night to face his oponent in the gubernatorial race, Lawrence K. Roos, at a bi-state rally featuring major candidates from Missouri and Kansas here.

The rally, held at Shawnee Mission East High School, attracted more than 1,000 persons from both sides of the state line.

Both Missouri candidates for the U.S. Senate—Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, Republican, and Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, Democrat—shared the platform and demonstrated opposing views on the Vietnam war. Roos, a Republican from St. Louis, said his only regret was that Hearnes did not appear.

The Kansas gubernatorial candidates faced each other. Democratic Gov. Robert Docking and Republican Rick Harman exchanged views on rioting in the cities, and William I. Robinson, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, also spoke.

Delineating his feelings on Vietnam, Curtis traced the cause of the war to Communist aggression, and repeated his proposal that the war could be ended within six weeks if the U.S. Navy blockaded the harbor of Haiphong in North Vietnam.

Eagleton held that blockading Haiphong could be disastrous: "Such a blockade, if imposed, perhaps in six weeks would put us in World War III with the Soviet Union."

The Paris peace talks would not be as fruitful as hoped unless the U.S. stopped bombing north of the 17th parallel, Eagleton said, adding that the ultimate goal for the United States should be to cease fire in Vietnam and disengage from the war.

The two candidates entered into a brief exchange that was all but drowned out by the crowd's shouting and hooting. Curtis accused Eagleton of attempting to rebut him, saying their joint appearance was not intended as a debate.

Roos drew rounds of applause as he sounded off on Gov. Hearnes. The governor's absence at the rally was "true to form," Roos said. "I only wish he would have the guts to come out of hiding and join a meeting like this so we can discuss the issues," he added.

The St. Louis Republican cited figures depicting Missouri ranking in the bottom 20 per cent of all states in such areas as state aid to education, expansion of industry, and job opportunities and farm income.

"We need people in Jefferson City," he said, "who will propose positive programs and take action to solve the problems of Missouri. We don't need people who devote 100 per cent of their time to furthering their partisan political ambitions."

Symingtons Swap Roles In Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Certain votes were easier to get back in those days. But then, young James Symington was plugging for his father rather than for himself.

His father is Sen. Stuart Symington, Democrat and former secretary of the Air Force who has represented Missouri since 1952.

James, now 41, is running for Congress in a metropolitan St. Louis district. His opponent is Republican Hugh Scott.

"You know," Sen. Symington said in an interview, "I remember once when a farmer said he would vote for him if Jimmy could tell him what sort of horseshoe he was holding up.

"It was a little shoe. Jimmy said, 'that's an ox shoe,' which it was, and the man said, "Sir, you've got my vote.'"

The senator says his son "is entirely on his own" in the race. However, he plans to help him get elected.

"In the primary it might have been misconstrued if I'd become involved in the campaign," Symington said. "But things are different in the general election. I look forward to working for him."

The elder Symintgon said that was only fair "because he worked for me in many of my campaigns."

He says he is especially proud of his son's sense of humor.

Symington related the story his son likes to tell about when James was chief of protocol at the State Department.

With one hour's experience in his new job, he grandly ushered the visiting Sudanese ambassador into a broom closet.

"He's got a wry sense of humor," the senator said. "He has a sense of perspective about things."

Symington thinks it is fitting for his son to enter politics because he "cares a lot about people. He is a very compassionate person without in any sense being corny about it."

"I remember a couple of things that affected me very much," he added. "Once he said he was in Peru and he asked this couple when they had gotten married.

"They said they had never been married, yet they had a number of children. They asked where would they get the $5 necessary to get married."

Symington, 57, said he once told his son he should stick to the law, since he was a lawyer.

"He said, 'Dad, why should I limit myself to the problems of one person? I care too much about people to do that.'"

Sen.Symington added:

"That's the kind of guy he is."

The expression of humiliation to "eat humble pie" dates from 11th-century England, when all ate at one table, seated according to rank. The World Almanac says. When deer was served, the lord ate venison, but the humbler folk at the foot of the table got "umble pie" or the entrails, including the umbilical cord from which "umble" comes.

Humphrey Promises Continued Prosperity

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey, pressing harder than ever for televised debates with Richard M. Nixon, today promised continued prosperity if he is elected president. He accused the Republicans of "economic mismanagement."

The Democratic vice president, in a campaign speech prepared for the Portland City Club, said that "when Americans vote on prosperity I am confident they will give us a clear call for more of it."

Saying that there were three recessions during the eight years when Nixon was Dwight D. Eisenhower's vice president, Humphrey spoke of "the dismal, disheartening years of Republican economic mismanagement in the 1950s."

"Now some say the Republicans may learn from their past mistakes," he added. "There is not a shred of evidence either from the 1950s or the Republican voting record right up to date that they have learned anything."

Humphrey said Nixon's economic advisers sounded like the kind of men who would mount a "back to McKinley campaign."

In San Francisco Thursday, Humphrey dispatched a telegram to Nixon after reading published reports that the Republican presidential nominee had expressed a willingness to debate the vice president—a key aim of Humphrey's.

"I am designating my campaign manager, Larry O'Brien, to meet with your designated representative to work out the arrangements for what I hope will be a series of debates," the telegram said. "I trust we can have our representatives meet within the next 48 hours."

There was no indication, however, that early debates were likely.

Nixon has said he would debate Humphrey if Congress suspends the equal-time provision of the Federal Communications Act as it did in 1960, but would reject inclusion of third-party candidate George C. Wallace.

He said Wednesday in Denver, "This is a two-party country. Either Mr. Humphrey or I —one or the other—is going to be elected president and for us to put a third party candidate on there and have a panel instead of a debate would be an abortion. I'm not going to lend myself to it at all."

Humphrey seemed satisfied with the results of his second campaign swing into California —with visits to Los Angeles, Sacramento and San Francisco.

"I think Mr. Nixon is in trouble," he said. "I'm not. My market trend is up."

Humphrey drew two prominent Vietnam doves into his camp Thursday.

Arthur J. Goldberg, former Supreme Court justice and U.N. ambassador, signed on as cochairman of Humphrey's campaign committee. Goldberg's successor at the United Nations, George W. Ball, quit the post to become, in Humphrey's words, "my chief foreign policy adviser."

During one television appearance in San Francisco, Humphrey was asked why he did not make a clean break with President Johnson to prove that he was his "own man."

Foil Pans Are Handy For Feeding Traveling Pets

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have dark varnished woodwork in my kitchen and would like to remove it so I can put on enamel. How do I do this?—MOLLY

DEAR POLLY—I save all those foil pans that frozen pot pies come in. When we start on a trip with an animal I tuck some of them under the front seat of the car. When we stop to eat, "Rover" can have a drink or can eat. I have done this for two years and it saves dragging a bowl along and there is no mess to clean up afterwards.—MRS. J. H.

DEAR POLLY—The other day I took my transistor radio to the beauty parlor and used the ear plug to listen to music while under the dryer. I have never before had the time pass so quickly and pleasantly.—A CONSTANT READER

DEAR POLLY—When going on a trip I pour any milk on hand in my ice cube tray and freeze it. When I get home all I have to do is thaw it out and am saved a quick trip to the store.

● To keep a thermos bottle sweet and clean, fill with boiling water, add a teaspoon of baking soda and let stand for a few hours. Rinse with hot water and let it dry well before closing and storing. No brush is needed.—VIRGINIA

DEAR READERS—The laboratory of a large milk company advises that while the milk assumes a different appearance after freezing with little globules (sort of like buttermilk) it is perfectly all right to use.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—A reader requested ideas for using scraps of material in ways other than making quilts. I have a "ball" making bias binding out of mine. Lay the matching scraps on the bias, cut a strip the desired width and then cut a cardboard guide this width. Use it to cut the strips and then sew them together and roll each different pattern or color around an empty toilet tissue roll. After all the pieces are fitted and sewed together, press them and then place the two wrong sides together and stitch the full length on the very edge. When the tape is sewed to a garment you only have one side to sew down neatly to cover up the edge sewed to the garment.

I use such bindings on clothes for my grandchildren and am now binding pot holders with my homemade tape. I have at least 30 different (and I do mean different) rolls of colorful bias tape. They also trim pillowcases beautifully.

Who said, "Grandmas are a bored generation?" Working with my hands is the greatest medicine I have and I haven't yet found a day with enough hours. Becoming a grandmother is just what the word grandchild implies, "It's grand!."—MRS. J. B.

ONLY FAIR

LOUISVILLE (AP) — The Rev. James Flynn, assistant pastor of Mother of Good Counsel Catholic Church, was teaching his flock a new hymn but the vocal response wasn't too good.

"Come on, you men," he urged. "So God gave you a lousy voice — let's let Him hear it."

Newsman Picked for U.N. Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has named Washington Post editor J. R. Wiggins, a strong supporter of his Vietnam policies, to fill in as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations in the waning weeks of his administration.

Wiggins replaces veteran diplomat George W. Ball who quit Thursday to join the campaign team of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Ball bowed out after only five months at the U.N. Wiggins is expected to serve only the four months until a new president chooses his own envoy next January.

Wiggins, 64, who rose from a job on a country weekly in Minnesota to guide The Washington Post as managing editor and editor the last two decades, is largely an unknown quantity in world affairs without previous experience in foreign diplomacy. But Johnson praised his judgment, his understanding and his human compassion.

Wiggins was described by his newspaper today as "a staunch supporter of the administration's position on the Vietnam war." He retired as editor immediately upon accepting the U.N. appointment.

The new ambassador flew to Washington from his summer home in Maine to meet with Johnson at the White House Thursday night. Wiggins said, "I had a presidential commission once before—in the United States Army Air Corps. I'm accepting this one in the same spirit."

Johnson stressed that Ball was resigning because of domestic politics, not because of any break over foreign policy.

Ball told a State Department news conference the next president must have "settled principles and clear vision." He said Humphrey is such a man and Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon is not.

Arthur Goldberg, the first man Johnson had named to the United Nations, acknowledged differences over Vietnam when he stepped down last April. Goldberg also joined the Humphrey team Thursday. He will be co-chairman of the National Citizens Committee for Humphrey-Muskie while Ball will serve as the Democratic nominee's foreign affairs adviser.

Ball, who was undersecretary of state from 1961 to 1966 in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, denied suggestions he might be moving into position to succeed Dean Rusk in the Cabinet if Humphrey wins.

"After the November election I shall return promptly to private life," he said.

Ball's move came as a surprise both here and at the United Nations, which opened its 23rd session just two days ago.

Already awaiting Wiggins on the new U.N. agenda is the annual debate over admission of Red China. And the war in Vietnam, although not a formal issue before the world body, is certain to continue to be the center of off-stage controversy.

Wiggins enters as an unknown man in world diplomacy by his own choice. "The ideal newspaperman" he said recently, "is a man who never forgets which side of the footlights he's on."

The veteran editor had been due to retire from The Washington Post on his 65th birthday in December.

Johnson called Wiggins "one of America's most respected citizens" and said the appointment would "cap his long career of public service."

Johnson called newsmen into the White House Cabinet Room to announce the change personally. He saluted Ball's service and said his resignation "has nothing to do with public policy."

Although Ball has written that the United States should never have begun bombing North Vietnam, he has defended U.S. policies and has said he sees no likely alternative to their continuation.

Wiggins also is a longtime associate of Humphrey and served on his draft board in World War II.

The appointment to the $30,000 a year post is subject to Senate confirmation.

Most Rate Senate Race A Classic

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri General election race for U. S. Senator is a classic—one in which most observers feel the state will be in good hands no matter which man wins.

On the Democratic side is Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, a comparative youngster who has served with credit as attorney general for four years and as lieutenant governor for four years.

He is 39 years old, an attorney and former St. Louis circuit attorney. He attended college at Amherst, Oxford and Harvard Law School. He is considered brilliant.

The Republican nominee is Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, 57, a veteran of 20 years in Congress. He is loved by Republicans and respected by Democrats.

Curtis decided to quit in his congressional district in order to try for the Senate seat held by Sen. Edward V. Long, a Democrat under fire for alleged fee splitting as a lawyer and for connections with convicted James M. Hoffa, president of the teamsters union.

Much the same thinking must be ascribed to Eagleton. He needed new political heights to conquer and he did not wish to thwart democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' desire to become the first Missourian to win a second consecutive term as chief executive.

That's the program. What about the prospects?

Normally, Missouri is safe for the Democratic party but it also has a growing number of independent voters.

The entrance of the American party presidential candidate, former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, may throw the Missouri pattern off. As in other states, Wallace has lined up a lot of voters behind him. The question is where they will go on the two major party tickets after voting for Wallace.

In a six-man primary, Eagleton beat Long and the third man, True Davis of St. Joseph, with votes to spare. Eagleton got 224,017, Long 198,901 and Davis 178,961.

Curtis, in a three-man GOP contest, got 192,028 with less than 35,000 going to his two opponents.

The key to the Eagleton-Curtis race is St. Louis county — the home bailiwick of both. In the primary Eagleton collected 64,379 votes in St. Louis county, now the political area concentrating the greatest number of votes in the state. But Curtis got 60,949 in the same county.

Missouri Democrats have all but conceded the state to Richard Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee, and are concerned about the Wallace infringement on the normally Democratic margin in the state.

The presidential race, plus the contest between Hearnes and his Republican challenger for governor, St. Louis county supervisor Lawrence K. Roos, should have marked effect on the senatorial race.

Three Butler School Units To Consolidate

POPLAR BLUFF - A new school district designated as East Butler county R-10 was voted Tuesday by electors in the three existing districts. The vote was 504 to 309.

The new district, which ultimately will involve a proposition to build a centrally located high school, comprises the old districts of Fisk-Rombauer R-3, Broseley R-2, and Qulin R-5.

Bill Trout, Butler County superintendent of schools, announced today that an election will be held on Oct. 22 to name six directors for the new district. Two members will be elected from each of the old school districts, Trout said. Deadline for filing for the new board is Oct. 5, Trout added. Candidates should contact Trout's office in the Courthouse, he said.

Only the Broseley district voted in favor of the proposal giving the issue an overwhelming approval of 307-15. In that district, the Broseley polling place tallied 265-5, and Big Island was 42-10.

Fisk electors voted against the plan 93 to 80.

And in the Qulin district, the total vote was 201 against the 117 for. The breakdown by polling places was: Qulin 57 for and 56 against, Carola 12 for and 54 against, Upper Davis 42 for the 21 against, and Fagus 6 for and 70 against.

The new district comprises about 250 square miles of area with an assessed valuation of about $6 million. About 2,000 pupils live in the area.

Uprising in Mexico

Inspired by the ideal of world harmony, the organizers of the 19th Olympiad at Mexico City have commissioned the construction of 18 monumental sculptures to line an 11-mile "Route of Friendship" leading to Olympic Village. Here are six of the works, all of which are in concrete, ranging from 20 to 60 feet in height. Large photo shows the work of Pierre Szekely, who was born in Hungary and now lives in France. From the top left down and to the right are sculptures of: Swiss sculptor Willi Gutmann; Angela Gurria of Mexico; Austria-born Herbert Bayer who now lives in the United States; Joop J. Beljon, Netherlands; Italian Constantino Nivola, who lives in the United States.

National Gallery Art Reproduced Stamp-Size

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

More than two dozen of the masterpieces of painting in the National Gallery of Art, Washington, have been reproduced so many times that the museum probably holds some sort of record for the circulation of its art works.

There are the regular reproductions suitable for framing, of course, which have been published in many thousands of copies, and there are many reproductions in art books, but the real volume of reproduction lies in the postage stamps that the United States and several foreign countries have issued from paintings (or portions of paintings) now in the National Gallery.

The most-circulated work of art from this museum at present is Hans Memling's "Madonna and Child with Angels," dating from about 1480.

It was issued as a 5-cent Christmas stamp for 1966 and again in 1967. In each year it sold more than 2 billion copies — billions, not millions.

Another Flemish masterpiece, Jan van Eyck's "Annunciation," has been chosen for the 6-cent Christmas stamp of 1968. It will show only the angel.

Thus far only one other religious theme has been issued as a stamp from the works of art at the National Gallery. In 1965 the United States made a 5-cent postage stamp from "Archangel Gabriel," a water color which Lucille Chabot painted around 1840, showing a weather vane figure of the angel, atop the Peoples' Methodist Church, Newburyport, Mass.

Portraits of Presidents and other public figures have been used often. The "Vaughan portrait" of George Washington, which Gilbert Stuart created in 1795, was used as a 1-cent stamp in 1954, and in 1965 a Washington portrait, painted by Rembrandt Peale about 1823, was used on a U.S. 5-cent stamp.

Thomas Sully's 1845 portrait of Andrew Jackson has appeared twice — as a 3-cent stamp in 1903 and a 10-cent issue of 1967.

Douglas Volk's 1908 portrait of Abraham Lincoln was on a 1958 4-cent stamp, Gilbert Stuart's 1794 portrait of Chief Justice John Jay was issued the same year as a 15-center, John Trumbull's 1806 image of Alexander Hamilton appeared in 1956 as a $5 stamp and this year a 40-center carried John Wesley Jarvis's picture of Thomas Paine, painted about 1805.

MORE than 4 billion postage stamps reproducing Hans Memling's "Madonna and Child with Angels" were sold in 1966 and 1967.

In 1933 Oswald Birley painted a portrait of Andrew Mellon, the longtime secretary of the Treasury who donated the funds for the National Gallery and gave it his prime collection of Old Masters. This portrait was used for a 30-cent stamp in 1955.

United States stamps also have included several items from the National Gallery on boating and sailing. Winslow Homer's 1876 picture "Breezing Up" appeared in 1962 on a 4-center; Mary Cassatt's "The Boating Party," painted in 1893-94, was on a 5-center in 1966, and in 1967 "The Biglin Brothers Racing," created in 1872 by Thomas Eakins, appeared on another 5-center.

A John James Audubon painting, "Columbia Jay," created in 1830, has appeared twice. In 1964 it was on a 5-center, and in 1967 on a 20-cent airmail stamp.

Several foreign nations have produced postage stamps from paintings now in the National Gallery.

One was the famous Leonardo da Vinci portrait of Ginevra de Benci, dating from around 1480, which the tiny state of Lictenstein put on a 10-rappen stamp in 1949. That was before the National Gallery acquired the picture for some $6 million.

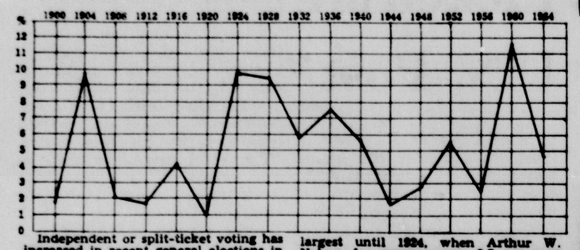

Belgium issued two in 1964, a 2-franc stamp of "Portrait of a Lady," painted around 1455 by Rogier van der Weyden, and Anthony Van Dyck's image of William II of Nassau and Orange, dating from around 1640, which appeared on a 4-franc stamp.

In 1958 Spain issued a 40-centavo stamp showing a Francisco Goya painting of about 1805, "The Bookseller's Wife."

The National Gallery now has a permanent exhibit showing visitors the stamps that have been made from its paintings, together with photographs of each painting. After examining the stamp exhibit, visitors may see the originals — or most of them — by touring the galleries. A few of them are out on loan from time to time.

Ticket-Splitting Trend Grows In Missouri, Kirkpatrick Finds

THE EBB AND FLOW OF INDEPENDENT VOTING SINCE 1900

Independent or split-ticket voting has increased in recent general elections in Missouri.

This trend is confirmed by a tabulation of 20th century Democratic totals in Missouri, compiled by Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick. The vote on Democratic candidates for three offices—president, governor and secretary of state—was tabulated for all the presidential years beginning with 1900. Variations between the vote totals provide an index on the amount of split-ticket balloting in each election.

The biggest variation was in 1960, when John M. Dalton, for governor, ran 122,999 votes in front of John F. Kennedy for president. Dalton's margin amounted to 11.2 per cent of the party vote.

The legislature in 1921 adopted the "blanket" ballot (all parties on one ballot) to replace the "strip" ballot (a different ballot for each party). This change stimulated independent voting by substituting a checkmark in place of a write-in to vote for candidates of more than one party.

The variation in ballot totals between the presidential and gubernatorial nominees since that time has averaged 6 per cent, compared to 3.3 per cent before 1921.

As between the governor and the secretary of state, the variations amounted to 2.8 per cent in the strip-ballot elections, compared to an average of 3.3 per cent on the blanket ballot.

However, there was one notable burst of splitting in the early days. In 1904, Joseph W. Folk, widely admired as an energetic "reform" prosecuting attorney in St. Louis, got 30,340 more votes for governor than the Democratic candidate for president, Alton B. Parker.

This 9.3 per cent differential was the largest until 1924, when Arthur W. Nelson for governor ran 9.7 per cent better than John W. Davis for president, although Nelson lost the governorship to Republican Sam A. Baker.

In total, 20th century Missouri elections have found Democratic nominees for governor averaging 0.6 per cent more votes than the party's nominees for president, and nominees for secretary of state averaging 0.7 per cent ahead of nominees for governor.

"This slight historical advantage to secretaries of state seems to be due to the fact they have always been eligible to succeed themselves, and frequently serve more than one term," Kirkpatrick said. "This has enabled the secretary of state to keep his name before the public longer than the governor, who until this year was unable to succeed himself.

"Ticket-splitting reaches its height in Missouri in years when emotions run high over the presidential race—years such as 1928 (Al Smith), 1932 (Franklin D. Roosevelt) and 1960 (John F. Kennedy), and also years in which bitter primary fights have preceded the fall election.

"The personalities and records of the candidates are probably most important to this kind of independent voting. There is nothing in the pattern of Democratic balloting in Missouri that in itself lends comfort or despair to any 1968 candidate. The Democratic state ticket, does usually prevail, but we have had five Republican governors and two Republican secretaries of state during this century (Secretary Charles U. Becker was elected to three consecutive terms)."

The following table shows the differences that separated some of the principal nominees on the party ticket over the years:

timely tips for the HALLOWEEN HOSTESS

NEW YORK (ED) — The night is black; the wind chills your bones; eerie voices echo through the halls and ghoulish faces suddenly appear to scare the stuffings out of one and all! Don't look now, but Halloween is creeping up — and the smart hostess will prepare herself well in advance of this centuries-old holiday.

You don't need amulets, good luck charms or friendly witches to chase the bad ones away, but you do need plenty of cookies, pretzels, potato chips and candy for the motley crew that will soon be visiting your door. And if you really want to treat that wild assortment of pirates, ghosts, and goblins, plan a traditional Halloween party based on these easy-does-it ideas:

For unusual and effective decorations, try a gigantic Jack-O-Lantern with miniature Jacks for each guest. Your Florists' Transworld Delivery experts will be able to supply a bewitched arrangement of chrysanthemums and wheat to fill the pumpkins—which the children will carve according to their own particular fancy.

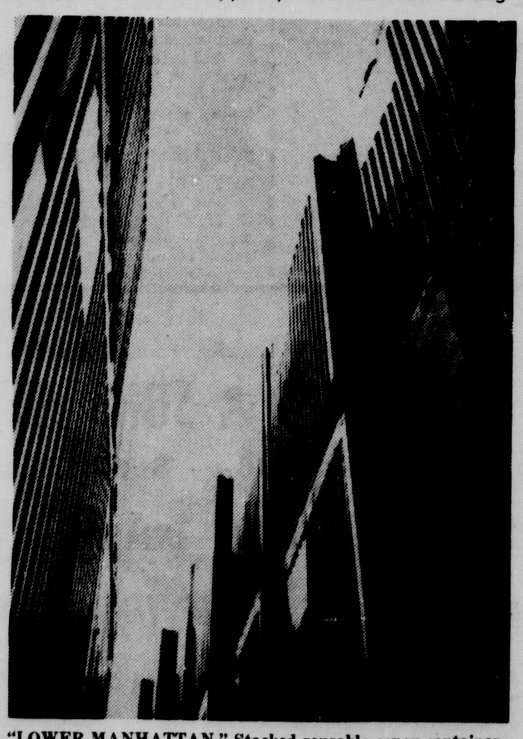

To spread the ghostly flavor of the occasion to every nook and cranny, place autumn leaves and spidermums wherever your guests might look — entwined around a broom in the corner, or hanging from a chandelier in the living room. For an adult party, a centerpiece of fruits and flowers surrounding a giant candle is especially festive. Or, if the light is dimmed by colored bulbs, your FTD florist may suggest foregoing the candle, and arrange a centerpiece in the Jack-O-Lantern base instead.

Entertainment is easy with everyone in such a good mood, and the traditional apple bobbing is a must every October 31 eve: But if you want to put a little spice into your party, FTD florists suggest trying this romantic game: Attach a slip of paper with the initial of each girl's future lover to a "football" mum corsage, then have the young ladies pick one at random and announce which letter is theirs. The fun increases when the secret hides behind a mum with a Jack-O-Lantern face.

Remember, now, avoid black cats; don't break any mirrors, don't walk under ladders — and do have a wonderful Halloween!

WHEN SCHOOL BELLS RING, mothers sing, especially if their children's wardrobes are easy to care for and inexpensive. The outfits shown have an added bonus. The boy's complete outfit costs just $11.03 and includes sturdy oxfords, stretch socks, chino slacks and a durable press shirt. Included in the girl's wardrobe, at a cost of $10.26, is a durable press cotton dress, stretch knee-hi's, penny loafers and a chain bag.

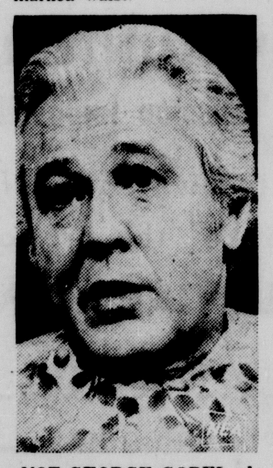

"LOWER MANHATTAN." Stacked reusable conex containers give the appearance of skyscrapers in a service area of the 2d Logistical Command in Okinawa. THIGH HIGH boots are a fashion forecast from Paris. French designer Durer predicts women will be booted more than ever before.

OPULENT — Eastern-inspired at home pajamas by Cleopatra Broumand are cut from plushy cotton velvet dipped in a rich chocolate brown. Luxuriously ornamented in gold braid and jewels, the sophisticated design features a deep decolletage and carefully marked waist.

NOT GEORGE GOBEL although there is a resemblance. This is noted criminal lawyer Melvin Belli as he appears in his acting debut on an episode of the "Star Trek" TV series.

BELL-RINGER — Schooldays '68 signal the return to femininity in teen-age fashions. An apt example is this crisp cotton dress in brown and white pin dots. Styled with a drawstring empire waist, it features a long-pointed collar and wide cuffs in contrasting white. By Ingenue of California.

Natural Gas Assigned New Price Ceilings

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Power Commission imposed Wednesday a three-level system of ceiling prices for natural gas produced in southern Louisiana, the nation's largest natural gas field.

The FPC estimated its decision would mean rate reductions totaling some $40 million a year.

The Southern Louisiana area produces 31 per cent of all natural gas sold interstate. Its gas is used in 28 states and the District of Columbia, an area including more than 70 per cent of the nation's population.

It was the FPC's second decision setting prices for an entire area and comes on the heels of Supreme Court approval of its historic Permian Basin ruling.

As in the Permian Basin case, the FPC set one price for "old" gas contracted before Jan. 1, 1961—and a higher price for "new" gas, contracted after that date.

But in a new departure, it also set a still higher price on future gas, sold under contracts dated Oct. 1, 1968, or later.

These ceiling prices on old, new and future gas were fixed at 18.5 cents per thousand cubic feet, 19.5 cents and 20 cents, respectively.

Gas derived from oil wells or as residue after removal of liquids was included under the old-gas price. And gas not subject to the Louisiana production tax was priced 1.5 cents lower in each category.

The commission said its multiprice system offers "the best opportunity to provide the necessary incentives for continued exploration for future gas while avoiding excessive prices for gas already dedicated."

Missouri is one of the states receiving gas from the Louisiana fields.

Chrysler Rolls Back Price Hike

DETROIT (AP) - Chrysler Corp., first of the U. S. auto companies to report increased prices on its new 1969 cars, has rolled back the prices which had been criticized by President Johnson.

Chrysler said its new price increase would figure out to a list price increase of about $52 a car or 1.8 per cent, compared with the $84 or 2.9 per cent which it announced Sept. 16.

Ann Landers

Wife Needs Emotional Support of Husband

Dear Ann Landers: I am engaged to marry a young man I have gone with for two years. Vern's mother disliked me intensely from the moment we met. His father acts as if I don't exist I've tried very hard to win them over but I have failed miserably.

To please Vern's family I joined their church. I used to wear my hair long until his mother suggested I cut it. She insists on helping me select clothes because she says I have no taste. I stopped wearing pearlized nail polish because she said it looked cheap.

It is agony to have dinner with Vern's parents because of the long periods of silence. Last night I attempted to make some small talk and Vern's mother said, "Why don't you stop babbling? I was so hurt I almost cried.

Vern's older brother married a girl they consider "inferior" socially and intellectually. Her Life has been hell. I love Vern very much but I'm beginning to wonder if I have the strength to marry into this family. What do you think?- PLAIN JAYNE

Dear Jayne: You don't say boo about Vern's attitude. What does he say when his parents put you down? Does he just sit there like a wart on a pickle? If so, you're going to wind up alongside your future sister-in-law. The key to your future with Vern lies in his ability to give you the emotional support you need to withstand his parents' hostility. If you can count on him, say "yes" -- otherwise, forget it.

Dear Ann Landers: A close relative spends a great deal of time in our home. He is twice my age and I hesitate to be disrespectful. However, our children are now 5, 7 and 9 and they pick up words easily.

This relative calls certain racial groups by names which I abhor -- Mop, Kike, Chink, Spic, Spade, Hunkie and so on. I have given him dirty looks but he ignores me. My husband says it isn't worth the trouble I might run into if I hit him head on. What do you say? --- MIDWESTERNER

Dear Mid: I say clobber the ignoramus. Such talk should not be tolerated. Children learn a great deal more from example than from instruction. If you want them to be good Americans, teach them to respect all people.

Dear Ann Landers: You have written a lot about alcoholism as a sickness. What about cheating fathers?Is that a sickness, too?

My father is 44, good-looking, appears to be younger than his age and I always thought he and my mother were very happy. Last year my mother confided in me that my father has been running around with another woman. Since I learned of his unfaithfulness I have been unable to be civil to him. Our home life is horrible.

Don't tell me to talk it over with anyone. I'm too ashamed. Please tell me what to do. I feel so helpless. -- ABC

Dear A: There is nothing you can do, which is why it's unfortunate your mother told you. She should have "confided in" someone else if she felt the need to unburden herself. A clergyman or a counselor would have been more judicious choices.

Give in or lose him . . . when a guy gives you this line, look out! For tips on how to handle the super sex salesman, check Ann Landers. Read her booklet, "Necking And Petting- What Are The Limits?" Dear Editor:

In many congressional districts Governor Wallace will command a high vote for President, although his party is not offering a candidate for the House. If Republicans will become very active for their candidate for Congress in such districts, they will win some House seats they had not hoped to win, along with some treasured Senate seats. A Republican victory giving them the organization of the House will, for the first time, give the chairmanship of committees to Republican statesmen who have been in Congress for a long time and have a great knowledge of government. The vast majority of voters who vote for Wallace for President will prefer constructive Republican Congressional candidates over their Democrat opponents. Whoever wins the Presidency will then have to work with the constructive House which can be elected by winning 30 additional seats.

Constructively,

If You Were the Judge

Permitting Theft Does Not Constitute Consent

By Jack Strauss,
LL.B.

Detective Barney had the philosophy of letting criminals find him instead of vice versa. For example, he slumped over in a hotel lobby acting as if he had hoisted one too many in the hopes of catching a pickpocket that had been working the hotel. In short order, his deception produced results. A buxom blonde sat down beside him. When she proved to be light fingered as well as light headed, Barney arrested her on charges of larceny for lifting his wallet.

In court, Barney advised the judge: "She took my wallet with the ease that Cleopatra took Anthony. She was a real pro."

"A baby could have taken it," was the blonde's answer, "Because he let me take it. And, that makes me innocent because, obviously, a person can't be convicted of stealing something when its owner permits you to take it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict the light handed blonde of stealing Barney's wallet?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! He held that, as a general proposition, there can be no larceny when property is taken with the owner's consent. But, permitting a person to complete a larceny so that he can be arrested for the crime, concluded the judge, does not constitute a consent to the theft.

Catherine Ann Cook, Music Teacher, Dies

Catherine Ann Cook

ANN ARBOR, Mich. – Miss Catherine Ann Cook, 47, daughter of Mrs. O. T. Elder, 737 North Ranney, Sikeston, Mo., died Thursday at the University hospital.

For the nine years she taught music in Tappan junior high school, although she was a victim of Hodgkin's disease. She willed her body to the University hospital for medical research.

Services in Sikeston will be at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Nunnelee Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, Sikeston's First Methodist church pastor, in charge. Burial of the ashes will follow in the City cemetery at Sikeston.

Friends and former students will hold a memorial service Thursday in Ann Arbor.

Miss Cook was born Aug. 5, 1921, in Sikeston and was educated in the Sikeston public schools. She attended Interlochen National Music Camp in Michigan and was awarded a scholarship to Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. She graduated from Wesleyan University, Bloomington, Ill., and received her master's degree from the University of Michigan here.

During her teaching career at Tappan junior high her choir was selected in 1965 to represent the United States at the International Society for Education which met at Interlochen. She wrote the curriculum plan of music for the Ann Arbor public schools. Her compositions and choral arrangements are widely used.

In March 1964 she collaborated with the University of Michigan Choir and Symphony in the premiere presentation in the United States of "War Requiem," a contemporary work written by Benjamin Britten for the dedication of the rebuilt Conventry Cathedral. A portion of this will be heard at services Sunday.

Besides her mother, she is survived by a brother, Charles Allen Cook, Charleston, Mo.

MEDORA, Ill. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Ray Searles thrive on an interest in cowboys and Indians, although retirement keeps them near their own fireside. The energetic 80-year-old man and his 69-year-old wife, a former school teacher among the Choctaw and Cherokee Indians, stay busy with their hobbies.

His interest in pure-bred Morgan horses and their silver trappings is evident in the countless blue ribbons he has collected, and in tooled leather objects — purses, saddles, billfolds — he has made.

Mrs. Searles' hobby of collecting dolls dressed in Western attire reflects her 33 years of teaching Indians in Vian, Okla. Many of her dolls were sent by friends visiting around the world.

Body Beauties To Vie for Mr. Universe Title

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The "most beautiful body in the universe" will be selected Saturday night when 40 glistening contestants, stripped to the waist, parade before seven judges and exhibit themselves to best advantage.

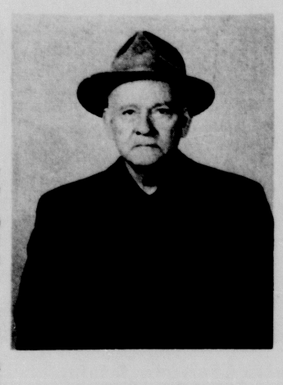

Wearing only brief, skin-tight bikini bottoms, they will be judged solely on the symmetry of their bodies. Special emphasis is placed on chest and leg development.

Such artificial devices as makeup and hairspray are strictly taboo. Only baby oil is permitted.

And only after the judges see each contestant from every angle and watch them strike a number of "classic poses" will they name "Mr. Universe of 1968."

"The contestants are judged strictly on their bodies," says Walt Framer, whose job is to stage the production. "It's like a horse show when the judges measure the forelock or the length of a tail in a dogshow."

The winner will be the man with the best over-all body symmetry, not necessarily the most heavily muscled. There also will be awards for most muscled, best legs and best chest.

Color Glory Spreads In Missouri Hills

COLUMBIA - Ever since early September there have been dabs of color dotting the countryside. Now these scattered spots of color on the hills are spreading, fusing, and increasing in intensity, so that in a short time we will be surrounded by what is perhaps the greatest natural spectacle of the year. The motorist driving along our great rivers, winding through Ozarks, or visiting our lakes or state parks sees everywhere evidence of a colorful fall rapidly approaching.

Ray Rothenberger, Extension horticulturist at the University of Missouri-Columbia, says, in the poplars, the first traces of yellow are beginning to bleed through the green. The hickories also have begun to clothe themselves in gold and brown. Even the oaks and maples are beginning to blush a faint scarlet, and the sumac and sourwoods have already discarded their green for a rich red-purple hue.

Your own area of the state and land elevation will influence the time when the peak of fall color will reach you but if you live in Missouri there is no doubt that it will find you, even though you may have only one tree. The trees seem to be making one supreme effort to excel all beauty before they shed their leaves and bed down for another winter.

This has been the fall scene ever since man has been on earth. Still we have not the words to describe the magnificent beauty of trees, nor the technical knowledge to duplicate their processes.

As an invisible brush sweeps across the landscape, we can tell what happens, we can predict when it will happen, but few of us realize that not all parts of the world enjoy the beautiful fall color that most of us in Missouri take for granted. In the northern hemisphere, the colored leaves are seen only in eastern North America, England, Western Europe, China, and parts of Japan. Only three small areas in the southern hemisphere show the flaming autumn leaves.

Many people have asked what causes these colors. They are the result of certain naturally occurring pigments. As the days become shorter and nights cooler in the autumn, the replacement of the green chlorophyll in the leaves slows up, and pigments called carotenoids show up in some plants such as the hickories, and cause brilliant yellow-to-brown colors. As the leaves become older, tannins accumulate in leaves of some species such as beech, giving bronze tomes. In still other species, such as the doogwood and sweet gum, the anthocyanin pigments develop, causing colors ranging from red to maroon and purple.

These red-purple colors are particularly prevalent under conditions which cause accumulation of sugars in the leaves. Intermediate colors, such as orange, may occur when the leaves contain a mixture of two or more of t e pigments.

Have you ever wondered why we have more brilliant colors some years than others? Some people think that the frost causes the colors to form. Actually, heavy early frosts prvent good color development by causing the leaves to fall early in the season. Colors appear due to the reduction of green pigment associated with shorter days and cool nights, and the formation of red pigments associated with reduced translocation in the tree and the conversion of carbohydrates to sugars, both of which are favored by cold weather.

The best color development seems to take place when a dry summer is followed by crisp, cool (not cold) nights. Clear, sunlit days show colors off to their best advantage, especially in the early morning or late afternoon when the sunlight passes through the leaves and seems to almostmake them glow.

Why do leaves finally fall off? An abscission layer, a double corky layer, a double corky layer, forms at the base of the leaf petiole where it joins the twig. This cuts off the movement of water and nutrients into and out of the leaf, causing it to drop off at the abscission layer, leaving a sealed scar, ready for the long winter.

Britain Blackballed Again

BRUSSELS (AP) - France again blackballed British membership in the European Common Market today.

Foreign Minister Michel Debre told his five colleagues at a meeting of the European Economic Communisty's ministerial council that France rejected a West German plan to include Britain and other applicants.

Debre said the French conclusions of December 1967 had not been modified, that France still considered the British economy could not permit entry in the common market.

Earlier, West German Foreign Minister Willy Brandt unfolded the West German plan to develop and enlarge the six-member community by including Britain, Denmark, Ireland and Norway.

Earlier, the Columbia Broadcasting System said a McCarthy representative had asked to buy a half hour of prime television time in October for "an important statement" by the senator.

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE

1969 Nova with Torque-Drive. You won't clutch at its price.

Other economy cars may act more modest than Nova but then, they have more to be modest about.

We've done the type of things to the '69 Chevy Nova that you'd expect only from more expensive cars.

Like freshening up its already sporty appearance:

Front.

Side.

And rear.

Like making the instrument panel design smarter, richer.

Like putting on new finned front brake drums.

But we don't rest Nova's case on looks and ride alone.

There's the rest it can give your left foot with exclusive Torque-Drive transmission. Torque-Drive action eliminates the clutch pedal and almost all shifting.

You just flick the lever from 1st to Hi, and that's it. No clutching ever.

What does this boon to stop-and-go driving cost? The price is low enough for you to be able to put your left foot in permanent retirement. And you can order it for any 4- or 6-cylinder model.

If you were comparing Chevy Nova with other economy cars, now you know.

There's no comparison.

Your Chevrolet dealer awaits.

Support for Big 4 Summit Meet Grows

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Support grew among lesser members of the United Nations today for a Big Four summit meeting proposed by Secretary-General U Thant in an effort to reduce East-West tensions and lessen the threat of nuclear war.

But there was no immediate reaction from the Big Four—the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France—to Thant's suggestion that their foreign ministers meet during the current U.N. General Assembly to pave the way for the top-level talks.

Thant in his annual report of the assembly Thursday night accused both the United States and the Soviet Union of resorting to strong-arm methods when they felt their security threatened.

Many of the smaller U.N. member countries agreed with these words by Thant:

"In reality, the two super powers hold the master key to peace in the world. Little wars, or wars by little states, can be contained so long as the Super Powers do not pose a threat of the big, the nuclear, the ultimate war.

"In the final analysis, there can be no solid foundation for peace in the world so long as the super powers insist on taking unilateral military action whenever they claim to see a threat to their security."

Enemy Loses 276 Men in Near Suicidal Attacks on 2 Camps

SAIGON (AP) - Enemy forces swarmed out of flooded ricelands close to the Cambodian border today and lost at least 276 of their men in almost suicidal assaults on two well defended South Vietnamese frontier camps.

The two attacking forces totaled about 900 men, and in addition to nearly a third of their men, they left large numbers of rifles, machine guns, grenade launchers, radios and other equipment on the fields of battle.

The defenders reported 11 South Vietnamese killed and 100 wounded. Four American Green Beret men in one of the camps were wounded.

Coinciding with the fierce ground assaults on the camps at Thien Ngon and Phuoc Tan, west of Tay Ninh City, enemy gunners laid a savage barrage of rocket and mortar fire on the Special Forces camp at Katum, north of the provincial capital, which was the target of an attack Wednesday in which 135 of the enemy were killed.

The attacks in Tay Ninh Province and intelligence reports of other enemy forces maneuvering in the area brought massive B52 strikes. Of 10 raids by the big bombers in the past 24 hours, nine went into Tay Ninh Province and some 800 tons of bombs fell on the principal infiltration route toward Saigon, 70 miles to the southeast.

While Tay Ninh Province was the scene of the heaviest action, U.S. headquarters reported more fighting in the northern provinces and three helicopters and a U.S. Marine jet were shot down there. Four of the helicopter crewmen and two Marine fliers were killed, and two helicopter crewmen were wounded.

The loss of the three helicopters brought to 11 the number of choppers shot down in the past week in South Vietnam.

The Marine jet and two of the choppers were downed Thursday in support of U.S. Americal Division troops who along with fighter-bombers, gunships and artillery killed 388 North Vietnamese regulars in a three-day running battle on the coastal lowlands of Quanyg Tin province.

Since the end of a two-month lull in the fighting in August, almost all significant combat has been in the northern provinces around Saigon and in the infiltration corridor northwest of the capital.

The frontal assaults on fortified camps along the border may be an enemy attempt to draw South Vietnamese and American forces away from Tay Ninh City and Saigon.

South Vietnamese headquarters estimated that about 600 men hit the Thien Ngon Special Forces camp, which was defended by South Vietnamese irregulars and about 12 American Green Beret advisers, and that another 300 hit the Phuoc Tan camp, which was garrisoned by local militiamen and an airborne unit that had recently moved in.

The camp at Phuoc Tan withstood simila- ground and rocket attacks last Thursday and Friday in which 173 of the enemy and 14 defenders were killed.

Car Strikes Cow, Four Injured

Four were injured in a single car accident Thursday at 9:05 p.m. on route 153, and one-half miles south of Hunterville.

A 1965 Oldsmobile, driven by Violetta Lane, 48, route one, Essex, struck one of a herd of Black Angus cattle.

The Lane car came up on a herd of seven or eight of the animals that had broken through a fence.

A vehicle ahead struck and injured one and went on. The Lane car struck a second animal.

It was reported by the patrol that five of the animals had to be killed. The animals were owned by Sonny Merritt and Ladell Norman, Essex route one.

Injured were Mrs. Lane with cuts and bruises on the face; three passengers all of route one, Essex, were injured - Robert Lane, 50, cuts on his face and lip; Arthur Russell, 52, possible broken nose; and Esther Russell, severe cuts on her head.

All were treated at the Dexter Memorial hospital.

Floyd Nichols, 40, Parma, received a back and neck injury in a two-car accident today at 7:55 a.m., on highway 25, at the north edge of Malden.

He was driving a 1966 Chevrolet, when he stopped for a school bus, and was struck from behind by a 1965 GMC truck, driven by Norman Oxley, 44, Malden.

Nichols was treated at Croom's clinic, Malden.

Cloture Petition Filed

WASHINGTON (AP) - A petition to cut off Senate debate on the Abe Fortas nomination was filed today after Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen delivered a heavy blow to Fortas' chances for confirmation as chief justice.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., filed the petition to invoke the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule to halt a filibuster against his motion to take up the Fortas nomination for consideration.

A vote is to be taken at 1 p.m., Tuesday on the peitition. To cut off the debate will take a two-thirds majority of senators voting.

Dirksen, is a switch of his previous position, told newsmen he would not vote for cloture. And he left open whether he still favors confirmation of Fortas.

The petition filed by Mansfield had the signatures of 23 senators, 16 Democrats and 7 Republicans. Only 16 signers were required by the rules.

Dirksen was initially an outspoken supporter of President Johnson's nomination of Fortas to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren.

And although Dirksen voted with the majority of the Senate Judiciary Committee in approving the nomination, he said there was "a strict understanding in the committee that the vote did not bind anybody."

Word that Dirksen will not vote to put the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule into effect brought from Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the reaction that "it sure as hell will" make it more difficult to break a filibuster by opponents.

Young Singers Give Vigorous Musical Reply to Protesters

A musical explosion is taking place with the organization of a Sikeston Sing-Out group. The singers are aged from 14 to those students through the second year in college.

The group is the third in Missouri.

Other groups have been organized in Kansas City and St. Louis. They will be associated with more than 400 other groups throughout, the world.

The Sikeston group is sponsored by the Optimist club and Sikeston Council of the Arts.

The singing groups, whose theme is Up With People, originated in 1965 at Mackinac Island, Mich., when youngsters determined to ban together, to produce a new image had been tarnished by the protest singers, hippies and riot inciters mainly on college campuses.

The singing group has four standards, honesty, purity, and unselfishness and love. All the music is original. Each song has its own message, pertaining to patriotism, brotherhood and peace.

The first group of 100 singers was invited to display their talent in New York, Washington D. C., the U. S. Military and naval academies.

They then divided, dropped their high school and college careers temporarily and traveled to Europe and Asia.

At the first rehearsal of the Sikeston group 42 boys and girls responded including Bob Williamson, who is majoring in music at Southeast Missouri State College, in Cape Girardeau with Mrs. W. L. Clayton as director.

The group plans to give its first performance within 60 days.

Mrs. W. L. Clayton directs the Sikeston Sing-Out group.

Rehearsals will be held on Sundays in September at the Christian church education building, and in October in the Tanner Street Church of God education building.

Any boy or girl interested in joining may call Mrs. Clayton, 471-0664.

The south and west St. Louis county group will perform here Oct. 26 before a Sikeston audience in the Junior high school auditorium and will assist the Sikeston group.

The Sikeston group will go to Memphis Oct. 5, to attend a performance by one of the singing groups.

Curtis Calls War Confession of Failure

Congressman Thomas B. Curtis, St. Louis, Republican candidate for United States Senator, told nearly 200 in the Two Tony's banquet room that "the Vietnam war is a confession of failure."

"It could have been avoided seven years ago if the administration put the Vietnamese on their feet econically, which would have stopped Communist aggression there," he said.

"We all know that the struggles in Vietnam and Cuba were inspired by the Communists.

"Yes, the war can be stopped in six weeks, if France and Great Britain will help in blockading the port of Haiphong and stop the flow of oil and gas from Russia.

"And yet my opponent, together with leaders of the administration tell us it would lead to a third world war. How foolish can they get. It would stop the killing of an average of 100 or more of our men each week. But it can be stopped on Nov. 5, by the voice of our people."

Congressman Curtis was introduced by Gary Rust, Cape Girardeau, chairman of 10th district.

Republicans, Judge James Sickal was master of ceremonies.

Comments were made by Vernon H. Landgraf, Cape Girardeau Republican candidate for Congress in the 10th district, and Fred Steward Jr., Republican chairman of Scott county. Others seated at the head table were George Johnson, Republican candidate for county judge; Margaret Scott, candidate for prosecuting, attorney, Mrs. Rust,, Mrs. Sickal and Mrs. Steward.

Curtis flew in from St. Louis and held a press conference before the meeting at the Holiday Inn.

On law and order Curtis said:

"The Constitution outlines the safety provided the American people and was written for hundreds of years ahead of its times. We had better be speaking up for our public servants and our police, as these acts of police brutality of which they speak are generally false. We may have a handful of over-zealous lawmen.

"Let's put the people on their feet, instead of putting them on their lower anatomy," he urged in criticizing welfare programs. He called for training of the unskilled.

"We could start on an immediate 20-year tax decreasing plan, balance the budget and bring our national debt down," he said. Curtis said the 10 per cent surtax on federal income tax payments was unnecessary.

Ball Blasts At Nixon

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. AP - George W. Ball, retiring U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, plunged into the presidential campaign today with a blast at Richard M. Nixon as cynical and callous. He called Nixon's Republican runningmate, Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, a fourth rate politician and a hack.

Aiming at Nixon, Ball said: "It's important that people not forget that he was called 'Tricky Dick'. I have known him for 20 years and I remember why he got that name. The very cynicism with which he selected his running mate is a grave indication of his narrow principles. He was willing to choose a fourth rate politician and a hack to a position which could be only a heartbeat from the presidency. This demonstrated shocking callousness."

Ball predicted that Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy would come out in support of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, and that other Democratic leaders now in government posts would join the Humphrey campaign.

In a farewell news conference, Ball said he was leaving Friday night for the West Coast to consult with Humphrey on what role he could play in the campaign. He said he expected to travel with Humphrey part of the time, as an adviser, and perhaps make some television speeches.

Support for Big 4 Summit Meet Grows

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Support grew among lesser members of the United Nations today for a Big Four summit meeting proposed by Secretary-General U Thant in an effort to reduce East-West tensions and lessen the threat of nuclear war.

But there was no immediate reaction from the Big Four—the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France—to Thant's suggestion that their foreign ministers meet during the current U.N. General Assembly to pave the way for the top-level talks.

Thant in his annual report of the assembly Thursday night accused both the United States and the Soviet Union of resorting to strong-arm methods when they felt their security threatened.

Many of the smaller U.N. member countries agreed with these words by Thant:

"In reality, the two super powers hold the master key to peace in the world. Little wars, or wars by little states, can be contained so long as the Super Powers do not pose a threat of the big, the nuclear, the ultimate war.

"In the final analysis, there can be no solid foundation for peace in the world so long as the super powers insist on taking unilateral military action whenever they claim to see a threat to their security."

Enemy Loses 276 Men in Near Suicidal Attacks on 2 Camps

SAIGON (AP) - Enemy forces swarmed out of flooded ricelands close to the Cambodian border today and lost at least 276 of their men in almost suicidal assaults on two well defended South Vietnamese frontier camps.

The two attacking forces totaled about 900 men, and in addition to nearly a third of their men, they left large numbers of rifles, machine guns, grenade launchers, radios and other equipment on the fields of battle.

The defenders reported 11 South Vietnamese killed and 100 wounded. Four American Green Beret men in one of the camps were wounded.

Coinciding with the fierce ground assaults on the camps at Thien Ngon and Phuoc Tan, west of Tay Ninh City, enemy gunners laid a savage barrage of rocket and mortar fire on the Special Forces camp at Katum, north of the provincial capital, which was the target of an attack Wednesday in which 135 of the enemy were killed.

The attacks in Tay Ninh Province and intelligence reports of other enemy forces maneuvering in the area brought massive B52 strikes. Of 10 raids by the big bombers in the past 24 hours, nine went into Tay Ninh Province and some 800 tons of bombs fell on the principal infiltration route toward Saigon, 70 miles to the southeast.

While Tay Ninh Province was the scene of the heaviest action, U.S. headquarters reported more fighting in the northern provinces and three helicopters and a U.S. Marine jet were shot down there. Four of the helicopter crewmen and two Marine fliers were killed, and two helicopter crewmen were wounded.

The loss of the three helicopters brought to 11 the number of choppers shot down in the past week in South Vietnam.

The Marine jet and two of the choppers were downed Thursday in support of U.S. Americal Division troops who along with fighter-bombers, gunships and artillery killed 388 North Vietnamese regulars in a three-day running battle on the coastal lowlands of Quanyg Tin province.

Since the end of a two-month lull in the fighting in August, almost all significant combat has been in the northern provinces around Saigon and in the infiltration corridor northwest of the capital.

The frontal assaults on fortified camps along the border may be an enemy attempt to draw South Vietnamese and American forces away from Tay Ninh City and Saigon.

South Vietnamese headquarters estimated that about 600 men hit the Thien Ngon Special Forces camp, which was defended by South Vietnamese irregulars and about 12 American Green Beret advisers, and that another 300 hit the Phuoc Tan camp, which was garrisoned by local militiamen and an airborne unit that had recently moved in.

The camp at Phuoc Tan withstood similar ground and rocket attacks last Thursday and Friday in which 173 of the enemy and 14 defenders were killed.

Car Strikes Cow, Four Injured

Four were injured in a single car accident Thursday at 9:05 p.m. on route 153, and one-half miles south of Hunterville.

A 1965 Oldsmobile, driven by Violetta Lane, 48, route one, Essex, struck one of a herd of Black Angus cattle.

The Lane car came up on a herd of seven or eight of the animals that had broken through a fence.

A vehicle ahead struck and injured one and went on. The Lane car struck a second animal.

It was reported by the patrol that five of the animals had to be killed. The animals were owned by Sonny Merritt and Ladell Norman, Essex route one.

Injured were Mrs. Lane with cuts and bruises on the face; three passengers all of route one, Essex, were injured - Robert Lane, 50, cuts on his face and lip; Arthur Russell, 52, possible broken nose; and Esther Russell, severe cuts on her head.

All were treated at the Dexter Memorial hospital.

Floyd Nichols, 40, Parma, received a back and neck injury in a two-car accident today at 7:55 a.m., on highway 25, at the north edge of Malden.

He was driving a 1966 Chevrolet, when he stopped for a school bus, and was struck from behind by a 1965 GMC truck, driven by Norman Oxley, 44, Malden.

Nichols was treated at Croom's clinic, Malden.

Cloture Petition Filed

WASHINGTON (AP) - A petition to cut off Senate debate on the Abe Fortas nomination was filed today after Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen delivered a heavy blow to Fortas' chances for confirmation as chief justice.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., filed the petition to invoke the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule to halt a filibuster against his motion to take up the Fortas nomination for consideration.

A vote is to be taken at 1 p.m., Tuesday on the peitition. To cut off the debate will take a two-thirds majority of senators voting.

Dirksen, is a switch of his previous position, told newsmen he would not vote for cloture. And he left open whether he still favors confirmation of Fortas.

The petition filed by Mansfield had the signatures of 23 senators, 16 Democrats and 7 Republicans. Only 16 signers were required by the rules.

Dirksen was initially an outspoken supporter of President Johnson's nomination of Fortas to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren.

And although Dirksen voted with the majority of the Senate Judiciary Committee in approving the nomination, he said there was "a strict understanding in the committee that the vote did not bind anybody."

Word that Dirksen will not vote to put the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule into effect brought from Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the reaction that "it sure as hell will" make it more difficult to break a filibuster by opponents.

Young Singers Give Vigorous Musical Reply to Protesters

A musical explosion is taking place with the organization of a Sikeston Sing-Out group. The singers are aged from 14 to those students through the second year in college.

The group is the third in Missouri.

Other groups have been organized in Kansas City and St. Louis. They will be associated with more than 400 other groups throughout, the world.

The Sikeston group is sponsored by the Optimist club and Sikeston Council of the Arts.

The singing groups, whose theme is Up With People, originated in 1965 at Mackinac Island, Mich., when youngsters determined to ban together, to produce a new image had been tarnished by the protest singers, hippies and riot inciters mainly on college campuses.

The singing group has four standards, honesty, purity, and unselfishness and love. All the music is original. Each song has its own message, pertaining to patriotism, brotherhood and peace.

The first group of 100 singers was invited to display their talent in New York, Washington D. C., the U. S. Military and naval academies.

They then divided, dropped their high school and college careers temporarily and traveled to Europe and Asia.

At the first rehearsal of the Sikeston group 42 boys and girls responded including Bob Williamson, who is majoring in music at Southeast Missouri State College, in Cape Girardeau with Mrs. W. L. Clayton as director.

The group plans to give its first performance within 60 days.

Mrs. W. L. Clayton directs the Sikeston Sing-Out group.

Rehearsals will be held on Sundays in September at the Christian church education building, and in October in the Tanner Street Church of God education building.

Any boy or girl interested in joining may call Mrs. Clayton, 471-0664.

The south and west St. Louis county group will perform here Oct. 26 before a Sikeston audience in the Junior high school auditorium and will assist the Sikeston group.

The Sikeston group will go to Memphis Oct. 5, to attend a performance by one of the singing groups.

Curtis Calls War Confession of Failure

Congressman Thomas B. Curtis, St. Louis, Republican candidate for United States Senator, told nearly 200 in the Two Tony's banquet room that "the Vietnam war is a confession of failure."

"It could have been avoided seven years ago if the administration put the Vietnamese on their feet econically, which would have stopped Communist aggression there," he said.

"We all know that the struggles in Vietnam and Cuba were inspired by the Communists.

"Yes, the war can be stopped in six weeks, if France and Great Britain will help in blockading the port of Haiphong and stop the flow of oil and gas from Russia.

"And yet my opponent, together with leaders of the administration tell us it would lead to a third world war. How foolish can they get. It would stop the killing of an average of 100 or more of our men each week. But it can be stopped on Nov. 5, by the voice of our people."

Congressman Curtis was introduced by Gary Rust, Cape Girardeau, chairman of 10th district.

Republicans, Judge James Sickal was master of ceremonies.

Comments were made by Vernon H. Landgraf, Cape Girardeau Republican candidate for Congress in the 10th district, and Fred Steward Jr., Republican chairman of Scott county. Others seated at the head table were George Johnson, Republican candidate for county judge; Margaret Scott, candidate for prosecuting, attorney, Mrs. Rust, Mrs. Sickal and Mrs. Steward.

Curtis flew in from St. Louis and held a press conference before the meeting at the Holiday Inn.

On law and order Curtis said:

"The Constitution outlines the safety provided the American people and was written for hundreds of years ahead of its times. We had better be speaking up for our public servants and our police, as these acts of police brutality of which they speak are generally false. We may have a handful of over-zealous lawmen.

"Let's put the people on their feet, instead of putting them on their lower anatomy," he urged in criticizing welfare programs. He called for training of the unskilled.

"We could start on an immediate 20-year tax decreasing plan, balance the budget and bring our national debt down," he said. Curtis said the 10 per cent surtax on federal income tax payments was unnecessary.

Ball Blasts At Nixon

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. AP - George W. Ball, retiring U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, plunged into the presidential campaign today with a blast at Richard M. Nixon as cynical and callous. He called Nixon's Republican runningmate, Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, a fourth rate politician and a hack.

Aiming at Nixon, Ball said: "It's important that people not forget that he was called 'Tricky Dick'. I have known him for 20 years and I remember why he got that name. The very cynicism with which he selected his running mate is a grave indication of his narrow principles. He was willing to choose a fourth rate politician and a hack to a position which could be only a heartbeat from the presidency. This demonstrated shocking callousness."

Ball predicted that Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy would come out in support of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, and that other Democratic leaders now in government posts would join the Humphrey campaign.

In a farewell news conference, Ball said he was leaving Friday night for the West Coast to consult with Humphrey on what role he could play in the campaign. He said he expected to travel with Humphrey part of the time, as an adviser, and perhaps make some television speeches.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

We are not a bit bothered about the head of anyone of the three tickets to be voted on in November.

But we are worried about the success of the Democratic State ticket from Senator Tom Eagleton through Governor Hearnes, Jim Kirkpatrick, et all.

They need finincing, your opportunity to help them is Saturday evening September 28th at the Democratic Bootheel Rally in the Sikeston Armory where the entire ticket other than the candidates for President and Vice President will be present.

We have been reliably informed that none of the money raised at this affair will go to the National party, all will be in behalf of the State and local candidates.

Come out and hear Governor Hearnes deliver the principle address and have a good time. Tickets can be secured from Frank Ferrell ticket chairman, Bill Lewis Scott County committee chairman or at the door, only $10.00 with free "bootheel tea."

Sure its worth it.

IS A DEPRESSION THE ONLY WAY TO STOP INFLATION?

We can't say it any better than do Warner & Swasey in their latest message.

A depression would do it, for sure.

Let enough people lose faith in America's future progress, and they'll stop buying. Goods then accumulate, workers are discharged; then they stop buying so more are laid off - and the depression is on. Since you don't raise the price of goods that don't sell, inflation is stopped.

Don't let anyone tell you government would rescue us by pouring out money. Printing press money (which is all they'd have) is the most deadly, ruinous inflation of all.

But if workmen would produce more and so earn every dollar of wage, if government would cut out waste and so cut taxes, if business would respond by holding down prices - then inflation would be stopped in the right way. It takes teamwork (isn't that supposed to be truly American?); it marks the end of the "somebody-else-not-me" selfishness.

Shouldn't government which is supposed to represent us all, be the leader?

MAJOR OBSTACLES FOR THE DEMOCRATS

Should Southeast Missouri Democrats be complacent about the effort to be made to elect Republicans in this state this year, let them consider the work that already is underway.

In the past week, major policy papers, speeches and public statements have been issued by Thomas Curtis, Lawrence Roos, John Danforth and Vernon Landgraf. These men, all Republicans, are seeking election as Missouri's U.S. Senator, Governor, Attorney General and Tenth District Congressman.

The mailings have not bee confined to one or two pieces; rather the volume was heavy, with more effort indicated in the future. All of this points to major activity by the Republicans, and the volume in recent days is heavier than at the peak of many previous campaigns.

A good many Republicans in Missouri are convinced this is their year; they believe that the disarray of the Democratic party at the national level will aid them at the state level, and common sense dictates they have a point.

Although Democrats have, in recent years, outnumbered Republicans in Missouri by a margin of three-to-one, there is considerable evidence that 1968 will be a unique election for several reasons. Not the least of these reasons is Alabama's George Wallace, whose bid for the presidency was once considered little more than a joke. But Wallace now has a spot on the general election ticket, and his American Independent party can be expected to drain off considerable support the Democrats might have gained by tradition and habit. We believe Wallace's candidacy in Missouri will work against the Democrats more than the Republicans, the latter possessing a hard-core of voters that will not be inclined to bolt the GOP ticket.

Although Democratic pluralities have long been taken for granted in Missouri, this is one year when nothing can or should be assumed.

With the presence of George Wallace in Missouri and the unparalleled flurry of Republican efforts already established as fact, the Democrats would be foolish indeed if they believe they will retain state and federal offices without a major effort.

Nothing is going to be easy this year for the Democrats — at the national, state or local level.

BRING BACK FLY—PAPER?

Autumn is here, the time of year when damp and chilly spells bring flies indoors in quest of comfort and warmth, and the question arises: What's become of old-fashioned fly-paper?

There was a time when it dangled in curly strips from ceiling fixtures or lay inconspicuously in flat sheets in various corners of dining establishments and the home. But with the advent of DDT and other high-powered insecticide sprays the effective and utilitarian fly-paper has gone the way of the running-board and the base rocker.

The presence of numerous flies on the wing in public dining places suggests that no matter how thoroughly premises are sprayed, there are always new flies coming in from outside to roam unmolested.

Anything so crudely revolting as a fly-swatter would be unthinkable in a modern restaurant, as would another anachronism, the screen-and-bottle contraptions once used to trap flies.

Old-time fly-paper may be neither decorative nor appetizing. But it did the job of putting flies out of circulation in an effective manner, and seems preferable on all three counts of health, utility and esthetic appeal to the alternative nuisance - the flies themselves.

PAYMENTS TO DISPLACED BUSINESS

Most of us have seen mute evidence across the country as we travel the highways where businesses of all types have been left high - and dry by re-location of these highways.

However, relief for small businesses in the path of the Federal bulldozer is contained in a new Federal Aid Highway Act, sponsored by Sen. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, that is now law.

While business firms eliminated by highway construction programs have received compensation to help in setting up at a new location, reimbursement for the costs of moving have previously been held to a minimum of $3,000.

Surveys conducted at Congressional request among those who had been displaced by highway construction resulted in a report that in many cases the $3,000 limitation was inadequate to cover the costs of moving, especially among small manufacturers, laundry and dry cleaning establishments and other operations requiring the moving of heavy bulky equipment.

Under the new law, the full moving costs will be paid for, or if the displaced owner elects not to move to a new location, he can receive a cash settlement in lieu of moving costs.

Also included is a provision giving long-term, low-interest loans from the Small Business Administration to those firms damaged by Federal non-highway programs.

Furthermore, the Secretary of Transportation shall not approve any project for Federal- aid highways that will displace a business unless the State agrees to make relocation payments and provide relocation advisory assistance, etc.

Until July 1, 1970, the Federal government will assume 100 per cent of the first $25,000 of relocation payments to any single person. The reason for this is to provide one and a half years for some of the States to enact laws that will permit these States to participate in the Federal-aid highway program.

And so a wrong has been corrected which has affected the little guy caught in the squeeze.

NEW YORK (AP) - Britain's "ideal barmaid" is visiting here to see how the lads behind the mahogany on this side of the Atlantic pour the sauce.

"They're quick," admitted Margaret Winfield, "but they waste a lot. With what they spill I could make another drink. If a drop goes on the floor, it's no good to anyone, is it?"

Barmaids are traditional in England, and Margaret had a real battle of the taps to win the title of pub queen of the tight little isles. She won over 3,000 contestants.

"We were judged on personal appearance, drink-mixing skill, tidiness, and friendliness—how well we could chaff the customers," she said.

Margaret is endowed with a robust humor and robust proportions. She is 29, 5 feet 9, weighs 11 stone—or 154 pounds. She has dark eyes and a crown of pale ale-colored hair.

Married to a lorry driver—they have two children—Margaret reigns during the day over the Eagle Pub, not far from London, which is managed by her mother. She started pulling the pub taps at 15, now gets $14.55 for a 33-hour work week, and is completely happy with her lot in life.

"Mum says I'm worth 20 times my pay," she said. "Over there the pay is all you get. There are no tips, although the customers stand you to a treat now and then.

"I have done other kinds of work. I managed a baker's shop for a time, but I missed the pub and the chaffing.

"I love the atmosphere of a pub. Once you've been in it for a while you can't get away from it. You always have someone to talk to, and to make happy if they feel a bit down-hearted.

"Nearly every pub has one or two barmaids. Single girls like the job because they can always get plenty of dates, and the unhappily married girls like the job for—well, the same reason."

Many pensioners kill the long hours of retirement at her pub, and merry, warm-hearted Margaret likes to mother these lonely, time-tossed-away men.

"They talk about their memories of days gone by, the cost of living, and what's in the news," she said.

"We don't have very many Casanovas. British men don't pinch much. They want to kiss your cheek or stroke your arm. If one does get a bit fresh, I can always stop him by asking, '"Ow's your missus?'"

She wouldn't know how to mix you a bullshot or a sidecar, probably, but she is adept at pulling a pig's ear, or serving a dog's nose, a mother-in-law, a granny, or wallop and wompo.

A pig's ear is the Cockney term for beer. A dog's nose is gin with a beer chaser. A mother-in-law is a mixture of "stout and bitter" brew, granny a mixture of "old and mild." And wallop and wompo are kinds of ale.

Among the items to be checked on vehicles presented for inspection under the State's Motor Vehicle Inspection Law are the brakes. Adequate and equalized brakes are very important from the standpoint of safety, otherwise your vehicle may not be able to stop in an emergency. At the time of inspection, the inspector-mechanic will check the foot and emergency or parking brakes to determine their sufficiency and adjustment.

The foot brake must be able to stop a normal passenger car within 25 feet when the vehicle is moving 20 miles per hour. The brakes may be tested in a road test or with a brake testing machine. The brake pedal will be checked for reserve height. Approxiamtely one-fifth of the total available pedal travel must remain when the pedal is depressed. The brake pedal height must be maintained for one minute to pass inspection.

One front wheel and drum will be removed on all passenger cars and commercial motor vehicles licensed for a gross weight of 12,000 pounds or less. This includes pickup trucks. The drum is inspected for contamination, cracks, scoring or burning. The condition and the remaining thickness of the brake lining will also be checked and an examination for any leakage in the master and wheel cylinder will be made by the inspector-mechanic.

The vacuum system on power brake vehicles is to be check for leaks, clogs or restrictions.

Two sets of adequate brakes are required under the Missouri Motor Vehicle Law. In addition to the foot brake, the emergency or parking brake must be functioning.

STUDY OF THE FULBRIGHT RECORD

When the public tries to study the record of Sen. J. W. Fulbright they find it obscured by masses of nondescript verbiage that form a ream of riddles and defy understanding. Fulbright has the highest ADA ratings of any Arkansas lawmaker. In non-election years he really votes his true feelings of giving up U. S. sovereignty and "building bridges" to dictators of communist countries. Like the chameleon that changes his colors to match the background, Fulbright earns an ADA ratings of 53 in the first session of the 88th Congress while the senior sentaor John McClellan rates zero with ADA. Then, just before he has to face the Arkansas electorate, Fulbright's ADA rating falls to 38, which is still the highest ADA rating in Arkansas.

Between election years Fulbright pushes for spending U.S. tax money on foreign give-aways and for the Fulbright programs to send the nation's brightest young minds to foreign colleges for infection with the same leftist philosophy that afflicts him. Few Arkansas citizens will hear him boast of how much of their tax money goes for these Fulbright scholarships for student exchange. Since the program is operated by the Department of State it is no surprise that Fulbright gets the opportunity to praise Yugoslavia, run by Red dictator Tito, when that communist nation joins in the program. Other communist or pro-communist dictatorships participating in the Fulbright programs, which probably would not meet with approval of Arkansas voters, include Nasser's Egypt, Poland and Rumania.

There are the kind of people Fulbright demands that our government should be "reasonable" with an spend tax money on so that they will stop being frightened of "imperialist U.S.A." Fulbright and his cohorts wonder why the voters are all upset about crime, riots in the streets and surrenders to communist bullying. HLH

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Republican congressman Bob Wilson cheated on his vote; He was in California while pretending to be voting in Washington; Unobtrusively Wilson admitted his "error"

WASHINGTON--The chief money-raiser for the Republican Congressional campaign committee, Rep. Bob Wilson of San Diego, was caught redhanded recently in the worst type of cheating. He got his name recorded as Present and voting in the House of Representatives when actually he was back in Southern Califronia.

Wilson has now been forced to acknowledge his "error." However, he has made no apology to his congressional colleagues and the house leadership is trying to hush up the whole deal. There is no move so far to censure or discipline Wilson, though some of his colleagues say privately that the highly unethical manner in which he had himself registered as voting when he did not vote compares with some of the irregularities of Harlem's Adam Clayton Powell. Powell took all sorts of trips at the taxpayers' expense, but was quite open about it. He never tried to deceive the public into thinking he was in Washington when he was not. Powell was expelled.

Wilson's transgression was discovered when California colleagues noted in the San Diego union that Wilson was in San Diego on Sept. 9 and 10 attending money-raising functions. He gave an interview to the San Diego union on Sept. 9 and spoke at the Point Loma Optimist Club on Sept. 10.

Yet the Congressional record, which is supposed to contain an accurate account of Congressmen present and voting, showed that Wilson was in Washington. It showed him answering eight out of 13 roll-call votes on the very same days he was reported in San Diego.

On Sept. 9, for instance, the house voted on a farm marketing bill aimed at helping farmers in case of crop failures such as have occurred in California. Page 8360 of the Congressional record lists "Wilson, Bob" as voting against the bill. His illegal absentee vote helped defeat the bill.

WILSON SQUIRMS OUT

Arends got on the long-distance telephone immediately. He demanded that Wilson hustle back to Washington. Wilson returned, though not until after he had missed more roll-call votes on Sept. 16.

When he got back he made an inconspicous public admission of error. He got up on the House Floor and said: ,'Mr. Speaker, I was not present in the House on September 9, 10, and 16 when there were certain votes recorded for me on those days. I ask unanimous consent that the permanent record and journal be changed to show that I was not present."

In the tradition of the "Gentlmen's Club" which prevails in the House, no objection is ever made to a unanimous request. Furthermore, only two or three members knew what was up. Wilson's unobtrusive correction sailed through unnoticed.

Subsequently chief tally clerk Thomas Cooke was made the scapegoat. He was relieved of duty. However, it seems highly unlikely that Cooke is the culprit, and House Clerk Pat Jennings made it clear that he did not think so.

"I'm not going to let Tom Cooke be the fall guy for Bob Wilson or anyone else," said Jennings. Other Congressmen point out that the tally clerk merely listens to voices as the roll is called, and a friend of Wilson's could easily have answered the roll for him. Tally clerk Cooke would not have known whether it was Wilson's voice or someone else's.

Inquiry by this column shows that not in recent memory was a congressman cribbed regarding his absenteeism in the House. Some Congressmen will ride all night on "the red eye special," the allnight plane from California, to get to Washington in time to be recorded for a vote. Another Republican, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, the Lady from Maine, has sometimes driven all night from Maine to be present for a vote. Mrs. Smith has had the remarkable record of having being consistently present for 2,941 roll-call senate votes and only missed recently when taken to the hospital in New York for an arthritic condition from which she is still suffering.

It will be interesting to see what, if anything, the House ethics committee does about Wilson's cribbing. Will it censure him or will it follow the precedents outlined in the book "The Case Against Congress"? our prediction is that the shameful ehtics prevailing in the Gentlemen's Club will continue.

GOP CAMPAIGN CHEST

If you look over the records of campaign contributions to re-elect Congressmen, you can understand why Rep. Bob Wilson wanted to be in Southern California, yet have his vote recorded in Washington too. The GOP campaign chest is flush and overflowing. Thanks in part to Wilson, there's close to $5.5 million in the Republican Kitty for House elections; Republican Congressional committee, $3,454,000; Congressional Boosters club, $1,525,000; and the right-wing United Republicans of America, $500,000.

In contrast, Democratic fund raisers have brought in about $802,000.

What Wilson is aiming at is 30 to 50 new seats, which would give them control of the House. To this end they plan to dump even more money up to $100,000 in certain key districts.

This doesn't tell the whole story, however. Republicans also get money from outside sources such as the American Medical Association and the business and industrial action committee. However, Wilson, in his "spare time," has done a terrific job of money-raising.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

WALLACE BREAKS THROUGH: Wins Public Backing of National Union Chief: Runs Ahead in Old Militant CIO Territory.

Grand Rapids, Mich.: — A lot of old pros crisscrossing this land are taking a second, third and fourth look at George Wallace. Instead of peaking down, he's peaking up.

The Alabaman even has won the official endorsement of an AFL—CIO national union president.

In steel patches and along the gasoline alleys and used car lot "parkways," the Alabaman is no freak. He's a phenomenon. In districts where some of us have covered some of the roughest, toughest, most militant mass strikes, George Wallace could revive the Workingmen's Party, dead 140 years, and whip up vote-getting storms.

In districts where the old CIO marched its battalions against legions of police, waves of tear gas and forests of truncheons and seized plants three decades ago, the American Independent Party's nominee is outrunning Hubert Humphrey and Richard Nixon for the "working stiff's" vote.

Over in the "steel belt," down by Homestead, Pa., and on to Pittsburgh, where 50 years ago Socialists and Communists led squads of men in the new unionism against the "corporations," George Wallace is polling between 65 and 92 per cent of the steel workers support -- depending on the plants.

It's more than backlash, frontlash racial appeals, demands for "law and order," or anger against the "Eastern establishment."

It's the restless, silent, national protest vote. And it's going to the racy man from Montgomery instead of the confident front runner, Richard Nixon.

George Wallace even has cracked the national leadership front of the AFL-CIO. Not much of a split. But still a crack. He has a minority of one among the 129 national and international union leaders.

It all popped onto the political scene some days ago when Mr. Labor, George Meany, spoke to some of his colleagues.

"I would have liked to announce that we have the unanimous vote of our entire 129 presidents for Hubert Humphrey," said the stocky national leader. "But there is one president who is for Wallace. But this still gives us a fine majority of 128 to one."

This is not the point. The massive labor Federation always goes with the Democratic nominee like Proctor goes with Gamble.

What disturbed insiders was the defection to the ultra - right of one of their own.

Albert E. Hutchinson, general president of the 14,000-member International Assn. of Heat and Frost Insulators and Asbestos Workers, now backs Mr. Wallace. He has arranged for contributions to the campaign. But this has not stirred any revolt among the Asbestos union's 120 locals.

Furthermore, Mr. Hutchinson did it under spotlights. On Thursday night, Sept. 19, the union chief strode to the stage of the huge Montgomery (Ala.) Garrett Coliseum, took his place at the side of candidate Wallace, and before 15,000 roaring, $10-a-seat spectators, loudly endorsed the American Independent Party's nominee.

For the moment, this is better than the Nixon campaign has done.

Inside labor's leadership that is. The Republican candidate has been ambivalent toward wooing the national union chiefs.

He'd like some of them to swing with him. But he's not going hat in hand. Nor is he using the old Kennedy pressure tactics - the one which always wound up with, "if you're not with us, you'll be at the end of a long line waiting to get into the White House."

There have been Republican feelers. Some of the nation's top labor men -- each with powerful political machines stretching across this country - have been approached. Some of the contacts have been made by Senator Dirksen, who has maritime labor friends. Some have come from congressmen who have straightened out bits of legislation for labor leaders privately, while publicly feuding with them. It happens every day.

But there's been no Nixon breakthrough, though Mr. Wallace now has official support from several statewide labor chiefs and some 150 union locals, as well as the man from asbestos.

Everybody is worried. The Nixon people now feel that the American Independent Party is drawing off vital votes in tough industrial states where every tally is needed to balance off the black bloc, now quielty in Mr. Humphrey's corner.

The Humphrey people are aghast at the desertion by men for whom the Vice President has fought daily since he gave up mixing prescriptions. So Humphrey, running scared on the union vote, is scheduling more labor audiences.

But most troubled are the labor leaders. A huge Wallace vote certainly gives the impression, justifiably, that the national labor chiefs have less political influence in their own ranks than does George Wallace.

This, in the 19 "right to work" states, could cost the unions considerable membership. These are the states in which a worker does not need to join a union to keep his job.

There's more riding on this campaign than the election of a president.

We are not a bit bothered about the head of anyone of the three tickets to be voted on in November.

But we are worried about the success of the Democratic State ticket from Senator Tom Eagleton through Governor Hearnes, Jim Kirkpatrick, et all.

They need finincing, your opportunity to help them is Saturday evening September 28th at the Democratic Bootheel Rally in the Sikeston Armory where the entire ticket other than the candidates for President and Vice President will be present.

We have been reliably informed that none of the money raised at this affair will go to the National party, all will be in behalf of the State and local candidates.

Come out and hear Governor Hearnes deliver the principle address and have a good time. Tickets can be secured from Frank Ferrell ticket chairman, Bill Lewis Scott County committee chairman or at the door, only $10.00 with free "bootheel tea."

IS A DEPRESSION THE ONLY WAY TO STOP INFLATION?

We can't say it any better than do Warner & Swasey in their latest message.

A depression would do it, for sure.

Let enough people lose faith in America's future progress, and they'll stop buying. Goods then accumulate, workers are discharged; then they stop buying so more are laid off - and the depression is on. Since you don't raise the price of goods that don't sell, inflation is stopped.

Don't let anyone tell you government would rescue us by pouring out money. Printing press money (which is all they'd have) is the most deadly, runious inflation of all.

But if workmen would produce more and so earn every dollar of wage, if government would cut out waste and so cut taxes, if business would respond by holding down prices - then inflation would be stopped in the right way. It takes teamwork (isn't that supposed to be truly American?); it marks the end of the "somebody-else-not-me" selfishness.

Shouldn't government which is supposed to represent us all, be the leader?

MAJOR OBSTACLES FOR THE DEMOCRATS

Should Southeast Missouri Democrats be complacent about the effort to be made to elect Republicans in this state this year, let them consider the work that already is underway.

In the past week, major policy papers, speeches and public statements have been issued by Thomas Curtis, Lawrence Roos, John Danforth and Vernon Landgraf. These men, all Republicans, are seeking election as Missouri's U.S. Senator, Governor, Attorney General and Tenth District Congressman.

The mailings have not bee confined to one or two pieces; rather the volume was heavy, with more effort indicated in the future. All of this points to major activity by the Republicans, and the volume in recent days is heavier than at the peak of many previous campaigns.

A good many Republicans in Missouri are convinced this is their year; they believe that the disarray of the Democratic party at the national level will aid them at the state level, and common sense dictates they have a point.

Although Democrats have, in recent years, outnumbered Republicans in Missouri by a margin of three-to-one, there is considerable evidence that 1968 will be a unique election for several reasons. Not the least of these reasons is Alabama's George Wallace, whose bid for the presidency was once considered little more than a joke. But Wallace now has a spot on the general election ticket, and his American Independent party can be expected to drain off considerable support the Democrats might have gained by tradition and habit. We believe Wallace's candidacy in Missouri will work against the Democrats more than the Republicans, the latter possessing a hard-core of voters that will not be inclined to bolt the GOP ticket.

Although Democratic pluralities have long been taken for granted in Missouri, this is one year when nothing can or should be assumed.

With the presence of George Wallace in Missouri and the unparalleled flurry of Republican efforts already established as fact, the Democrats would be foolish indeed if they believe they will retain state and federal offices without a major effort.

Nothing is going to be easy this year for the Democrats — at the national, state or local level.

BRING BACK FLY—PAPER?

Autumn is here, the time of year when damp and chilly spells bring flies indoors in quest of comfort and warmth, and the question arises: What's become of old-fashioned fly-paper?

There was a time when it dangled in curly strips from ceiling fixtures or lay inconspicuously in flat sheets in various corners of dining establishments and the home. But with the advent of DDT and other high-powered insecticide sprays the effective and utilitarian fly-paper has gone the way of the running-board and the base rocker.

The presence of numerous flies on the wing in public dining places suggests that no matter how thoroughly premises are sprayed, there are always new flies coming in from outside to roam unmolested.

Anything so crudely revolting as a fly-swatter would be unthinkable in a modern restaurant, as would another anachronism, the screen-and-bottle contraptions once used to trap flies.

Old-time fly-paper may be neither decorative nor appetizing. But it did the job of putting flies out of circulation in an effective manner, and seems preferable on all three counts of health, utility and esthetic appeal to the alternative nuisance - the flies themselves.

PAYMENTS TO DISPLACED BUSINESS

Most of us have seen mute evidence across the country as we travel the highways where businesses of all types have been left high - and dry by re-location of these highways.

However, relief for small businesses in the path of the Federal bulldozer is contained in a new Federal Aid Highway Act, sponsored by Sen. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, that is now law.

While business firms eliminated by highway construction programs have received compensation to help in setting up at a new location, reimbursement for the costs of moving have previously been held to a minimum of $3,000.

Surveys conducted at Congressional request among those who had been displaced by highway construction resulted in a report that in many cases the $3,000 limitation was inadequate to cover the costs of moving, especially among small manufacturers, laundry and dry cleaning establishments and other operations requiring the moving of heavy bulky equipment.

Under the new law, the full moving costs will be paid for, or if the displaced owner elects not to move to a new location, he can receive a cash settlement in lieu of moving costs.

Also included is a provision giving long-term, low-interest loans from the Small Business Administration to those firms damaged by Federal non-highway programs.

Furthermore, the Secretary of Transportation shall not approve any project for Federal- aid highways that will displace a business unless the State agrees to make relocation payments and provide relocation advisory assistance, etc.

Until July 1, 1970, the Federal government will assume 100 per cent of the first $25,000 of relocation payments to any single person. The reason for this is to provide one and a half years for some of the States to enact laws that will permit these States to participate in the Federal-aid highway program.

And so a wrong has been corrected which has affected the little guy caught in the squeeze.

A salesman, growing nervous about traveling by air, went to see a statistician one day. "Can you tell me what the odds might be against my boarding an aircraft on which somebody had hidden a bomb?"

"I can't tell you until I've analyzed the available data. Come back in a week or so."

"Certainly, the odds are 1 million to one against your getting on an aircraft with one bomb on it."

"Those are good odds. But I'm not sure they're good enough for me. I travel a good deal."

"Well, if you really want to be safe, carry a bomb with you. The odds are 1 billion to one against your boarding an aircraft with two bombs on it!"

* * *

The pilot on a Hawaii - bound air liner was asked how the flight was going. "Well, it's this way. We're lost, but we're making very good time!"

* * *

"Why didn't you tell me this plane was late when I asked you an hour ago?"

"Mister, I ain't paid to sit here and knock the airlines!"

Now there's a coin machine, guaranteed to give the customer satisfaction.

"You mean it's built so the customer can't lose his coin?"

"No, but when he kicks it, it groans!"

"Our automatic answering device is away for repairs. This is a person speaking."

Did you hear about the new office machine that takes the place of three women? Goes to washroom 26 times, makes 48 personal phone calls, takes five coffee breaks and takes up a collection every other day!

The movie producer wanted to buy the film rights from a young author of his first novel. The producer was afraid that the story might be too down-beat to please a wide audience. He decided to put the matter before Univac machine for a decision.

While the author waited anxiously in another room, the producer and two assistants fed the novel, page by page to the electronic-brain and watched its reaction. Halfway through the book author could stand the suspense no longer. He called to one of the assistants outside and asked him: "How am I doing?"

The assistant patted his shoulder encouragingly, "It looks like you're in. Univac just sent out for another bag of popcorn!"

I've found the cause of your slowdown. The big computer is shoving all the work off on the little computer.

Regarding the paperwork explosion, an employee asked: "May I throw away this paper?"

"Yes, but make three copies of it before you do."

STUDY OF THE FULBRIGHT RECORD

When the public tries to study the record of Sen. J. W. Fulbright they find it obscured by masses of nondescript verbiage that form a ream of riddles and defy understanding. Fulbright has the highest ADA ratings of any Arkansas lawmaker. In non-election years he really votes his true feelings of giving up U. S. sovereignty and "building bridges" to dictators of communist countries. Like the chameleon that changes his colors to match the background, Fulbright earns an ADA ratings of 53 in the first session of the 88th Congress while the senior sentaor John McClellan rates zero with ADA. Then, just before he has to face the Arkansas electorate, Fulbright's ADA rating falls to 38, which is still the highest ADA rating in Arkansas.

Between election years Fulbright pushes for spending U.S. tax money on foreign give-aways and for the Fulbright programs to send the nation's brightest young minds to foreign colleges for infection with the same leftist philosophy that afflicts him. Few Arkansas citizens will hear him boast of how much of their tax money goes for these Fulbright scholarships for student exchange. Since the program is operated by the Department of State it is no surprise that Fulbright gets the opportunity to praise Yugoslavia, run by Red dictator Tito, when that communist nation joins in the program. Other communist or pro-communist dictatorships participating in the Fulbright programs, which probably would not meet with approval of Arkansas voters, include Nasser's Egypt, Poland and Rumania.

There are the kind of people Fulbright demands that our government should be "reasonable" with an spend tax money on so that they will stop being frightened of "imperialist U.S.A." Fulbright and his cohorts wonder why the voters are all upset about crime, riots in the streets and surrenders to communist bullying. HLH

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Republican congressman Bob Wilson cheated on his vote; He was in California while pretending to be voting in Washington; Unobtrusively Wilson admitted his "error"

WASHINGTON–The chief money-raiser for the Republican Congressional campaign committee, Rep. Bob Wilson of San Diego, was caught redhanded recently in the worst type of cheating. He got his name recorded as Present and voting in the House of Representatives when actually he was back in Southern Califronia.

Wilson has now been forced to acknowledge his "error." However, he has made no apology to his congressional colleagues and the house leadership is trying to hush up the whole deal. There is no move so far to censure or discipline Wilson, though some of his colleagues say privately that the highly unethical manner in which he had himself registered as voting when he did not vote compares with some of the irregularities of Harlem's Adam Clayton Powell. Powell took all sorts of trips at the taxpayers' expense, but was quite open about it. He never tried to deceive the public into thinking he was in Washington when he was not. Powell was expelled.

Wilson's transgression was discovered when California colleagues noted in the San Diego union that Wilson was in San Diego on Sept. 9 and 10 attending money-raising functions. He gave an interview to the San Diego union on Sept. 9 and spoke at the Point Loma Optimist Club on Sept. 10.

Yet the Congressional record, which is supposed to contain an accurate account of Congressmen present and voting, showed that Wilson was in Washington. It showed him answering eight out of 13 roll-call votes on the very same days he was reported in San Diego.

On Sept. 9, for instance, the house voted on a farm marketing bill aimed at helping farmers in case of crop failures such as have occurred in California. Page 8360 of the Congressional record lists "Wilson, Bob" as voting against the bill. His illegal absentee vote helped defeat the bill.

WILSON SQUIRMS OUT

Arends got on the long-distance telephone immediately. He demanded that Wilson hustle back to Washington. Wilson returned, though not until after he had missed more roll-call votes on Sept. 16.

When he got back he made an inconspicous public admission of error. He got up on the House Floor and said: ,'Mr. Speaker, I was not present in the House on September 9, 10, and 16 when there were certain votes recorded for me on those days. I ask unanimous consent that the permanent record and journal be changed to show that I was not present."

In the tradition of the "Gentlmen's Club" which prevails in the House, no objection is ever made to a unanimous request. Furthermore, only two or three members knew what was up. Wilson's unobtrusive correction sailed through unnoticed.

Subsequently chief tally clerk Thomas Cooke was made the scapegoat. He was relieved of duty. However, it seems highly unlikely that Cooke is the culprit, and House Clerk Pat Jennings made it clear that he did not think so.

"I'm not going to let Tom Cooke be the fall guy for Bob Wilson or anyone else," said Jennings. Other Congressmen point out that the tally clerk merely listens to voices as the roll is called, and a friend of Wilson's could easily have answered the roll for him. Tally clerk Cooke would not have known whether it was Wilson's voice or someone else's.

Inquiry by this column shows that not in recent memory was a congressman cribbed regarding his absenteeism in the House. Some Congressmen will ride all night on "the red eye special," the all night plane from California, to get to Washington in time to be recorded for a vote. Another Republican, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, the Lady from Maine, has sometimes driven all night from Maine to be present for a vote. Mrs. Smith has had the remarkable record of having being consistently present for 2,941 roll-call senate votes and only missed recently when taken to the hospital in New York for an arthritic condition from which she is still suffering.

It will be interesting to see what, if anything, the House ethics committee does about Wilson's cribbing. Will it censure him or will it follow the precedents outlined in the book "The Case Against Congress"? our prediction is that the shameful ehtics prevailing in the Gentlemen's Club will continue.

GOP CAMPAIGN CHEST

If you look over the records of campaign contributions to re-elect Congressmen, you can understand why Rep. Bob Wilson wanted to be in Southern California, yet have his vote recorded in Washington too. The GOP campaign chest is flush and overflowing. Thanks in part to Wilson, there's close to $5.5 million in the Republican Kitty for House elections; Republican Congressional committee, $3,454,000; Congressional Boosters club, $1,525,000; and the right-wing United Republicans of America, $500,000.

In contrast, Democratic fund raisers have brought in about $802,000.

What Wilson is aiming at is 30 to 50 new seats, which would give them control of the House. To this end they plan to dump even more money up to $100,000 in certain key districts.

This doesn't tell the whole story, however. Republicans also get money from outside sources such as the American Medical Association and the business and industrial action committee. However, Wilson, in his "spare time," has done a terrific job of money-raising.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

WALLACE BREAKS THROUGH:
Wins Public Backing of National Union Chief: Runs Ahead in Old Militant CIO Territory.

Grand Rapids, Mich.: — A lot of old pros crisscrossing this land are taking a second, third and fourth look at George Wallace. Instead of peaking down, he's peaking up.

The Alabaman even has won the official endorsement of an AFL—CIO national union president.

In steel patches and along the gasoline alleys and used car lot "parkways," the Alabaman is no freak. He's a phenomenon. In districts where some of us have covered some of the roughest, toughest, most militant mass strikes, George Wallace could revive the Workingmen's Party, dead 140 years, and whip up vote-getting storms.

In districts where the old CIO marched its battalions against legions of police, waves of tear gas and forests of truncheons and seized plants three decades ago, the American Independent Party's nominee is outrunning Hubert Humphrey and Richard Nixon for the "working stiff's" vote.

Over in the "steel belt," down by Homestead, Pa., and on to Pittsburgh, where 50 years ago Socialists and Communists led squads of men in the new unionism against the "corporations," George Wallace is polling between 65 and 92 per cent of the steel workers support – depending on the plants.

It's more than backlash, frontlash racial appeals, demands for "law and order," or anger against the "Eastern establishment."

It's the restless, silent, national protest vote. And it's going to the racy man from Montgomery instead of the confident front runner, Richard Nixon.

George Wallace even has cracked the national leadership front of the AFL-CIO. Not much of a split. But still a crack. He has a minority of one among the 129 national and international union leaders.

It all popped onto the political scene some days ago when Mr. Labor, George Meany, spoke to some of his colleagues.

"I would have liked to announce that we have the unanimous vote of our entire 129 presidents for Hubert Humphrey," said the stocky national leader. "But there is one president who is for Wallace. But this still gives us a fine majority of 128 to one."

This is not the point. The massive labor Federation always goes with the Democratic nominee like Proctor goes with Gamble.

What disturbed insiders was the defection to the ultra - right of one of their own.

Albert E. Hutchinson, general president of the 14,000-member International Assn. of Heat and Frost Insulators and Asbestos Workers, now backs Mr. Wallace. He has arranged for contributions to the campaign. But this has not stirred any revolt among the Asbestos union's 120 locals.

Furthermore, Mr. Hutchinson did it under spotlights. On Thursday night, Sept. 19, the union chief strode to the stage of the huge Montgomery (Ala.) Garrett Coliseum, took his place at the side of candidate Wallace, and before 15,000 roaring, $10-a-seat spectators, loudly endorsed the American Independent Party's nominee.

For the moment, this is better than the Nixon campaign has done.

Inside labor's leadership that is. The Republican candidate has been ambivalent toward wooing the national union chiefs.

He'd like some of them to swing with him. But he's not going hat in hand. Nor is he using the old Kennedy pressure tactics – the one which always wound up with, "if you're not with us, you'll be at the end of a long line waiting to get into the White House."

There have been Republican feelers. Some of the nation's top labor men – each with powerful political machines stretching across this country – have been approached. Some of the contacts have been made by Senator Dirksen, who has maritime labor friends. Some have come from congressmen who have straightened out bits of legislation for labor leaders privately, while publicly feuding with them. It happens every day.

But there's been no Nixon breakthrough, though Mr Wallace now has official support from several statewide labor chiefs and some 150 union locals, as well as the man from asbestos.

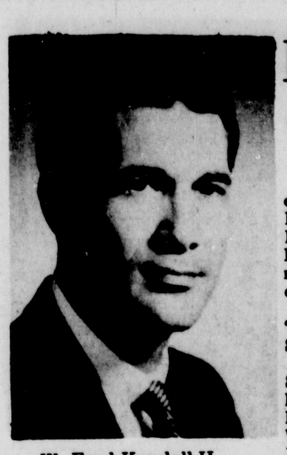

Everybody is worried. The Nixon people now feel that the American Independent Party is drawing off vital votes in tough industrial states where every tally is needed to balance off the black bloc, now quietly in Mr Humphrey's corner.

The Humphrey people are aghast at the desertion by men for whom the Vice President has fought daily since he gave up mixing prescriptions. Some Humphrey, running scared of the union vote, is scheduling more labor audiences.

But most troubled are the labor leaders. A huge Wallace vote certainly gives the impression, justifiably, that the national labor chiefs have lost political influence in their own ranks than does George Wallace.

This, in the 19 "right to work" states, could cost the unions considerable membership. These are the states in which a worker does not need to join a union to keep his job.

There's more riding on the campaign than the election of a president.

God Speakes
On Conversion.

Speaking through His Son as recorded in Matt. 18:3, God said, "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." In Matt. 7:21 He said, "Not everyone that saith unto me Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." In Christ's conversation with Nicodemus He said, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." (Jno. 3—3). Note in connection with these instructions, the statement in Acts 2:47, "And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved." See also Matt. 16:18, 19. Have you detected that each of these is equal to the same thing; entrance into the kingdom, which is the church?

(1) To be born again equals, entrance into the kingdom.

(2) To be converted equals, entrance into the kingdom.

(3) To do God's will equals, entrance into the kingdom.

(4) To be saved equals, entrance into the kingdom.

What this means is simply this: things equal to the same thing, as these are, are equal to each other. Thus, there is not as much mystery about the new birth or conversion, as some think and would have others to believe. If a person cannot understand, as some contend they cannot, the new birth, then surely he can understand what it means to do God's will; and remember, these are equal to the same thing and are therefore, equal to mean the same thing. To even further simplify the means by which man is saved from sin, we have various examples of conversion recorded in the book of Acts. In each case the people heard the gospel of Christ preached, believed in Him as the Son of God, repented of their sins, and were baptized in His name for remission of sins, or in order to be saved, born again, converted, and enter the kingdom. You should read these accounts: Acts 2:22-47; 8:1-13; 8:26-40; 9:1-18; 10:1-48; 16:14-15; 16:25-34 18:1-8; 19:1-6. Don't be affraid to investigate, it won't take long. Have you done what these people did? If not, you have not been converted to Christ. For God to save you, you must meet His conditions!!! Have you stopped to think what it will be to miss heaven, and thus cast into hell? STOP AND THINK!!!

Salad oil (but not olive) mixed with soy sauce and sweet sherry make a good marinade for flank steak that is to be broiled. If you like, you can add a cut and slightly crushed garlic clove to the marinade.

God Speakes
On Conversion.

Speaking through His Son as recorded in Matt. 18:3, God said, "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." In Matt. 7:21 He said, "Not everyone that saith unto me Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." In Christ's conversation with Nicodemus He said, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." (Jno. 3—3). Note in connection with these instructions, the statement in Acts 2:47, "And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved." See also Matt. 16:18, 19. Have you detected that each of these is equal to the same thing; entrance into the kingdom, which is the church?

(1) To be born again equals, entrance into the kingdom.

(2) To be converted equals, entrance into the kingdom.

(3) To do God's will equals, entrance into the kingdom.

(4) To be saved equals, entrance into the kingdom.

What this means is simply this: things equal to the same thing, as these are, are equal to each other. Thus, there is not as much mystery about the new birth or conversion, as some think and would have others to believe. If a person cannot understand, as some contend they cannot, the new birth, then surely he can understand what it means to do God's will; and remember, these are equal to the same thing and are therefore, equal to mean the same thing. To even further simplify the means by which man is saved from sin, we have various examples of conversion recorded in the book of Acts. In each case the people heard the gospel of Christ preached, believed in Him as the Son of God, repented of their sins, and were baptized in His name for remission of sins, or in order to be saved, born again, converted, and enter the kingdom. You should read these accounts: Acts 2:22-47; 8:1-13; 8:26-40; 9:1-18; 10:1-48; 16:14-15; 16:25-34 18:1-8; 19:1-6. Don't be affraid to investigate, it won't take long. Have you done what these people did? If not, you have not been converted to Christ. For God to save you, you must meet His conditions!!! Have you stopped to think what it will be to miss heaven, and thus cast into hell? STOP AND THINK!!!

Mrs. Robert E. Dyer

Sally Ann Faulkner And Robert E. Dyer United in Ceremony

Sally Ann Faulkner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Faulkner, became the bride of Robert E. Dyer Sept. 14, at the First Baptist church. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond R. Dyer of Independence. The Rev. James Hackney, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The center aisle of the church was carpeted in white for the occasion, with aislelabras made of greenery, white Fuji Mums, and gold velvet ribbons marking the pews. Candles were lighted by Gail Stallings and Susan Walk who were moss green gowns of Saki cloth.

Douglas Cormack, organist, accompanied Mrs. Cormack, cousin of the bride, who sang "Walk Hand in Hand" and "The Wedding Prayer".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose an gown of imported silk organza and re-embroidered Alencon lace over Angel mist taffeta. The scalloped Sebrenis neckline was highlighted with frosted pearls. Her matching head-dress of lace, seed pearls and crystal secured her tulle veil.

She carried on Edwardian bouquet of white stock miniature carnations, and Sweetheart roses, mingled with pale green caladium folliage.

Barbara Faulkner, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Connie Nowell and Melinda Morrison of Sikeston. Sharon Ray of Arkansas and Daphne Pearce of Mississippi. The maid of honor wore coin gold and the attendants worn moss green gowns of Saki cloth trimmed with lace. Their head pieces were daisies, centered with pearls.

Lori Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Green was flower girl. Her gown was styled identically to that of the honor attendant.

Donald Dyer of Ohio, served as best man for his brother. Groomsmen were Gary Dyer of Independence, Rick Philbeck of North Carolina, Gary Long of Sikeston, and Robert Shirk Jr. of Independence, Robin Weadon of Festus, cousin of the bride, served as ring bearer.

Decorations for the reception, held immediately after the ceremony, carried out the brides colors. The cake was served by an aunt of the bride, Mrs. Russell Watson, of Kansas.

Vicki Weadon was in charge of the guest book.

For her wedding trip the bride chose a soft beige and blue coat and dress ensemble, beige assessories and a pale blue orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyer will live at 1289 South Haynes, Memphis. She is a student at Methodist Hospital School of Nursing. Her husband, Robert, is attending the Memphis School of Optemetry in Memphis.

The groom's parents entertained Friday night at a rehearsal dinner held at the Travel Lodge restaurant.

Showers honoring the bride were given by Miss Connie and Nowell and Miss Melinda Morrison of Sikeston, and the student nurses at Methodist Hospital, Memphis.

Gibson In Series Tuneup Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Gibson, St. Louis' likely first game pitcher, gets his final Series tuneup tonight against the Astros. The Cards will pitch Steve Carlton Saturday and Ray Washburn on Sunday.

St. Louis and Detroit go through their final World Series tuneups as baseball's regular season draws to a close this weekend with a batting title and several positions in the standings up for grabs.

In the National League, Cincinnati's Pete Rose and Pittsburgh's Matty Alou move into their final three games tied for the batting lead at .332. The Reds are at home for a threegame series with San Francisco while the Pirates close the schedule with three in Chicago.

In addition to the batting race, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh are involved in a four-team battle for third place. The Reds occupy that spot going into the final weekend but are only one game ahead of Chicago and two up on Atlanta and Pittsburgh.

Lower in the NL standings, Los Angeles and Philadelphia are tied for seventh place and New York has a one-game lead over Houston in the battle to avoid a cellar finish.

The Phillies are at New York, Los Angeles at Atlanta and Houston at St. Louis to finish the season.

In the American League, Boston holds a one-half game edge over Cleveland in the battle for third place after the Indians absorbed a 7-1 whipping from Baltimore in the only game played Thursday.

Dave McNally won his 22nd with a six-hitter and contributed two hits, driving in one run and scoring two.

The Indians, because of a cancellation against Washington last week, have only one game left to play—tonight against Baltimore—while the Red Sox have three left against New York.

Fifth place New York has a one-game lead over Oakland with the Yankees finishing their season with the three games in Boston while the Athletics close with three against Minnesota.

There's an eighth place showdown set at Anaheim where the California Angels host a threegame series against the Chicago White Sox. The Angels are in eighth place going into the series, one game up on the Sox. Last place Washington, 1½ games behind Chicago, closes with three games at Detroit.

The Tigers plan to start John Hiller tonight with Joe Sparma and Pat Dobson working the final two regular games. That leaves 31-game winner Denny McLain with eight days rest if Manager Mayo Smith chooses to use him in next Wednesday's Series opener.

Sports Corner

By Ron Jaynes

Stop laughing!

We know our calls have been somewhat funny lately . . . but please don't laugh at us because of last week's outcome.

We'll not go into details.

We sure wouldn't have won the First National Bank's football contest!

Now with a little dusting here and there . . . we might get our eight ball out and see how it will fare this week.

It's been a long time for the old pro.

Now with no delay we put . . . the eight ball . . . to work for the first time and retire our own thoughts.

Cape Girardeau Central at Jonesboro, Ark. -- It's a long trip . . . but will be worth it for the Tigers who'll return with another Arkansas victim under its win column. Cape 35, Jonesboro 13.

Charleston at Sikeston -- Records mean nothing is this match and it's a good thing too. The Bulldogs seem to have Bruce Farris ready for another try and with that will eke out a win. Sikeston 21, Charleston 19.

Kennett at Jackson -- Both tribes will be out after this northern division league match. Kennett has been the surprise of the season so far and will turn in another one tonight. Kennett 21, Jackson 20.

Perryville at Poplar Bluff -- This will be a battle, but the Mules will be before the folks and get into the win column. Poplar Bluff 20, Perryville 14.

Dexter at Caruthersville -- With little hope to share in the southern division league crown after last week's loss to power packed Portageville, Dexter will keep what little hopes they have by adding Caruthersville to the win ledger, Dexter 27, Caruthersville 13.

East Prairie at Hayti -- This should be a real field battle with the host taking the edge because of the home field. Hayti 14, East Prairie 0.

Chaffee at Portageville -- This could give the host Bulldogs their biggest win toward nailing down southern division league crown. It will meet this test of the Red Devils. P'ville 28, Chaffee 12.

Malden at Piggott, Ark. -- The Wave is having a tough year and generally if it loss in this match it's rated as a bad year. So get ready to rate as Piggott has the nod here. Piggott 14, Malden 13.

South Pemiscot at Gideon -- One set of Bulldogs are going to be upset after tonight's outcome. A loss by the host would put it out of the conference race and a loss by South Pemiscot would cut its chances in half. We see the Southern Pups taking this match. S. Pem. 12, Gideon 7.

Delta C-7 at Illmo-Scott City -- Still celebrating last week's win over Gideon, the Rams can almost assure themselves a share of the Bootheel division league title with a win here. They will. I-SC 20, C07 6.

Now let's have a little cooperation . . . please.

The Daily Standard sports desk will open at 9:30 p.m. tonight to take calls from coaches on the results of their games. It will remain open until midnight.

Coaches please call 471-1137 collect to report your results.

A dozen persons spent Wednesday night in front of the ticket window at Busch Stadium waiting for the sale of World Series bleacher tickets Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

Cornelius Blackman, a 71-year-old Chicago postal clerk who was first in line slept in a folding chair. Blackman claims he was one of the first in line at last year's sale.

Other persons were wrapped in blankets, either in chairs or stretched out in the cold concrete.

In the group were three women and a 73-year-old Seminole, Okla. retired restaurant operator, Dewey Jones.

Mrs. Flora Davis, 61, of St. Louis renewed her acquantaince with Blackman when she took her place in line Wednesday. They had met in last year's line.

An usher, Ron Schuttenberg, served as an advisor for the early birds, offering them directions to washrooms and nearby coffee spots. He served in the same capacity last year. Schuttenberg said the fans discussed baseball and listened to transitor radios during the night.

"They ran out of coffee and conversation about one a.m. and settled down," he said.

Battle For College Top Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Who's No. 1? Jack Mollenkopf says it's Notre Dame, Ara Parseghian says it's Purdue and both hope they're wrong.

The moment of truth will come Saturday afternoon when Mollenkopf and Purdue, top team in The Associated Press college football poll, invade South Bend, Ind., for the annual war with Parseghian and second-ranked Notre Dame.

"It's out of the frying pan and into the fire," Parseghian moaned after Notre Dame's convincing 45-21 rout of Oklahoma last Saturday. "They're a gifted ballclub. I don't think we can over-defense them."

"I don't think there's another college football team in the nation that can match Notre Dame on offense," wailed Mollenkopf, 44-7 victor over Virginia in the opener.

In other games involving members of the Top Twenty, ninth-ranked Nebraska is at Minnesota, ranked 17th, and No. 13 Indiana travels to Kansas, No. 12.

Elsewhere, O.J. Simpson and third-ranked California are at Northwestern, fourth-ranked Penn State entertains Kansas State, Florida, No. 5, is at Florida State and seventh-ranked Alabama hosts Southern Mississippi at Mobile. Sixth-ranked Texas is at Texas Tech and No. 8 UCLA faces Washington State at home in night contests, while entertains Texas-El Paso Houston, rated 10th, is idle.

Ohio State, ranked 11th, opens its season at home against Southern Methodist, No. 15 Miami of Florida visits Georgia Tech, 16th-ranked Tennessee welcomes Memphis State, 18thrated Oregon State is at Utah, Arizona State, No. 19

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Gibson, St. Louis' likely first game pitcher, gets his final Series tuneup tonight against the Astros. The Cards will pitch Steve Carlton Saturday and Ray Washburn on Sunday.

St. Louis and Detroit go through their final World Series tuneups as baseball's regular season draws to a close this weekend with a batting title and several positions in the standings up for grabs.

In the National League, Cincinnati's Pete Rose and Pittsburgh's Matty Alou move into their final three games tied for the batting lead at .332. The Reds are at home for a threegame series with San Francisco while the Pirates close the schedule with three in Chicago.

In addition to the batting race, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh are involved in a four-team battle for third place. The Reds occupy that spot going into the final weekend but are only one game ahead of Chicago and two up on Atlanta and Pittsburgh.

Lower in the NL standings, Los Angeles and Philadelphia are tied for seventh place and New York has a one-game lead over Houston in the battle to avoid a cellar finish.

The Phillies are at New York, Los Angeles at Atlanta and Houston at St. Louis to finish the season.

In the American League, Boston holds a one-half game edge over Cleveland in the battle for third place after the Indians absorbed a 7-1 whipping from Baltimore in the only game played Thursday.

Dave McNally won his 22nd with a six-hitter and contributed two hits, driving in one run and scoring two.

The Indians, because of a cancellation against Washington last week, have only one game left to play—tonight against Baltimore—while the Red Sox have three left against New York.

Fifth place New York has a one-game lead over Oakland with the Yankees finishing their season with the three games in Boston while the Athletics close with three against Minnesota.

There's an eighth place showdown set at Anaheim where the California Angels host a threegame series against the Chicago White Sox. The Angels are in eighth place going into the series, one game up on the Sox. Last place Washington, 1½ games behind Chicago, closes with three games at Detroit.

The Tigers plan to start John Hiller tonight with Joe Sparma and Pat Dobson working the final two regular games. That leaves 31-game winner Denny McLain with eight days rest if Manager Mayo Smith chooses to use him in next Wednesday's Series opener.

Stop laughing!

We know our calls have been somewhat funny lately . . . but please don't laugh at us because of last week's outcome.

We'll not go into details.

We sure wouldn't have won the First National Bank's football contest!

Now with a little dusting here and there . . . we might get our eight ball out and see how it will fare this week.

It's been a long time for the old pro.

Now with no delay we put . . . the eight ball . . . to work for the first time and retire our own thoughts.

Cape Girardeau Central at Jonesboro, Ark. -- It's a long trip . . . but will be worth it for the Tigers who'll return with another Arkansas victim under its win column. Cape 35, Jonesboro 13.

Charleston at Sikeston -- Records mean nothing is this match and it's a good thing too. The Bulldogs seem to have Bruce Farris ready for another try and with that will eke out a win. Sikeston 21, Charleston 19.

Kennett at Jackson -- Both tribes will be out after this northern division league match. Kennett has been the surprise of the season so far and will turn in another one tonight. Kennett 21, Jackson 20.

Perryville at Poplar Bluff -- This will be a battle, but the Mules will be before the folks and get into the win column. Poplar Bluff 20, Perryville 14.

Dexter at Caruthersville -- With little hope to share in the southern division league crown after last week's loss to power packed Portageville, Dexter will keep what little hopes they have by adding Caruthersville to the win ledger, Dexter 27, Caruthersville 13.

East Prairie at Hayti -- This should be a real field battle with the host taking the edge because of the home field. Hayti 14, East Prairie 0.

Chaffee at Portageville -- This could give the host Bulldogs their biggest win toward nailing down southern division league crown. It will meet this test of the Red Devils. P'ville 28, Chaffee 12.

Malden at Piggott, Ark. -- The Wave is having a tough year and generally if it loss in this match it's rated as a bad year. So get ready to rate as Piggott has the nod here. Piggott 14, Malden 13.

South Pemiscot at Gideon -- One set of Bulldogs are going to be upset after tonight's outcome. A loss by the host would put it out of the conference race and a loss by South Pemiscot would cut its chances in half. We see the Southern Pups taking this match. S. Pem. 12, Gideon 7.

Delta C-7 at Illmo-Scott City -- Still celebrating last week's win over Gideon, the Rams can almost assure themselves a share of the Bootheel division league title with a win here. They will. I-SC 20, C07 6.

Now let's have a little cooperation . . . please.

The Daily Standard sports desk will open at 9:30 p.m. tonight to take calls from coaches on the results of their games. It will remain open until midnight.

Coaches please call 471-1137 collect to report your results.

A dozen persons spent Wednesday night in front of the ticket window at Busch Stadium waiting for the sale of World Series bleacher tickets Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

Cornelius Blackman, a 71-year-old Chicago postal clerk who was first in line slept in a folding chair. Blackman claims he was one of the first in line at last year's sale.

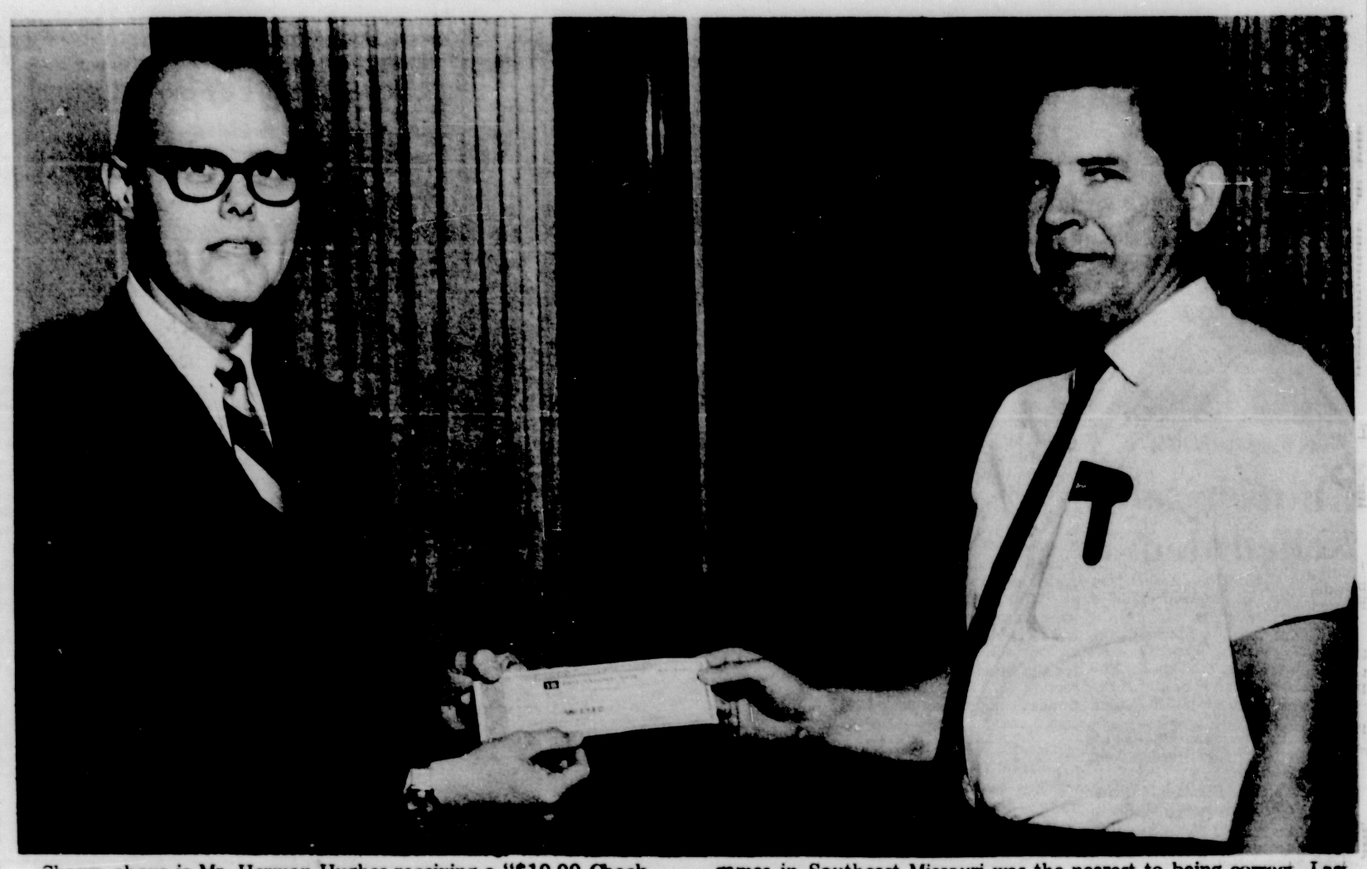

Other persons were wrapped in blankets, either in chairs or stretched out in the cold concrete.

In the group were three women and a 73-year-old Seminole, Okla. retired restaurant operator, Dewey Jones.

Mrs. Flora Davis, 61, of St. Louis renewed her acquantaince with Blackman when she took her place in line Wednesday. They had met in last year's line.

An usher, Ron Schuttenberg, served as an advisor for the early birds, offering them directions to washrooms and nearby coffee spots. He served in the same capacity last year. Schuttenberg said the fans discussed baseball and listened to transitor radios during the night.

"They ran out of coffee and conversation about one a.m. and settled down," he said.

His guesses of the scores of the games in Southeast Missouri was the nearest to being correct. Last weeks winner was Eddie Felker. Advertisement.

"It's out of the frying pan and into the fire," Parseghian moaned after Notre Dame's convincing 45-21 rout of Oklahoma last Saturday. "They're a gifted ballclub. I don't think we can over-defense them."

"I don't think there's another college football team in the nation that can match Notre Dame on offense," wailed Mollenkopf, 44-7 victor over Virginia in the opener.

Tax Simplification Change Endorsed

ST. LOUIS - The Missouri Bar and the Missouri Society of Certified Public Accountants today announced their endorsements and support of constitutional amendment 2 on the November, Missouri ballot which would permit the general assembly to simplify the state's complicated income tax laws.

Robert J. Baker of Webb City, spokesman for the CPAs and chairman of their taxation committee, said that "from the onset, CPAs have backed tax simplification legislation which would give Missouri taxpayers the opportunity to get out from under burdensome laws and filing procedures which have caused undue hardships."

Speaking for the Missouri Bar and likewise urging voter approval on Nov. 5, Edgar G. Boedeker of Clayton, president-elect, said "constitutional amendment 2 permits income tax simplification and would neither increase nor decrease Missouri income taxes. It is by far the most feasible means of effecting simplification and would not eliminate the present requirement that rates of taxation be stated in the Missouri statutes by the general assembly. The simplification amendment permits the general assembly to refer our laws to the federal tax statutes."

Sanford E. Sarasohn, president of The Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis, noted that the Missouri state tax study commission created by the general assembly in 1965 quickly and unanimously recognized that this was the most logical course of action. He stated that lawyers and certified public accountants immediately lent their support to the legislators and others interested in bringing this matter before the voters. Sarasohn, professor of law at St. Louis University, is a member of the bipartisan commission.

Baker noted that "passage of this simplification amendment will not only permit the lessening of the burden in the preparation of income tax returns but will make possible more efficient administration of the Missouri income tax."

Lawyers and accountants present at the news conference repeatedly emphasized the passage of amendment 2, the simplification amendment, was in the public's interest. It was noted that the Oklahoma voters on Aug. 27, 1968 approved a similar constitutional amendment. In 1966, the voters of neighboring Kansas and Nebraska also approved an income tax simplification amendment.

The experience of taxpayers and tax administrators of many other states has shown that this method of income tax simplification is in the best interest of both the state and the taxpayer, they argue.

Large Tax Increase in Sight for Missourians

JEFFERSON CITY -- Mounting appropriations have exceeded the capacity of the state government's general revenue tax structure to meet revenue requirements, making a tax increase, probably a large one, likely, Missouri Public Expenditure Survey said in a report released today.

Appropriations for general purposes this fiscal year exceed revenues by $67 million -- $32 million for operating purposes and $35 million for capital outlay, the report said.

The deficit is being financed this year from an accumulated balance, but next year a continuing source of additional tax revenues will have to be found to finance the level of expenditures that has been reached, the report said. Any above - normal expansions of state services will further enlarge the amount of additional revenue required, the report said.

Such expansion, it noted, is embodied in proposals being put forward to provide greater aid for schools with economically disadvantaged pupils and to share school costs on a fifty - fifty basis between the state and school districts. Supplying state aid in an amount equal to present local tax revenues would require added state expenditures approximating $90 million annually, the study said. In future years it would cost more.

Several other expansions may be in prospect, the report said. It noted that formation of additional junior college districts coupled with mushrooming enrollments may bring faster than normal increase in state aid to these institutions. The federal government is turning over more of the cost of medicaid to the state government. And the state government is considering providing education for a large number of medical students.

The report also noted that, without an accumulated balance, revenues will also have to be provided to finance the state's building program. From $20 million to $60 million annually has been appropriated for this purpose in recent years, a total of $213 million in the last 10 years. The amount placed in the state budget for building purposes will need to be substantial, the report said, regardless of whether current revenues are utilized or a bond issue is employed. If a bond issue plan is adopted, revenues will have to be provided for interest costs, which are at a high level, as well as for debt retirement, the report pointed out.

The report said it is too early to determine the precise amount of revenue the state government will require but that it seems apparent that the amount will be substantial and that a major source of revenue will be needed.

Taking into consideration the taxes Missourians pay to all governments, the report said, the most logical choice for a principal source of added revenue is the sales tax. Missourians, the report said, are paying 12 times as much in income taxes as in sales taxes.

Of the taxes paid by Missouri taxpayers, three -- income, property, and sales -- emerge as major sources of revenue for general government purposes, the report said. The income tax, which is largely pre-empted by the federal government, accounts for 67 per cent of taxes paid by Missourians. The property tax, which is almost exclusively a local government tax in Missouri, accounts for 10 per cent. The sales tax, which is the state government's largest tax source, accounts for 5.5 per cent.

An additional cent of state sales tax would yield about $100 million, while an increase of about 75 per cent in the state income tax would be required to yield that amount, the report said.

It is sometimes contended, the report noted, that sales tax should not be utilized as a revenue source because those with lower incomes expend proportionately more of their income on items to which the tax applies. That contention loses significance, the report said, because it is a minor element in the way the total tax structure affects taxpayers. By far the greater part of total taxes is paid in the form of highly progressive income tax rates, the report said.

The report said that the state government's quest for more revenue will be against a background of the recent federal income tax increase, increased social security taxes, rising property and other local taxes and considerable inflation. It noted that social security taxes are scheduled to increase again in January.

"Those," it said, "are cogent reasons for the state government to exercise restraint in establishing the level of expenditures for the coming year and in taking actions that will affect the state expenditure level in the future."

Total taxes paid by Missouri taxpayers have more than doubled in the last 10 years, the report said, having risen from $2.8 billion in 1958 to $5.3 billion this year. Taxes now take 35 per cent of personal income in the state compared to 27 per cent 10 years ago, the report said.

Romanians Fear Czech-Type Invasion

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Light traffic, Victorian architecture and dusty, tree-lined streets give Romania's capital a deceptive air of calm. Behind it lies fear of occupation by Soviet troops and tanks.

Officials do not speak of the fear. President Nicolae Ceausescu goes his own independent way in foreign policy. That is what makes Soviet invasion a possibility. But he keeps a tight Communist rein on press and government. That policy should reassure Moscow.

Though Ceausescu denounced the Soviet-led occupation of Czechoslovakia, since then he has avoided irritating the Kremlin.

The Soviet Union pulled its last troops out of Romania in 1958, after an occupation of more than 13 years. A few years later, Romania began to show signs of independence.

Now it has virtually withdrawn from cooperation with the Warsaw military pact.

But Romania should have less reason to fear Soviet invasion than Czechoslovakia had.

Strategically, it presents no threat to Soviet security. Czechoslovakia has long borders with West Germany and Austria, only a short border with the Soviet Union. Romania has a long border with Russia, no border at all with the West.

Nevertheless, the nervous Romanians have been strengthening their forces along their borders with Communist countries, so much so that soldiers who usually help with the harvest are not available. This has worried university students, due back for the new term Oct. 1.

"I may have to 'volunteer' for a couple of weeks work in the fields just then," one of them said. "Anyhow, they call it volunteering."

In domestic politics, Czechoslovakia showed liberal tendencies the Soviets considered dangerous. Censorship was abolished. The possibility arose that non-Communist parties would be permitted to work freely. There was widespread sentiment for neutrality.

But Romania lives under a rigid Communist system. There are not even puppet non-Communist parties as there are in other East European countries.

Yet in his own way Ceausescu —just turned 50—belongs to the new generation of liberalizers in the Communist world. Political prisoners seem to have been all released, and a great burden of fear has been lifted from the shoulders of the average Romanian.

"The Romanian is still wary of contact with foreigners," the diplomat said. "He gets told all the time that it's dangerous—the difference is now that he is warned against foreigners from the East as well as the West. And the policeman's knock on the door in the middle of the night is gone."

All this may frighten the Soviets a little, especially when they see relations improving between Romania and its non-aligned Communist neighbor, Yugoslavia, an old thorn in Moscow's side. So the Soviet pressure on Romania is kept up.

Meanwhile, nothing much actually happens in Romania, but Romanians are afraid something just possibly might.

Tax Simplification Change Endorsed

ST. LOUIS - The Missouri Bar and the Missouri Society of Certified Public Accountants today announced their endorsements and support of constitutional amendment 2 on the November, Missouri ballot which would permit the general assembly to simplify the state's complicated income tax laws.

Robert J. Baker of Webb City, spokesman for the CPAs and chairman of their taxation committee, said that "from the onset, CPAs have backed tax simplification legislation which would give Missouri taxpayers the opportunity to get out from under burdensome laws and filing procedures which have caused undue hardships."

Speaking for the Missouri Bar and likewise urging voter approval on Nov. 5, Edgar G. Boedeker of Clayton, president-elect, said "constitutional amendment 2 permits income tax simplification and would neither increase nor decrease Missouri income taxes. It is by far the most feasible means of effecting simplification and would not eliminate the present requirement that rates of taxation be stated in the Missouri statutes by the general assembly. The simplification amendment permits the general assembly to refer our laws to the federal tax statutes."

Sanford E. Sarasohn, president of The Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis, noted that the Missouri state tax study commission created by the general assembly in 1965 quickly and unanimously recognized that this was the most logical course of action. He stated that lawyers and certified public accountants immediately lent their support to the legislators and others interested in bringing this matter before the voters. Sarasohn, professor of law at St. Louis University, is a member of the bipartisan commission.

Baker noted that "passage of this simplification amendment will not only permit the lessening of the burden in the preparation of income tax returns but will make possible more efficient administration of the Missouri income tax."

Lawyers and accountants present at the news conference repeatedly emphasized the passage of amendment 2, the simplification amendment, was in the public's interest. It was noted that the Oklahoma voters on Aug. 27, 1968 approved a similar constitutional amendment. In 1966, the voters of neighboring Kansas and Nebraska also approved an income tax simplification amendment.

The experience of taxpayers and tax administrators of many other states has shown that this method of income tax simplification is in the best interest of both the state and the taxpayer, they argue.

Large Tax Increase in Sight for Missourians

JEFFERSON CITY -- Mounting appropriations have exceeded the capacity of the state government's general revenue tax structure to meet revenue requirements, making a tax increase, probably a large one, likely, Missouri Public Expenditure Survey said in a report released today.

Appropriations for general purposes this fiscal year exceed revenues by $67 million -- $32 million for operating purposes and $35 million for capital outlay, the report said.

The deficit is being financed this year from an accumulated balance, but next year a continuing source of additional tax revenues will have to be found to finance the level of expenditures that has been reached, the report said. Any above - normal expansions of state services will further enlarge the amount of additional revenue required, the report said.

Such expansion, it noted, is embodied in proposals being put forward to provide greater aid for schools with economically disadvantaged pupils and to share school costs on a fifty - fifty basis between the state and school districts. Supplying state aid in an amount equal to present local tax revenues would require added state expenditures approximating $90 million annually, the study said. In future years it would cost more.

Several other expansions may be in prospect, the report said. It noted that formation of additional junior college districts coupled with mushrooming enrollments may bring faster than normal increase in state aid to these institutions. The federal government is turning over more of the cost of medicaid to the state government. And the state government is considering providing education for a large number of medical students.

The report also noted that, without an accumulated balance, revenues will also have to be provided to finance the state's building program. From $20 million to $60 million annually has been appropriated for this purpose in recent years, a total of $213 million in the last 10 years. The amount placed in the state budget for building purposes will need to be substantial, the report said, regardless of whether current revenues are utilized or a bond issue is employed. If a bond issue plan is adopted, revenues will have to be provided for interest costs, which are at a high level, as well as for debt retirement, the report pointed out.

The report said it is too early to determine the precise amount of revenue the state government will require but that it seems apparent that the amount will be substantial and that a major source of revenue will be needed.

Taking into consideration the taxes Missourians pay to all governments, the report said, the most logical choice for a principal source of added revenue is the sales tax. Missourians, the report said, are paying 12 times as much in income taxes as in sales taxes.

Of the taxes paid by Missouri taxpayers, three -- income, property, and sales -- emerge as major sources of revenue for general government purposes, the report said. The income tax, which is largely pre-empted by the federal government, accounts for 67 per cent of taxes paid by Missourians. The property tax, which is almost exclusively a local government tax in Missouri, accounts for 10 per cent. The sales tax, which is the state government's largest tax source, accounts for 5.5 per cent.

An additional cent of state sales tax would yield about $100 million, while an increase of about 75 per cent in the state income tax would be required to yield that amount, the report said.

It is sometimes contended, the report noted, that sales tax should not be utilized as a revenue source because those with lower incomes expend proportionately more of their income on items to which the tax applies. That contention loses significance, the report said, because it is a minor element in the way the total tax structure affects taxpayers. By far the greater part of total taxes is paid in the form of highly progressive income tax rates, the report said.

The report said that the state government's quest for more revenue will be against a background of the recent federal income tax increase, increased social security taxes, rising property and other local taxes and considerable inflation. It noted that social security taxes are scheduled to increase again in January.

"Those," it said, "are cogent reasons for the state government to exercise restraint in establishing the level of expenditures for the coming year and in taking actions that will affect the state expenditure level in the future."

Total taxes paid by Missouri taxpayers have more than doubled in the last 10 years, the report said, having risen from $2.8 billion in 1958 to $5.3 billion this year. Taxes now take 35 per cent of personal income in the state compared to 27 per cent 10 years ago, the report said.

Bootheel as Fruit and Vegetable Center Faces Obstacles

Southeast Missouri Detla farmers have their work cut out for them if they hope to develop their region into a profitable vegetable producing area. This was the general tone of a feasibility study on the potential of the Missouri delta region as a fruit and vegetable center.

The study, discussed at a meeting Thursday, in Sikeston, was sponsored by the marketing division of the Missouri Department of Agriculture and dealt with the potentials of processing and marketing fruits and vegetables.

The overall conclusions drawn by Agri-Research Inc., Manhattan Kan. which conducted the study.

Most large food processors are unaware of the possibilities offered by the Delta area.

The prospects of success, for a locally owned cooperative without established markets, are small.

The talents and resources in the area would be put to more production use in developing an organized and cordinated program to inform interested processors on the potentials of the area rather than in promotion of a locally based processing group.

The area offers good production possibilities, soil, water and management, if the processing and marketing outlets can be developed.

The growing and marketing of fresh fruits and vegetables offers a good possibility if dependable sales outlets were established.

In condcuting the survey, researchers found that there out of four processors and buyers contacted indicated they were not familiar with the Missouri Delta area. Of the 25 per cent who did indicate knowledge of it, 68 per cent considered it a good vegetable production and processing area, 27 per cent rated it fair and only five per cent ocnsidered it a poor prospect. Five of the processors contacted indicated they would be interested in further inestigating the potentials of locating a processing plant in the area. This points out the need for a stepped-up program to educate the industry to the Delta's possibilities if any new plants are to be attracted to the area.

The study recommended the five steps to accomplish this:

1. Prepare an inventory on all aspects of the seven county area with which a processor might be concerned. This would include labor supplies, water, transporation, soils, climate conditions, potential plant sights and socio-economic conditions.

2. On the basis of the above inventory and studies, an informative and factual brochure should be prepared presenting the resources of the area, and plans for further development of theses resources.

3. The brochure should then be distributed to processors in a systematic and organized way to acquaint them with the area in a positive manner and to make them aware that the Southeast Missouri Delta has an aggressive and positive plan for development of vegetable processing opportunities.

No Trace of Greenlease Case Figure in 15 Years

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — It was 15 years ago that 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease was kidnapped in Kansas City, brutally murdered in Kansas, and buried in St. Joseph in a grave disguised as a crysanthemum bed.

Nearly $300,000 of the $600,000 ransom the kidnapers collected has never been located, but the big mystery is "What became of Tom Marsh?"

When Carl Austin Hall, who with his paramour Bonnie Brown Heady, was arrested in St. Louis Oct. 6, 1953, he told officers Tom Marsh was one of the kidnapers. He even accused Marsh of being the actual slayer of the Greenlease boy, son of a millionaire Kansas City car dealer.

Hall subsequently changed his story. He said no man named Marsh had been involved. He said he didn't even know a man named Tom Marsh.

"I was trying to blame the kidnaping and murder on a fall guy," Hall said. "The idea of putting the blame on Tom Marsh was a spontaneous thought. I know of no such indidual."

Hall stayed with that contention to the last — that Dec. 18, 1953, early morning when he died in the gas chamber at the Missouri penitentiary, Bonnie gasping her last in a companion chair at his side in the barrellike execution chamber.

But despite the disavowls of Hall there was a Tom Marsh—and a strong likelihood Hall knew Marsh.

Tom Marsh, a floater who was also a wino, had been a convict in the Missouri penitentiary in 1951 when Hall was serving five years there for robbery. After Marsh completed his prison term he could be seen regularly around skid row areas of St. Joseph and Kansas City.

But since the day Hall named Marsh as the real slayer of little Bobby — only to deny the allegation — there has not been the slightest trace of Marsh.

His father has heard nothing of him, nor have other relatives or the police.

"If up to a short time before the kidnaping we had been asked to pick up Tom Marsh, we could have located him in almost a matter of minutes in the slum areas of Kansas City or in some skid row territory here," Chief of Police Edward C. Burke says.

"But there has been no trace whatever of him since the day Carl Austin Hall injected his name into the Greenlease case."

Marsh, who would now be 62, wouldn't be readily able to disguise himself. Stocky, ruddy complexioned, with blue eyes and brown hair, Marsh bore the following tatoos:

Around the police station here some veteran officers hold to the theory that Hall knew Marsh in the penitentiary; that they engaged in crimes together after both were released; that Hall killed Marsh so there would be no witness against him; then decided not to talk anymore about him when it definitely proved that Hall and Bonnie were stuck with the guilt of kidnaping and murder.

The searech for Marsh is likely to go on for years to come— or until his death is proved.

The dour-visaged Hall was a wastrel son of a Kansas businessman who in a little more than a year after his father's death had spent his way through an inheritance of $200,000 in high living, most of it around Kansas City.

He had attended a private military school in Missouri and it was there he became acquainted with an older brother of Bobby Greenlease. He knew the Greenlease family had money.

In a Missouri penitentiary cell Hall had figured out what he thought would be a perfect crime. Meticulously planned, it was as cruel and as bizarre as this nation had ever known.

He arrived at the ransom sum of $600,000 by ascertaining that such a sum in $10 and $20 bills would weigh 85 pounds. He figured that this was as much as he could carry in a duffle bag or suitcase.

He specified the bills should be from all 12 Federal Reserve districts — to make the money more difficult to trace.

The Greenlease family met that demand, unaware that the boy had been taken across the state line from Kansas City, shot to death when Hall failed to strangle him with a short rope, then brought to St. Joseph and buried in the yard of the house where the Heady woman was living at 38th and Penn streets.

Hall had personal effects from the boy, a smattering of facts based on small talk from the boy just before he was killed, that he used to sell his ransom demand to the Greenleases. The demands by telephone went on to the family days after the boy was dead.

Bonnie had gone to the private school in Kansas City Sept. 28 to entice the boy away with a story to the nun there that a close relative was critically ill.

Hall collected the ransom — tossed from a car on a lonely road east of Kansas City just as he had demanded — and went to St. Louis with Bonnie. There he went on a spree, during which a prostitute companion tipped off police on how Hall was tossing money around.

Police Lt. Louis Shoulders arrested Hall and wrung from him information that led to the arrest of Bonnie. But from the role of hero, Shoulders soon slid to that of villain. He went to prison for lying about the ransom money when he testified before a grand jury.

Hall insisted he had all of the $600,000 save the amount he had spent on his fling when he was arrested. But at the police station only $300,000 showed up. A little of the missing money straggled in from divergent places during the next several years. But probably $295,000 is still missing.

Early the morning of Oct. 6, 1953, Richard E. Martin, then an FBI agent here and now a St. Joseph city councilman, was called from St. Louis. Martin was instructed to enter the Heady home at 38th and Penn and wait for another phone call.

At that point Martin was aware that he might find Marsh in the house and that Marsh had been designated by Hall as the killer.

And Martin knew that neighbors might see him as he pried open a window to enter and they might shoot him. But he entered and, after a considerable wait, was joined in the house by two other FBI men. Then came another telepone call from St. Louis.

Go out to the flower bed, Martin was told, and dig to see if there is a body there encased in blue plastic.

The body, first positively identified by Chief Burke, then captain of detectives, was that of the missing boy.

Hearnes Turns Down Invitation To Face Roos

PRAIRIE VILLAGE, Kan. (AP)—Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes declined an invitation Wednesday night to face his oponent in the gubernatorial race, Lawrence K. Roos, at a bi-state rally featuring major candidates from Missouri and Kansas here.

The rally, held at Shawnee Mission East High School, attracted more than 1,000 persons from both sides of the state line.

Both Missouri candidates for the U.S. Senate—Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, Republican, and Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, Democrat—shared the platform and demonstrated opposing views on the Vietnam war. Roos, a Republican from St. Louis, said his only regret was that Hearnes did not appear.

The Kansas gubernatorial candidates faced each other. Democratic Gov. Robert Docking and Republican Rick Harman exchanged views on rioting in the cities, and William I. Robinson, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, also spoke.

Delineating his feelings on Vietnam, Curtis traced the cause of the war to Communist aggression, and repeated his proposal that the war could be ended within six weeks if the U.S. Navy blockaded the harbor of Haiphong in North Vietnam.

Eagleton held that blockading Haiphong could be disastrous: "Such a blockade, if imposed, perhaps in six weeks would put us in World War III with the Soviet Union."

The Paris peace talks would not be as fruitful as hoped unless the U.S. stopped bombing north of the 17th parallel, Eagleton said, adding that the ultimate goal for the United States should be to cease fire in Vietnam and disengage from the war.

The two candidates entered into a brief exchange that was all but drowned out by the crowd's shouting and hooting. Curtis accused Eagleton of attempting to rebut him, saying their joint appearance was not intended as a debate.

Roos drew rounds of applause as he sounded off on Gov. Hearnes. The governor's absence at the rally was "true to form," Roos said. "I only wish he would have the guts to come out of hiding and join a meeting like this so we can discuss the issues," he added.

The St. Louis Republican cited figures depicting Missouri ranking in the bottom 20 per cent of all states in such areas as state aid to education, expansion of industry, and job opportunities and farm income.

"We need people in Jefferson City," he said, "who will propose positive programs and take action to solve the problems of Missouri. We don't need people who devote 100 per cent of their time to furthering their partisan political ambitions."

Symingtons Swap Roles In Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Certain votes were easier to get back in those days. But then, young James Symington was plugging for his father rather than for himself.

His father is Sen. Stuart Symington, Democrat and former secretary of the Air Force who has represented Missouri since 1952.

James, now 41, is running for Congress in a metropolitan St. Louis district. His opponent is Republican Hugh Scott.

"You know," Sen. Symington said in an interview, "I remember once when a farmer said he would vote for him if Jimmy could tell him what sort of horseshoe he was holding up.

"It was a little shoe. Jimmy said, 'that's an ox shoe,' which it was, and the man said, "Sir, you've got my vote.'"

The senator says his son "is entirely on his own" in the race. However, he plans to help him get elected.

"In the primary it might have been misconstrued if I'd become involved in the campaign," Symington said. "But things are different in the general election. I look forward to working for him."

The elder Symintgon said that was only fair "because he worked for me in many of my campaigns."

He says he is especially proud of his son's sense of humor.

Symington related the story his son likes to tell about when James was chief of protocol at the State Department.

With one hour's experience in his new job, he grandly ushered the visiting Sudanese ambassador into a broom closet.

"He's got a wry sense of humor," the senator said. "He has a sense of perspective about things."

Symington thinks it is fitting for his son to enter politics because he "cares a lot about people. He is a very compassionate person without in any sense being corny about it."

"I remember a couple of things that affected me very much," he added. "Once he said he was in Peru and he asked this couple when they had gotten married.

"They said they had never been married, yet they had a number of children. They asked where would they get the $5 necessary to get married."

Symington, 57, said he once told his son he should stick to the law, since he was a lawyer.

"He said, 'Dad, why should I limit myself to the problems of one person? I care too much about people to do that.'"

Sen.Symington added:

"That's the kind of guy he is."

The expression of humiliation to "eat humble pie" dates from 11th-century England, when all ate at one table, seated according to rank. The World Almanac says. When deer was served, the lord ate venison, but the humbler folk at the foot of the table got "umble pie" or the entrails, including the umbilical cord from which "umble" comes.

Bootheel as Fruit and Vegetable Center Faces Obstacles

Southeast Missouri Detla farmers have their work cut out for them if they hope to develop their region into a profitable vegetable producing area. This was the general tone of a feasibility study on the potential of the Missouri delta region as a fruit and vegetable center.

The study, discussed at a meeting Thursday, in Sikeston, was sponsored by the marketing division of the Missouri Department of Agriculture and dealt with the potentials of processing and marketing fruits and vegetables.

The overall conclusions drawn by Agri-Research Inc., Manhattan Kan. which conducted the study.

Most large food processors are unaware of the possibilities offered by the Delta area.

The prospects of success, for a locally owned cooperative without established markets, are small.

The talents and resources in the area would be put to more production use in developing an organized and cordinated program to inform interested processors on the potentials of the area rather than in promotion of a locally based processing group.

The area offers good production possibilities, soil, water and management, if the processing and marketing outlets can be developed.

The growing and marketing of fresh fruits and vegetables offers a good possibility if dependable sales outlets were established.

In condcuting the survey, researchers found that there out of four processors and buyers contacted indicated they were not familiar with the Missouri Delta area. Of the 25 per cent who did indicate knowledge of it, 68 per cent considered it a good vegetable production and processing area, 27 per cent rated it fair and only five per cent ocnsidered it a poor prospect. Five of the processors contacted indicated they would be interested in further inestigating the potentials of locating a processing plant in the area. This points out the need for a stepped-up program to educate the industry to the Delta's possibilities if any new plants are to be attracted to the area.

The study recommended the five steps to accomplish this:

1. Prepare an inventory on all aspects of the seven county area with which a processor might be concerned. This would include labor supplies, water, transporation, soils, climate conditions, potential plant sights and socio-economic conditions.

2. On the basis of the above inventory and studies, an informative and factual brochure should be prepared presenting the resources of the area, and plans for further development of theses resources.

3. The brochure should then be distributed to processors in a systematic and organized way to acquaint them with the area in a positive manner and to make them aware that the Southeast Missouri Delta has an aggressive and positive plan for development of vegetable processing opportunities.

No Trace of Greenlease Case Figure in 15 Years

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — It was 15 years ago that 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease was kidnapped in Kansas City, brutally murdered in Kansas, and buried in St. Joseph in a grave disguised as a crysanthemum bed.

Nearly $300,000 of the $600,000 ransom the kidnapers collected has never been located, but the big mystery is "What became of Tom Marsh?"

When Carl Austin Hall, who with his paramour Bonnie Brown Heady, was arrested in St. Louis Oct. 6, 1953, he told officers Tom Marsh was one of the kidnapers. He even accused Marsh of being the actual slayer of the Greenlease boy, son of a millionaire Kansas City car dealer.

Hall subsequently changed his story. He said no man named Marsh had been involved. He said he didn't even know a man named Tom Marsh.

"I was trying to blame the kidnaping and murder on a fall guy," Hall said. "The idea of putting the blame on Tom Marsh was a spontaneous thought. I know of no such indidual."

Hall stayed with that contention to the last — that Dec. 18, 1953, early morning when he died in the gas chamber at the Missouri penitentiary, Bonnie gasping her last in a companion chair at his side in the barrellike execution chamber.

But despite the disavowls of Hall there was a Tom Marsh—and a strong likelihood Hall knew Marsh.

Tom Marsh, a floater who was also a wino, had been a convict in the Missouri penitentiary in 1951 when Hall was serving five years there for robbery. After Marsh completed his prison term he could be seen regularly around skid row areas of St. Joseph and Kansas City.

But since the day Hall named Marsh as the real slayer of little Bobby — only to deny the allegation — there has not been the slightest trace of Marsh.

His father has heard nothing of him, nor have other relatives or the police.

"If up to a short time before the kidnaping we had been asked to pick up Tom Marsh, we could have located him in almost a matter of minutes in the slum areas of Kansas City or in some skid row territory here," Chief of Police Edward C. Burke says.

"But there has been no trace whatever of him since the day Carl Austin Hall injected his name into the Greenlease case."

Marsh, who would now be 62, wouldn't be readily able to disguise himself. Stocky, ruddy complexioned, with blue eyes and brown hair, Marsh bore the following tatoos:

Around the police station here some veteran officers hold to the theory that Hall knew Marsh in the penitentiary; that they engaged in crimes together after both were released; that Hall killed Marsh so there would be no witness against him; then decided not to talk anymore about him when it definitely proved that Hall and Bonnie were stuck with the guilt of kidnaping and murder.

The searcch for Marsh is likely to go on for years to come— or until his death is proved.

The dour-visaged Hall was a wastrel son of a Kansas businessman who in a little more than a year after his father's death had spent his way through an inheritance of $200,000 in high living, most of it around Kansas City.

He had attended a private military school in Missouri and it was there he became acquainted with an older brother of Bobby Greenlease. He knew the Greenlease family had money.

In a Missouri penitentiary cell Hall had figured out what he thought would be a perfect crime. Meticulously planned, it was as cruel and as bizarre as this nation had ever known.

He arrived at the ransom sum of $600,000 by ascertaining that such a sum in $10 and $20 bills would weigh 85 pounds. He figured that this was as much as he could carry in a duffle bag or suitcase.

He specified the bills should be from all 12 Federal Reserve districts — to make the money more difficult to trace.

The Greenlease family met that demand, unaware that the boy had been taken across the state line from Kansas City, shot to death when Hall failed to strangle him with a short rope, then brought to St. Joseph and buried in the yard of the house where the Heady woman was living at 38th and Penn streets.

Hall had personal effects from the boy, a smattering of facts based on small talk from the boy just before he was killed, that he used to sell his ransom demand to the Greenleases. The demands by telephone went on to the family days after the boy was dead.

Bonnie had gone to the private school in Kansas City Sept. 28 to entice the boy away with a story to the nun there that a close relative was critically ill.

Hall collected the ransom — tossed from a car on a lonely road east of Kansas City just as he had demanded — and went to St. Louis with Bonnie. There he went on a spree, during which a prostitute companion tipped off police on how Hall was tossing money around.

Police Lt. Louis Shoulders arrested Hall and wrung from him information that led to the arrest of Bonnie. But from the role of hero, Shoulders soon slid to that of villain. He went to prison for lying about the ransom money when he testified before a grand jury.

Hall insisted he had all of the $600,000 save the amount he had spent on his fling when he was arrested. But at the police station only $300,000 showed up. A little of the missing money straggled in from divergent places during the next several years. But probably $295,000 is still missing.

Early the morning of Oct. 6, 1953, Richard E. Martin, then an FBI agent here and now a St. Joseph city councilman, was called from St. Louis. Martin was instructed to enter the Heady home at 38th and Penn and wait for another phone call.

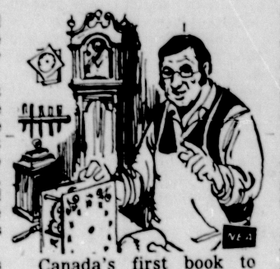

At that point Martin was aware that he might find Marsh in the house and that Marsh had been designated by Hall as the killer.

And Martin knew that neighbors might see him as he pried open a window to enter and they might shoot him. But he entered and, after a considerable wait, was joined in the house by two other FBI men. Then came another telepone call from St. Louis.

Go out to the flower bed, Martin was told, and dig to see if there is a body there encased in blue plastic.

The body, first positively identified by Chief Burke, then captain of detectives, was that of the missing boy.

Hearnes Turns Down Invitation To Face Roos

PRAIRIE VILLAGE, Kan. (AP)—Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes declined an invitation Wednesday night to face his oponent in the gubernatorial race, Lawrence K. Roos, at a bi-state rally featuring major candidates from Missouri and Kansas here.

The rally, held at Shawnee Mission East High School, attracted more than 1,000 persons from both sides of the state line.

Both Missouri candidates for the U.S. Senate—Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, Republican, and Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, Democrat—shared the platform and demonstrated opposing views on the Vietnam war. Roos, a Republican from St. Louis, said his only regret was that Hearnes did not appear.

The Kansas gubernatorial candidates faced each other. Democratic Gov. Robert Docking and Republican Rick Harman exchanged views on rioting in the cities, and William I. Robinson, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, also spoke.

Delineating his feelings on Vietnam, Curtis traced the cause of the war to Communist aggression, and repeated his proposal that the war could be ended within six weeks if the U.S. Navy blockaded the harbor of Haiphong in North Vietnam.

Eagleton held that blockading Haiphong could be disastrous: "Such a blockade, if imposed, perhaps in six weeks would put us in World War III with the Soviet Union."

The Paris peace talks would not be as fruitful as hoped unless the U.S. stopped bombing north of the 17th parallel, Eagleton said, adding that the ultimate goal for the United States should be to cease fire in Vietnam and disengage from the war.

The two candidates entered into a brief exchange that was all but drowned out by the crowd's shouting and hooting. Curtis accused Eagleton of attempting to rebut him, saying their joint appearance was not intended as a debate.

Roos drew rounds of applause as he sounded off on Gov. Hearnes. The governor's absence at the rally was "true to form," Roos said. "I only wish he would have the guts to come out of hiding and join a meeting like this so we can discuss the issues," he added.

The St. Louis Republican cited figures depicting Missouri ranking in the bottom 20 per cent of all states in such areas as state aid to education, expansion of industry, and job opportunities and farm income.

"We need people in Jefferson City," he said, "who will propose positive programs and take action to solve the problems of Missouri. We don't need people who devote 100 per cent of their time to furthering their partisan political ambitions."

Symingtons Swap Roles In Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Certain votes were easier to get back in those days. But then, young James Symington was plugging for his father rather than for himself.

His father is Sen. Stuart Symington, Democrat and former secretary of the Air Force who has represented Missouri since 1952.

James, now 41, is running for Congress in a metropolitan St. Louis district. His opponent is Republican Hugh Scott.

"You know," Sen. Symington said in an interview, "I remember once when a farmer said he would vote for him if Jimmy could tell him what sort of horseshoe he was holding up.

"It was a little shoe. Jimmy said, 'that's an ox shoe,' which it was, and the man said, "Sir, you've got my vote.'"

The senator says his son "is entirely on his own" in the race. However, he plans to help him get elected.

"In the primary it might have been misconstrued if I'd become involved in the campaign," Symington said. "But things are different in the general election. I look forward to working for him."

The elder Symintgon said that was only fair "because he worked for me in many of my campaigns."

He says he is especially proud of his son's sense of humor.

Symington related the story his son likes to tell about when James was chief of protocol at the State Department.

With one hour's experience in his new job, he grandly ushered the visiting Sudanese ambassador into a broom closet.

"He's got a wry sense of humor," the senator said. "He has a sense of perspective about things."

Symington thinks it is fitting for his son to enter politics because he "cares a lot about people. He is a very compassionate person without in any sense being corny about it."

"I remember a couple of things that affected me very much," he added. "Once he said he was in Peru and he asked this couple when they had gotten married.

"They said they had never been married, yet they had a number of children. They asked where would they get the $5 necessary to get married."

Symington, 57, said he once told his son he should stick to the law, since he was a lawyer.

"He said, 'Dad, why should I limit myself to the problems of one person? I care too much about people to do that.'"

Sen.Symington added:

Humphrey Promises Continued Prosperity

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey, pressing harder than ever for televised debates with Richard M. Nixon, today promised continued prosperity if he is elected president. He accused the Republicans of "economic mismanagement."

The Democratic vice president, in a campaign speech prepared for the Portland City Club, said that "when Americans vote on prosperity I am confident they will give us a clear call for more of it."

Saying that there were three recessions during the eight years when Nixon was Dwight D. Eisenhower's vice president, Humphrey spoke of "the dismal, disheartening years of Republican economic mismanagement in the 1950s."

"Now some say the Republicans may learn from their past mistakes," he added. "There is not a shred of evidence either from the 1950s or the Republican voting record right up to date that they have learned anything."

Humphrey said Nixon's economic advisers sounded like the kind of men who would mount a "back to McKinley campaign."

In San Francisco Thursday, Humphrey dispatched a telegram to Nixon after reading published reports that the Republican presidential nominee had expressed a willingness to debate the vice president—a key aim of Humphrey's.

"I am designating my campaign manager, Larry O'Brien, to meet with your designated representative to work out the arrangements for what I hope will be a series of debates," the telegram said. "I trust we can have our representatives meet within the next 48 hours."

There was no indication, however, that early debates were likely.

Nixon has said he would debate Humphrey if Congress suspends the equal-time provision of the Federal Communications Act as it did in 1960, but would reject inclusion of third-party candidate George C. Wallace.

He said Wednesday in Denver, "This is a two-party country. Either Mr. Humphrey or I —one or the other—is going to be elected president and for us to put a third party candidate on there and have a panel instead of a debate would be an abortion. I'm not going to lend myself to it at all."

Humphrey seemed satisfied with the results of his second campaign swing into California —with visits to Los Angeles, Sacramento and San Francisco.

"I think Mr. Nixon is in trouble," he said. "I'm not. My market trend is up."

Humphrey drew two prominent Vietnam doves into his camp Thursday.

Arthur J. Goldberg, former Supreme Court justice and U.N. ambassador, signed on as cochairman of Humphrey's campaign committee. Goldberg's successor at the United Nations, George W. Ball, quit the post to become, in Humphrey's words, "my chief foreign policy adviser."

During one television appearance in San Francisco, Humphrey was asked why he did not make a clean break with President Johnson to prove that he was his "own man."

DEAR POLLY—I save all those foil pans that frozen pot pies come in. When we start on a trip with an animal I tuck some of them under the front seat of the car. DEAR READERS—The laboratory of a large milk company advises that while the milk assumes a different appearance after freezing with little globules (sort of like buttermilk) it is perfectly all right to use.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—A reader requested ideas for using scraps of material in ways other than making quilts. I have a "ball" making bias binding out of mine. Lay the matching scraps on the bias, cut a strip the desired width and then cut a cardboard guide this width. Use it to cut the strips and then sew them together and roll each different pattern or color around an empty toilet tissue roll. After all the pieces are fitted and sewed together, press them and then place the two wrong sides together and stitch the full length on the very edge. When the tape is sewed to a garment you only have one side to sew down neatly to cover up the edge sewed to the garment.

(Polly's note: At first this method of application had me puzzled but I interpreted it this way: the tape would be held against the back side of the edge to be bound with the stitched side at the cut edge of the material and then both stitched together. Then the folded piece would be turned to the outside, hiding the seam, and again stitched along the pressed flat edge).

I use such bindings on clothes for my grandchildren and am now binding pot holders with my homemade tape. I have at least 30 different (and I do mean different) rolls of colorful bias tape. They also trim pillowcases beautifully.

Who said, "Grandmas are a bored generation?" Working with my hands is the greatest medicine I have and I haven't yet found a day with enough hours. Becoming a grandmother is just what the word grandchild implies, "It's grand!."—MRS. J. B.

Newsman Picked for U.N. Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has named Washington Post editor J. R. Wiggins, a strong supporter of his Vietnam policies, to fill in as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations in the waning weeks of his administration.

Wiggins replaces veteran diplomat George W. Ball who quit Thursday to join the campaign team of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Ball bowed out after only five months at the U.N. Wiggins is expected to serve only the four months until a new president chooses his own envoy next January.

Wiggins, 64, who rose from a job on a country weekly in Minnesota to guide The Washington Post as managing editor and editor the last two decades, is largely an unknown quantity in world affairs without previous experience in foreign diplomacy. But Johnson praised his judgment, his understanding and his human compassion.

Wiggins was described by his newspaper today as "a staunch supporter of the administration's position on the Vietnam war." He retired as editor immediately upon accepting the U.N. appointment.

The new ambassador flew to Washington from his summer home in Maine to meet with Johnson at the White House Thursday night. Wiggins said, "I had a presidential commission once before—in the United States Army Air Corps. I'm accepting this one in the same spirit."

Johnson stressed that Ball was resigning because of domestic politics, not because of any break over foreign policy.

Ball told a State Department news conference the next president must have "settled principles and clear vision." He said Humphrey is such a man and Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon is not.

Arthur Goldberg, the first man Johnson had named to the United Nations, acknowledged differences over Vietnam when he stepped down last April. Goldberg also joined the Humphrey team Thursday. He will be co-chairman of the National Citizens Committee for Humphrey-Muskie while Ball will serve as the Democratic nominee's foreign affairs adviser.

Ball, who was undersecretary of state from 1961 to 1966 in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, denied suggestions he might be moving into position to succeed Dean Rusk in the Cabinet if Humphrey wins.

"After the November election I shall return promptly to private life," he said.

Ball's move came as a surprise both here and at the United Nations, which opened its 23rd session just two days ago.

Already awaiting Wiggins on the new U.N. agenda is the annual debate over admission of Red China. And the war in Vietnam, although not a formal issue before the world body, is certain to continue to be the center of off-stage controversy.

Wiggins enters as an unknown man in world diplomacy by his own choice. "The ideal newspaperman" he said recently, "is a man who never forgets which side of the footlights he's on."

The veteran editor had been due to retire from The Washington Post on his 65th birthday in December.

Johnson called Wiggins "one of America's most respected citizens" and said the appointment would "cap his long career of public service."

Johnson called newsmen into the White House Cabinet Room to announce the change personally. He saluted Ball's service and said his resignation "has nothing to do with public policy."

Although Ball has written that the United States should never have begun bombing North Vietnam, he has defended U.S. policies and has said he sees no likely alternative to their continuation.

Wiggins also is a longtime associate of Humphrey and served on his draft board in World War II.

The appointment to the $30,000 a year post is subject to Senate confirmation.

Most Rate Senate Race A Classic

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri General election race for U. S. Senator is a classic—one in which most observers feel the state will be in good hands no matter which man wins.

On the Democratic side is Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, a comparative youngster who has served with credit as attorney general for four years and as lieutenant governor for four years.

He is 39 years old, an attorney and former St. Louis circuit attorney. He attended college at Amherst, Oxford and Harvard Law School. He is considered brilliant.

The Republican nominee is Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, 57, a veteran of 20 years in Congress. He is loved by Republicans and respected by Democrats.

Curtis decided to quit in his congressional district in order to try for the Senate seat held by Sen. Edward V. Long, a Democrat under fire for alleged fee splitting as a lawyer and for connections with convicted James M. Hoffa, president of the teamsters union.

Much the same thinking must be ascribed to Eagleton. He needed new political heights to conquer and he did not wish to thwart democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' desire to become the first Missourian to win a second consecutive term as chief executive.

That's the program. What about the prospects?

Normally, Missouri is safe for the Democratic party but it also has a growing number of independent voters.

The entrance of the American party presidential candidate, former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, may throw the Missouri pattern off. As in other states, Wallace has lined up a lot of voters behind him. The question is where they will go on the two major party tickets after voting for Wallace.

In a six-man primary, Eagleton beat Long and the third man, True Davis of St. Joseph, with votes to spare. Eagleton got 224,017, Long 198,901 and Davis 178,961.

Curtis, in a three-man GOP contest, got 192,028 with less than 35,000 going to his two opponents.

The key to the Eagleton-Curtis race is St. Louis county — the home bailiwick of both. In the primary Eagleton collected 64,379 votes in St. Louis county, now the political area concentrating the greatest number of votes in the state. But Curtis got 60,949 in the same county.

Missouri Democrats have all but conceded the state to Richard Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee, and are concerned about the Wallace infringement on the normally Democratic margin in the state.

The presidential race, plus the contest between Hearnes and his Republican challenger for governor, St. Louis county supervisor Lawrence K. Roos, should have marked effect on the senatorial race.

LOUISVILLE (AP) — The Rev. James Flynn, assistant pastor of Mother of Good Counsel Catholic Church, was teaching his flock a new hymn but the vocal response wasn't too good.

"Come on, you men," he urged. "So God gave you a lousy voice — let's let Him hear it."

Three Butler School Units To Consolidate

POPLAR BLUFF - A new school district designated as East Butler county R-10 was voted Tuesday by electors in the three existing districts. The vote was 504 to 309.

The new district, which ultimately will involve a proposition to build a centrally located high school, comprises the old districts of Fisk-Rombauer R-3, Broseley R-2, and Qulin R-5.

Bill Trout, Butler County superintendent of schools, announced today that an election will be held on Oct. 22 to name six directors for the new district. Two members will be elected from each of the old school districts, Trout said. Deadline for filing for the new board is Oct. 5, Trout added. Candidates should contact Trout's office in the Courthouse, he said.

Only the Broseley district voted in favor of the proposal giving the issue an overwhelming approval of 307-15. In that district, the Broseley polling place tallied 265-5, and Big Island was 42-10.

Fisk electors voted against the plan, 93 to 80.

And in the Qulin district, the total vote was 201 against the 117 for. The breakdown by polling places was: Qulin 57 for and 56 against, Carola 12 for and 54 against, Upper Davis 42 for the 21 against, and Fagus 6 for and 70 against.

The new district comprises about 250 square miles of area with an assessed valuation of about $6 million. About 2,000 pupils live in the area.

Humphrey Promises Continued Prosperity

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey, pressing harder than ever for televised debates with Richard M. Nixon, today promised continued prosperity if he is elected president. He accused the Republicans of "economic mismanagement."

The Democratic vice president, in a campaign speech prepared for the Portland City Club, said that "when Americans vote on prosperity I am confident they will give us a clear call for more of it."

Saying that there were three recessions during the eight years when Nixon was Dwight D. Eisenhower's vice president, Humphrey spoke of "the dismal, disheartening years of Republican economic mismanagement in the 1950s."

"Now some say the Republicans may learn from their past mistakes," he added. "There is not a shred of evidence either from the 1950s or the Republican voting record right up to date that they have learned anything."

Humphrey said Nixon's economic advisers sounded like the kind of men who would mount a "back to McKinley campaign."

In San Francisco Thursday, Humphrey dispatched a telegram to Nixon after reading published reports that the Republican presidential nominee had expressed a willingness to debate the vice president—a key aim of Humphrey's.

"I am designating my campaign manager, Larry O'Brien, to meet with your designated representative to work out the arrangements for what I hope will be a series of debates," the telegram said. "I trust we can have our representatives meet within the next 48 hours."

There was no indication, however, that early debates were likely.

Nixon has said he would debate Humphrey if Congress suspends the equal-time provision of the Federal Communications Act as it did in 1960, but would reject inclusion of third-party candidate George C. Wallace.

He said Wednesday in Denver, "This is a two-party country. Either Mr. Humphrey or I—one or the other—is going to be elected president and for us to put a third party candidate on there and have a panel instead of a debate would be an abortion. I'm not going to lend myself to it at all."

Humphrey seemed satisfied with the results of his second campaign swing into California—with visits to Los Angeles, Sacramento and San Francisco.

"I think Mr. Nixon is in trouble," he said. "I'm not. My market trend is up."

Humphrey drew two prominent Vietnam doves into his camp Thursday.

Arthur J. Goldberg, former Supreme Court justice and U.N. ambassador, signed on as cochairman of Humphrey's campaign committee. Goldberg's successor at the United Nations, George W. Ball, quit the post to become, in Humphrey's words, "my chief foreign policy adviser."

During one television appearance in San Francisco, Humphrey was asked why he did not make a clean break with President Johnson to prove that he was his "own man."

Foil Pans Are Handy For Feeding Traveling Pets

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have dark varnished woodwork in my kitchen and would like to remove it so I can put on enamel. How do I do this?—MOLLY

DEAR POLLY—I save all those foil pans that frozen pot pies come in. When we start on a trip with an animal I tuck some of them under the front seat of the car. When we stop to eat, "Rover" can have a drink or can eat. I have done this for two years and it saves dragging a bowl along and there is no mess to clean up afterwards.—MRS. J. H.

DEAR POLLY—The other day I took my transistor radio to the beauty parlor and used the ear plug to listen to music while under the dryer. I have never before had the time pass so quickly and pleasantly.—A CONSTANT READER

DEAR POLLY—When going on a trip I pour any milk on hand in my ice cube tray and freeze it. When I get home all I have to do is thaw it out and am saved a quick trip to the store.

• To keep a thermos bottle sweet and clean, fill with boiling water, add a teaspoon of baking soda and let stand for a few hours. Rinse with hot water and let it dry well before closing and storing. No brush is needed.—VIRGINIA

DEAR READERS—The laboratory of a large milk company advises that while the milk assumes a different appearance after freezing with little globules (sort of like buttermilk) it is perfectly all right to use.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—A reader requested ideas for using scraps of material in ways other than making quilts. I have a "ball" making bias binding out of mine. Lay the matching scraps on the bias, cut a strip the desired width and then cut a cardboard guide this width. Use it to cut the strips and then sew them together and roll each different pattern or color around an empty toilet tissue roll. After all the pieces are fitted and sewed together, press them and then place the two wrong sides together and stitch the full length on the very edge. When the tape is sewed to a garment you only have one side to sew down neatly to cover up the edge sewed to the garment.

(Polly's note: At first this method of application had me puzzled but I interpreted it this way: the tape would be held against the back side of the edge to be bound with the stitched side at the cut edge of the material and then both stitched together. Then the folded piece would be turned to the outside, hiding the seam, and again stitched along the pressed flat edge).

I use such bindings on clothes for my grandchildren and am now binding pot holders with my homemade tape. I have at least 30 different (and I do mean different) rolls of colorful bias tape. They also trim pillowcases beautifully.

Who said, "Grandmas are a bored generation?" Working with my hands is the greatest medicine I have and I haven't yet found a day with enough hours. Becoming a grandmother is just what the word grandchild implies. "It's grand!."—MRS. J. B.

Newsman Picked for U.N. Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has named Washington Post editor J. R. Wiggins, a strong supporter of his Vietnam policies, to fill in as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations in the waning weeks of his administration.

Wiggins replaces veteran diplomat George W. Ball who quit Thursday to join the campaign team of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Ball bowed out after only five months at the U.N. Wiggins is expected to serve only the four months until a new president chooses his own envoy next January.

Wiggins, 64, who rose from a job on a country weekly in Minnesota to guide The Washington Post as managing editor and editor the last two decades, is largely an unknown quantity in world affairs without previous experience in foreign diplomacy. But Johnson praised his judgment, his understanding and his human compassion.

Wiggins was described by his newspaper today as "a staunch supporter of the administration's position on the Vietnam war." He retired as editor immediately upon accepting the U.N. appointment.

The new ambassador flew to Washington from his summer home in Maine to meet with Johnson at the White House Thursday night. Wiggins said, "I had a presidential commission once before—in the United States Army Air Corps. I'm accepting this one in the same spirit."

Johnson stressed that Ball was resigning because of domestic politics, not because of any break over foreign policy.

Ball told a State Department news conference the next president must have "settled principles and clear vision." He said Humphrey is such a man and Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon is not.

Arthur Goldberg, the first man Johnson had named to the United Nations, acknowledged differences over Vietnam when he stepped down last April. Goldberg also joined the Humphrey team Thursday. He will be co-chairman of the National Citizens Committee for Humphrey-Muskie while Ball will serve as the Democratic nominee's foreign affairs adviser.

Ball, who was undersecretary of state from 1961 to 1966 in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, denied suggestions he might be moving into position to succeed Dean Rusk in the Cabinet if Humphrey wins.

"After the November election I shall return promptly to private life," he said.

Ball's move came as a surprise both here and at the United Nations, which opened its 23rd session just two days ago.

Already awaiting Wiggins on the new U.N. agenda is the annual debate over admission of Red China. And the war in Vietnam, although not a formal issue before the world body, is certain to continue to be the center of off-stage controversy.

Wiggins enters as an unknown man in world diplomacy by his own choice. "The ideal newspaperman" he said recently, "is a man who never forgets which side of the footlights he's on."

The veteran editor had been due to retire from The Washington Post on his 65th birthday in December.

Johnson called Wiggins "one of America's most respected citizens" and said the appointment would "cap his long career of public service."

Johnson called newsmen into the White House Cabinet Room to announce the change personally. He saluted Ball's service and said his resignation "has nothing to do with public policy."

Although Ball has written that the United States should never have begun bombing North Vietnam, he has defended U.S. policies and has said he sees no likely alternative to their continuation.

Wiggins also is a longtime associate of Humphrey and served on his draft board in World War II.

The appointment to the $30,000 a year post is subject to Senate confirmation.

Most Rate Senate Race A Classic

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri General election race for U. S. Senator is a classic—one in which most observers feel the state will be in good hands no matter which man wins.

On the Democratic side is Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, a comparative youngster who has served with credit as attorney general for four years and as lieutenant governor for four years.

He is 39 years old, an attorney and former St. Louis circuit attorney. He attended college at Amherst, Oxford and Harvard Law School. He is considered brilliant.

The Republican nominee is Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, 57, a veteran of 20 years in Congress. He is loved by Republicans and respected by Democrats.

Curtis decided to quit in his congressional district in order to try for the Senate seat held by Sen. Edward V. Long, a Democrat under fire for alleged fee splitting as a lawyer and for connections with convicted James M. Hoffa, president of the teamsters union.

Much the same thinking must be ascribed to Eagleton. He needed new political heights to conquer and he did not wish to thwart democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' desire to become the first Missourian to win a second consecutive term as chief executive.

That's the program. What about the prospects?

Normally, Missouri is safe for the Democratic party but it also has a growing number of independent voters.

The entrance of the American party presidential candidate, former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, may throw the Missouri pattern off. As in other states, Wallace has lined up a lot of voters behind him. The question is where they will go on the two major party tickets after voting for Wallace.

In a six-man primary, Eagleton beat Long and the third man, True Davis of St. Joseph, with votes to spare. Eagleton got 224,017, Long 198,901 and Davis 178,961.

Curtis, in a three-man GOP contest, got 192,028 with less than 35,000 going to his two opponents.

The key to the Eagleton-Curtis race is St. Louis county — the home bailiwick of both. In the primary Eagleton collected 64,379 votes in St. Louis county, now the political area concentrating the greatest number of votes in the state. But Curtis got 60,949 in the same county.

Missouri Democrats have all but conceded the state to Richard Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee, and are concerned about the Wallace infringement on the normally Democratic margin in the state.

The presidential race, plus the contest between Hearnes and his Republican challenger for governor, St. Louis county supervisor Lawrence K. Roos, should have marked effect on the senatorial race.

National Gallery Art Reproduced Stamp-Size

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

More than two dozen of the masterpieces of painting in the National Gallery of Art, Washington, have been reproduced so many times that the museum probably holds some sort of record for the circulation of its art works.

There are the regular reproductions suitable for framing, of course, which have been published in many thousands of copies, and there are many reproductions in art books, but the real volume of reproduction lies in the postage stamps that the United States and several foreign countries have issued from paintings (or portions of paintings) now in the National Gallery.

The most-circulated work of art from this museum at present is Hans Memling's "Madonna and Child with Angels," dating from about 1480.

It was issued as a 5-cent Christmas stamp for 1966 and again in 1967. In each year it sold more than 2 billion copies — billions, not millions.

Another Flemish masterpiece, Jan van Eyck's "Annunciation," has been chosen for the 6-cent Christmas stamp of 1968. It will show only the angel.

Thus far only one other religious theme has been issued as a stamp from the works of art at the National Gallery. In 1965 the United States made a 5-cent postage stamp from "Archangel Gabriel," a water color which Lucille Chabot painted around 1840, showing a weather vane figure of the angel, atop the Peoples' Methodist Church, Newburyport, Mass.

Portraits of Presidents and other public figures have been used often. The "Vaughan portrait" of George Washington, which Gilbert Stuart created in 1795, was used as a 1-cent stamp in 1954, and in 1965 a Washington portrait, painted by Rembrandt Peale about 1823, was used on a U.S. 5-cent stamp.

Thomas Sully's 1845 portrait of Andrew Jackson has appeared twice — as a 3-cent stamp in 1903 and a 10-cent issue of 1967.

Douglas Volk's 1908 portrait of Abraham Lincoln was on a 1958 4-cent stamp. Gilbert Stuart's 1794 portrait of Chief Justice John Jay was issued the same year as a 15-center. John Trumbull's 1806 image of Alexander Hamilton appeared in 1956 as a $5 stamp and this year a 40-center carried John Wesley Jarvis's picture of Thomas Paine, painted about 1805.

MORE than 4 billion postage stamps reproducing Hans Memling's "Madonna and Child with Angels" were sold in 1966 and 1967.

In 1933 Oswald Birley painted a portrait of Andrew Mellon, the longtime secretary of the Treasury who donated the funds for the National Gallery and gave it his prime collection of Old Masters. This portrait was used for a 30-cent stamp in 1955.

United States stamps also have included several items from the National Gallery on boating and sailing. Winslow Homer's 1876 picture "Breezing Up" appeared in 1962 on a 4-center; Mary Cassatt's "The Boating Party," painted in 1893-94, was on a 5-center in 1966, and in 1967 "The Biglin Brothers Racing," created in 1872 by Thomas Eakins, appeared on another 5-center.

A John James Audubon painting, "Columbia Jay," created in 1830, has appeared twice. In 1964 it was on a 5-center, and in 1967 on a 20-cent airmail stamp.

Several foreign nations have produced postage stamps from paintings now in the National Gallery.

One was the famous Leonardo da Vinci portrait of Ginevra de Benci, dating from around 1480, which the tiny state of Lictenstein put on a 10-rappen stamp in 1949. That was before the National Gallery acquired the picture for some $6 million.

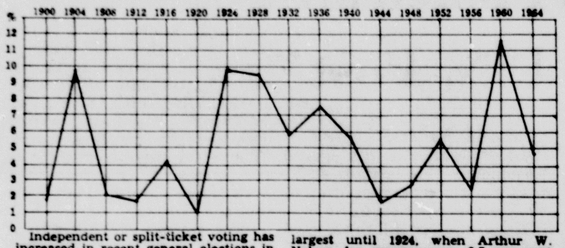

Belgium issued two in 1964, a 2-franc stamp of "Portrait of a Lady," painted around 1455 by Rogier van der Weyden, and Anthony Van Dyck's image of William II of Nassau and Orange, dating from around 1640, which appeared on a 4-franc stamp.

In 1958 Spain issued a 40-centavo stamp showing a Francisco Goya painting of about 1805, "The Bookseller's Wife."

The National Gallery now has a permanent exhibit showing visitors the stamps that have been made from its paintings, together with photographs of each painting. After examining the stamp exhibit, visitors may see the originals — or most of them — by touring the galleries. A few of them are out on loan from time to time.

Ticket-Splitting Trend Grows In Missouri, Kirkpatrick Finds

THE EBB AND FLOW OF INDEPENDENT VOTING SINCE 1900

Independent or split-ticket voting has increased in recent general elections in Missouri.

This trend is confirmed by a tabulation of 20th century Democratic totals in Missouri, compiled by Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick. The vote on Democratic candidates for three offices—president, governor and secretary of state—was tabulated for all the presidential years beginning with 1900. Variations between the vote totals provide an index on the amount of split-ticket balloting in each election.

The biggest variation was in 1960, when John M. Dalton, for governor, ran 122,999 votes in front of John F. Kennedy for president. Dalton's margin amounted to 11.2 per cent of the party vote.

The legislature in 1921 adopted the "blanket" ballot (all parties on one ballot) to replace the "strip" ballot (a different ballot for each party). This change stimulated independent voting by substituting a checkmark in place of a write-in to vote for candidates of more than one party.

The variation in ballot totals between the presidential and gubernatorial nominees since that time has averaged 6 per cent, compared to 3.3 per cent before 1921.

As between the governor and the secretary of state, the variations amounted to 2.8 per cent in the strip-ballot elections, compared to an average of 3.3 per cent on the blanket ballot.

However, there was one notable burst of splitting in the early days. In 1904, Joseph W. Folk, widely admired as an energetic "reform" prosecuting attorney in St. Louis, got 30,340 more votes for governor than the Democratic candidate for president, Alton B. Parker.

This 9.3 per cent differential was the largest until 1924, when Arthur W. Nelson for governor ran 9.7 per cent better than John W. Davis for president, although Nelson lost the governorship to Republican Sam A. Baker.

In total, 20th century Missouri elections have found Democratic nominees for governor averaging 0.6 per cent more votes than the party's nominees for president, and nominees for secretary of state averaging 0.7 per cent ahead of nominees for governor.

"This slight historical advantage to secretaries of state seems to be due to the fact they have always been eligible to succeed themselves, and frequently serve more than one term," Kirkpatrick said. "This has enabled the secretary of state to keep his name before the public longer than the governor, who until this year was unable to succeed himself.

"Ticket-splitting reaches its height in Missouri in years when emotions run high over the presidential race—years such as 1928 (Al Smith), 1932 (Franklin D. Roosevelt) and 1960 (John F. Kennedy), and also years in which bitter primary fights have preceded the fall election.

"The personalities and records of the candidates are probably most important to this kind of independent voting. There is nothing in the pattern of Democratic balloting in Missouri that in itself lends comfort or despair to any 1968 candidate. The Democratic state ticket does usually prevail, but we have had five Republican governors and two Republican secretaries of state during this century (Secretary Charles U. Becker was elected to three consecutive terms)."

The following table shows the differences that separated some of the principal nominees on the party ticket over the years:

timely tips for the HALLOWEEN HOSTESS

NEW YORK (ED) — The night is black; the wind chills your bones; eerie voices echo through the halls and ghoulish faces suddenly appear to scare the stuffings out of one and all! Don't look now, but Halloween is creeping up — and the smart hostess will prepare herself well in advance of this centuries-old holiday.

You don't need amulets, good luck charms or friendly witches to chase the bad ones away, but you do need plenty of cookies, pretzels, potato chips and candy for the motley crew that will soon be visiting your door. And if you really want to treat that wild assortment of pirates, ghosts, and goblins, plan a traditional Halloween party based on these easy-does-it ideas:

For unusual and effective decorations, try a gigantic Jack-O-Lantern with miniature Jacks for each guest. Your Florists' Transworld Delivery experts will be able to supply a bewitched arrangement of chrysanthemums and wheat to fill the pumpkins—which the children will carve according to their own particular fancy.

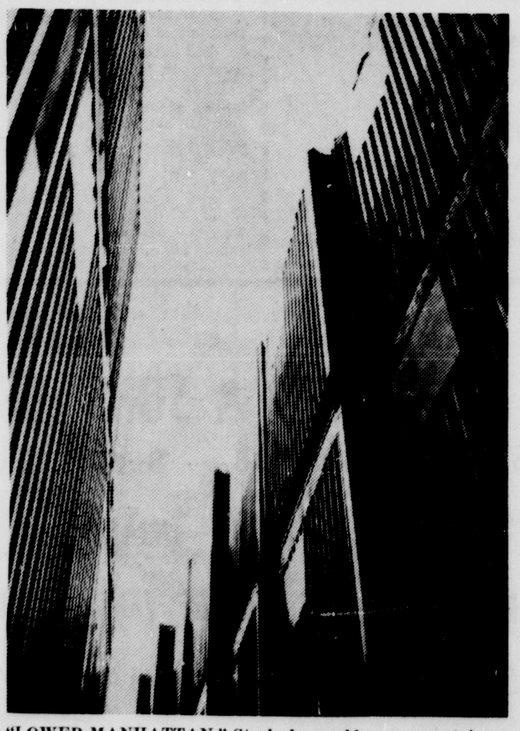

To spread the ghostly flavor of the occasion to every nook and cranny, place autumn leaves and spidermums wherever your guests might look — entwined around a broom in the corner, or hanging from a chandelier in the living room. For an adult party, a centerpiece of fruits and flowers surrounding a giant candle is especially festive. Or, if the light is dimmed by colored bulbs, your FTD florist may suggest foregoing the candle, and arrange a centerpiece in the Jack-O-Lantern base instead.

Entertainment is easy with everyone in such a good mood, and the traditional apple bobbing is a must every October 31 eve: But if you want to put a little spice into your party, FTD florists suggest trying this romantic game: Attach a slip of paper with the initial of each girl's future lover to a "football" mum corsage, then have the young ladies pick one at random and announce which letter is theirs. The fun increases when the secret hides behind a mum with a Jack-O-Lantern face.

Remember, now, avoid black cats; don't break any mirrors, don't walk under ladders — and do have a wonderful Halloween!

WHEN SCHOOL BELLS RING, mothers sing, especially if their children's wardrobes are easy to care for and inexpensive. The outfits shown have an added bonus. The boy's complete outfit costs just $11.03 and includes sturdy oxfords, stretch socks, chino slacks and a durable press shirt. Included in the girl's wardrobe, at a cost of $10.26, is a durable press cotton dress, stretch knee-hi's, penny loafers and a chain bag.

Uprising in Mexico

Ticket-Splitting Trend Grows In Missouri, Kirkpatrick Finds

THE EBB AND FLOW OF INDEPENDENT VOTING SINCE 1900

Independent or split-ticket voting has increased in recent general elections in Missouri.

This trend is confirmed by a tabulation of 20th century Democratic totals in Missouri, compiled by Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick. The vote on Democratic candidates for three offices—president, governor and secretary of state—was tabulated for all the presidential years beginning with 1900. Variations between the vote totals provide an index on the amount of split-ticket balloting in each election.

The biggest variation was in 1960, when John M. Dalton, for governor, ran 122,999 votes in front of John F. Kennedy for president. Dalton's margin amounted to 11.2 per cent of the party vote.

The legislature in 1921 adopted the "blanket" ballot (all parties on one ballot) to replace the "strip" ballot (a different ballot for each party). This change stimulated independent voting by substituting a checkmark in place of a write-in to vote for candidates of more than one party.

The variation in ballot totals between the presidential and gubernatorial nominees since that time has averaged 6 per cent, compared to 3.3 per cent before 1921.

As between the governor and the secretary of state, the variations amounted to 2.8 per cent in the strip-ballot elections, compared to an average of 3.3 per cent on the blanket ballot.

However, there was one notable burst of splitting in the early days. In 1904, Joseph W. Folk, widely admired as an energetic "reform" prosecuting attorney in St. Louis, got 30,340 more votes for governor than the Democratic candidate for president, Alton B. Parker.

This 9.3 per cent differential was the largest until 1924, when Arthur W. Nelson for governor ran 9.7 per cent better than John W. Davis for president, although Nelson lost the governorship to Republican Sam A. Baker.

In total, 20th century Missouri elections have found Democratic nominees for governor averaging 0.6 per cent more votes than the party's nominees for president, and nominees for secretary of state averaging 0.7 per cent ahead of nominees for governor.

"This slight historical advantage to secretaries of state seems to be due to the fact they have always been eligible to succeed themselves, and frequently serve more than one term," Kirkpatrick said. "This has enabled the secretary of state to keep his name before the public longer than the governor, who until this year was unable to succeed himself.

"Ticket-splitting reaches its height in Missouri in years when emotions run high over the presidential race—years such as 1928 (Al Smith), 1932 (Franklin D. Roosevelt) and 1960 (John F. Kennedy), and also years in which bitter primary fights have preceded the fall election.

"The personalities and records of the candidates are probably most important to this kind of independent voting. There is nothing in the pattern of Democratic balloting in Missouri that in itself lends comfort or despair to any 1968 candidate. The Democratic state ticket, does usually prevail, but we have had five Republican governors and two Republican secretaries of state during this century (Secretary Charles U. Becker was elected to three consecutive terms)."

The following table shows the differences that separated some of the principal nominees on the party ticket over the years:

National Gallery Art Reproduced Stamp-Size

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

More than two dozen of the masterpieces of painting in the National Gallery of Art, Washington, have been reproduced so many times that the museum probably holds some sort of record for the circulation of its art works.

There are the regular reproductions suitable for framing, of course, which have been published in many thousands of copies, and there are many reproductions in art books, but the real volume of reproduction lies in the postage stamps that the United States and several foreign countries have issued from paintings (or portions of paintings) now in the National Gallery.

The most-circulated work of art from this museum at present is Hans Memling's "Madonna and Child with Angels," dating from about 1480.

It was issued as a 5-cent Christmas stamp for 1966 and again in 1967. In each year it sold more than 2 billion copies — billions, not millions.

Another Flemish masterpiece, Jan van Eyck's "Annunciation," has been chosen for the 6-cent Christmas stamp of 1968. It will show only the angel.

Thus far only one other religious theme has been issued as a stamp from the works of art at the National Gallery. In 1965 the United States made a 5-cent postage stamp from "Archangel Gabriel," a water color which Lucille Chabot painted around 1840, showing a weather vane figure of the angel, atop the Peoples' Methodist Church, Newburyport, Mass.

Portraits of Presidents and other public figures have been used often. The "Vaughan portrait" of George Washington, which Gilbert Stuart created in 1795, was used as a 1-cent stamp in 1954, and in 1965 a Washington portrait, painted by Rembrandt Peale about 1823, was used on a U.S. 5-cent stamp.

Thomas Sully's 1845 portrait of Andrew Jackson has appeared twice — as a 3-cent stamp in 1903 and a 10-cent issue of 1967.

Douglas Volk's 1908 portrait of Abraham Lincoln was on a 1958 4-cent stamp. Gilbert Stuart's 1794 portrait of Chief Justice John Jay was issued the same year as a 15-center. John Trumbull's 1806 image of Alexander Hamilton appeared in 1956 as a $5 stamp and this year a 40-center carried John Wesley Jarvis's picture of Thomas Paine, painted about 1805.

MORE than 4 billion postage stamps reproducing Hans Memling's "Madonna and Child with Angels" were sold in 1966 and 1967.

In 1933 Oswald Birley painted a portrait of Andrew Mellon, the longtime secretary of the Treasury who donated the funds for the National Gallery and gave it his prime collection of Old Masters. This portrait was used for a 30-cent stamp in 1955.

United States stamps also have included several items from the National Gallery on boating and sailing. Winslow Homer's 1876 picture "Breezing Up" appeared in 1962 on a 4-center; Mary Cassatt's "The Boating Party," painted in 1893-94, was on a 5-center in 1966, and in 1967 "The Biglin Brothers Racing," created in 1872 by Thomas Eakins, appeared on another 5-center.

A John James Audubon painting, "Columbia Jay," created in 1830, has appeared twice. In 1964 it was on a 5-center, and in 1967 on a 20-cent airmail stamp.

Several foreign nations have produced postage stamps from paintings now in the National Gallery.

One was the famous Leonardo da Vinci portrait of Ginevra de Benci, dating from around 1480, which the tiny state of Lictenstein put on a 10-rappen stamp in 1949. That was before the National Gallery acquired the picture for some $6 million.

Belgium issued two in 1964, a 2-franc stamp of "Portrait of a Lady," painted around 1455 by Rogier van der Weyden, and Anthony Van Dyck's image of William II of Nassau and Orange, dating from around 1640, which appeared on a 4-franc stamp.

In 1958 Spain issued a 40-centavo stamp showing a Francisco Goya painting of about 1805, "The Bookseller's Wife."

The National Gallery now has a permanent exhibit showing visitors the stamps that have been made from its paintings, together with photographs of each painting. After examining the stamp exhibit, visitors may see the originals — or most of them — by touring the galleries. A few of them are out on loan from time to time.

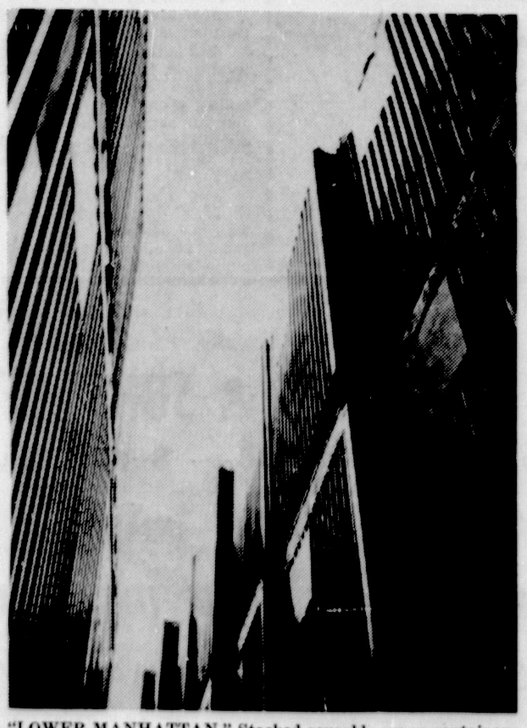

GETTING THE POINT, Turkish fakir Yogi Rayo passes a steel needle through his tongue during an open-air rehearsal in Paris for the reopening of the famous "Olympia" music hall.

PHOTOGRAPH of a photographer making closeup photographs in Los Angeles. French film director Jacques Demy (in sunglasses) instructs his cameraman how to photograph star Gary Lockwood for a filmed sequence of a man driving a car.

WHEN SCHOOL BELLS RING, mothers sing, especially if their children's wardrobes are easy to care for and inexpensive. The outfits shown have an added bonus. The boy's complete outfit costs just $11.03 and includes sturdy oxfords, stretch socks, chino slacks and a durable press shirt. Included in the girl's wardrobe, at a cost of $10.26, is a durable press cotton dress, stretch knee-hi's, penny loafers and a chain bag.

"LOWER MANHATTAN." Stacked reusable conex containers give the appearance of skyscrapers in a service area of the 2d Logistical Command in Okinawa. A constant stream of these containers, used to protect materials during transportation, leave the 2d Log Command for troops stationed in South East Asia.

Natural Gas Assigned New Price Ceilings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Power Commission imposed Wednesday a three-level system of ceiling prices for natural gas produced in southern Louisiana, the nation's largest natural gas field.

The FPC estimated its decision would mean rate reductions totaling some $49 million a year.

The Southern Louisiana area produces 31 per cent of all natural gas sold interstate. Its gas is used in 28 states and the District of Columbia, an area including more than 70 per cent of the nation's population.

It was the FPC's second decision setting prices for an entire area and comes on the heels of Supreme Court approval of its historic Permian Basin ruling.

As in the Permian Basin case, the FPC set one price for "old" gas contracted before Jan. 1, 1961—and a higher price for "new" gas, contracted after that date.

But in a new departure, it also set a still higher price on future gas, sold under contracts dated Oct. 1, 1968, or later.

These ceiling prices on old, new and future gas were fixed at 18.5 cents per thousand cubic feet, 19.5 cents and 20 cents, respectively.

Gas derived from oil wells or as residue after removal of liquids was included under the old-gas price. And gas not subject to the Louisiana production tax was priced 1.5 cents lower in each category.

The commission said its multiprice system offers "the best opportunity to provide the necessary incentives for continued exploration for future gas while avoiding excessive prices for gas already dedicated."

Missouri is one of the states receiving gas from the Louisiana fields.

Chrysler Rolls Back Price Hike

DETROIT (AP) - Chrysler Corp., first of the U. S. auto companies to report increased prices on its new 1969 cars, has rolled back the prices which had been criticized by President Johnson.

Chrysler said its new price increase would figure out to a list price increase of about $52 a car or 1.8 per cent, compared with the $84 or 2.9 per cent which it announced Sept. 16.

Ann Landers

Wife Needs Emotional Support of Husband

Dear Ann Landers: I am engaged to marry a young man I have gone with for two years. Vern's mother disliked me intensely from the moment we met. His father acts as if I don't exist I've tried very hard to win them over but I have failed miserably.

To please Vern's family I joined their church. I used to wear my hair long until his mother suggested I cut it. She insists on helping me select clothes because she says I have no taste. I stopped wearing pearlized nail polish because she said it looked cheap.

It is agony to have dinner with Vern's parents because of the long periods of silence. Last night I attempted to make some small talk and Vern's mother said, "Why don't you stop babbling? I was so hurt I almost cried.

Vern's older brother married a girl they consider "inferior" socially and intellectually. Her Life has been hell. I love Vern very much but I'm beginning to wonder if I have the strength to marry into this family. What do you think?-- PLAIN JAYNE

Dear Jayne: You don't say boo about Vern's attitude. What does he say when his parents put you down? Does he just sit there like a wart on a pickle? If so, you're going to wind up alongside your future sister-in-law. The key to your future with Vern lies in his ability to give you the emotional support you need to withstand his parents' hostility. If you can count on him, say "yes" -- otherwise, forget it.

Dear Ann Landers: A close relative spends a great deal of time in our home. He is twice my age and I hesitate to be disrespectful. However, our children are now 5, 7 and 9 and they pick up words easily.

This relative calls certain racial groups by names which I abhor -- Mop, Kike, Chink, Spic, Spade, Hunkie and so on. I have given him dirty looks but he ignores me. My husband says it isn't worth the trouble I might run into if I hit him head on. What do you say? --- MIDWESTERNER

Dear Mid: I say clobber the ignoramus. Such talk should not be tolerated. Children learn a great deal more from example than from instruction. If you want them to be good Americans, teach them to respect all people.

Dear Ann Landers: You have written a lot about alcoholism as a sickness. What about cheating fathers?Is that a sickness, too?

My father is 44, good-looking, appears to be younger than his age and I always thought he and my mother were very happy. Last year my mother confided in me that my father has been running around with another woman. Since I learned of his unfaithfulness I have been unable to be civil to him. Our home life is horrible.

Don't tell me to talk it over with anyone. I'm too ashamed. Please tell me what to do. I feel so helpless. -- ABC

Dear A: There is nothing you can do, which is why it's unfortunate your mother told you. She should have "confided in" someone else if she felt the need to unburden herself. A clergyman or a counselor would have been more judicious choices.

If You Were the Judge

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Detective Barney had the philosophy of letting criminals find him instead of vice versa. For example, he slumped over in a hotel lobby acting as if he had hoisted one too many in the hopes of catching a pickpocket that had been working the hotel. In short order, his deception produced results. A buxom blonde sat down beside him. When she proved to be light fingered as well as light headed, Barney arrested her on charges of larceny for lifting his wallet.

In court, Barney advised the judge: "She took my wallet with the ease that Cleopatra took Anthony. She was a real pro."

"A baby could have taken it," was the blonde's answer, "Because he let me take it. And, that makes me innocent because, obviously, a person can't be convicted of stealing something when its owner permits you to take it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict the light handed blonde of stealing Barney's wallet?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! He held that, as a general proposition, there can be no larceny when property is taken with the owner's consent. But, permitting a person to complete a larceny so that he can be arrested for the crime, concluded the judge, does not constitute a consent to the theft.

Dear Editor:

In many congressional districts Governor Wallace will command a high vote for President, although his party is not offering a candidate for the House. If Republicans will become very active for their candidate for Congress in such districts, they will win some House seats they had not hoped to win, along with some treasured Senate seats. A Republican victory giving them the organization of the House will, for the first time, give the chairmanship of committees to Republican statesmen who have been in Congress for a long time and have a great knowledge of government. The vast majority of voters who vote for Wallace for President will prefer constructive Republican Congressional candidates over their Democrat opponents. Whoever wins the Presidency will then have to work with the constructive House which can be elected by winning 30 additional seats.

Constructively,

Ann Landers

Wife Needs Emotional Support of Husband

Dear Ann Landers: I am engaged to marry a young man I have gone with for two years. Vern's mother disliked me intensely from the moment we met. His father acts as if I don't exist I've tried very hard to win them over but I have failed miserably.

To please Vern's family I joined their church. I used to wear my hair long until his mother suggested I cut it. She insists on helping me select clothes because she says I have no taste. I stopped wearing pearlized nail polish because she said it looked cheap.

It is agony to have dinner with Vern's parents because of the long periods of silence. Last night I attempted to make some small talk and Vern's mother said, "Why don't you stop babbling? I was so hurt I almost cried.

Vern's older brother married a girl they consider "inferior" socially and intellectually. Her Life has been hell. I love Vern very much but I'm beginning to wonder if I have the strength to marry into this family. What do you think?— PLAIN JAYNE

Dear Jayne: You don't say boo about Vern's attitude. What does he say when his parents put you down? Does he just sit there like a wart on a pickle? If so, you're going to wind up alongside your future sister-in-law. The key to your future with Vern lies in his ability to give you the emotional support you need to withstand his parents' hostility. If you can count on him, say "yes" — otherwise, forget it.

Dear Ann Landers: A close relative spends a great deal of time in our home. He is twice my age and I hesitate to be disrespectful. However, our children are now 5, 7 and 9 and they pick up words easily.

This relative calls certain racial groups by names which I abhor — Mop, Kike, Chink, Spic, Spade, Hunkie and so on. I have given him dirty looks but he ignores me. My husband says it isn't worth the trouble I might run into if I hit him head on. What do you say? — MIDWESTERNER

Dear Mid: I say clobber the ignoramus. Such talk should not be tolerated. Children learn a great deal more from example than from instruction. If you want them to be good Americans, teach them to respect all people.

Dear Ann Landers: You have written a lot about alcoholism as a sickness. What about cheating fathers?Is that a sickness, too?

My father is 44, good-looking, appears to be younger than his age and I always thought he and my mother were very happy. Last year my mother confided in me that my father has been running around with another woman. Since I learned of his unfaithfulness I have been unable to be civil to him. Our home life is horrible.

Don't tell me to talk it over with anyone. I'm too ashamed. Please tell me what to do. I feel so helpless. — ABC

Dear A: There is nothing you can do, which is why it's unfortunate your mother told you. She should have "confided in" someone else if she felt the need to unburden herself. A clergyman or a counselor would have been more judicious choices.

Give in or lose him . . . when a guy gives you this line, look out! For tips on how to handle the super sex salesman, check Ann Landers. Read her booklet, "Necking And Petting- What Are The Limits?" Dear Editor:

In many congressional districts Governor Wallace will command a high vote for President, although his party is not offering a candidate for the House. If Republicans will become very active for their candidate for Congress in such districts, they will win some House seats they had not hoped to win, along with some treasured Senate seats. A Republican victory giving them the organization of the House will, for the first time, give the chairmanship of committees to Republican statesmen who have been in Congress for a long time and have a great knowledge of government. The vast majority of voters who vote for Wallace for President will prefer constructive Republican Congressional candidates over their Democrat opponents. Whoever wins the Presidency will then have to work with the constructive House which can be elected by winning 30 additional seats.

Constructively,

If You Were the Judge

Permitting Theft Does Not Constitute Consent

By Jack Strauss,
LL.B.

Detective Barney had the philosophy of letting criminals find him instead of vice versa. For example, he slumped over in a hotel lobby acting as if he had hoisted one too many in the hopes of catching a pickpocket that had been working the hotel. In short order, his deception produced results. A buxom blonde sat down beside him. When she proved to be light fingered as well as light headed, Barney arrested her on charges of larceny for lifting his wallet.

In court, Barney advised the judge: "She took my wallet with the ease that Cleopatra took Anthony. She was a real pro."

"A baby could have taken it," was the blonde's answer, "Because he let me take it. And, that makes me innocent because, obviously, a person can't be convicted of stealing something when its owner permits you to take it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict the light handed blonde of stealing Barney's wallet?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! He held that, as a general proposition, there can be no larceny when property is taken with the owner's consent. But, permitting a person to complete a larceny so that he can be arrested for the crime, concluded the judge, does not constitute a consent to the theft.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. – Miss Catherine Ann Cook, 47, daughter of Mrs. O. T. Elder, 737 North Ranney, Sikeston, Mo., died Thursday at the University hospital.

For the nine years she taught music in Tappan junior high school, although she was a victim of Hodgkin's disease. She willed her body to the University hospital for medical research.

Services in Sikeston will be at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Nunnelee Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, Sikeston's First Methodist church pastor, in charge. Burial of the ashes will follow in the City cemetery at Sikeston.

Friends and former students will hold a memorial service Thursday in Ann Arbor.

Miss Cook was born Aug. 5, 1921, in Sikeston and was educated in the Sikeston public schools. She attended Interlochen National Music Camp in Michigan and was awarded a scholarship to Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. She graduated from Wesleyan University, Bloomington, Ill., and received her master's degree from the University of Michigan here.

During her teaching career at Tappan junior high her choir was selected in 1965 to represent the United States at the International Society for Education which met at Interlochen. She wrote the curriculum plan of music for the Ann Arbor public schools. Her compositions and choral arrangements are widely used.

In March 1964 she collaborated with the University of Michigan Choir and Symphony in the premiere presentation in the United States of "War Requiem," a contemporary work written by Benjamin Britten for the dedication of the rebuilt Conventry Cathedral. A portion of this will be heard at services Sunday.

Besides her mother, she is survived by a brother, Charles Allen Cook, Charleston, Mo.

MEDORA, Ill. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Ray Searles thrive on an interest in cowboys and Indians, although retirement keeps them near their own fireside. The energetic 80-year-old man and his 69-year-old wife, a former school teacher among the Choctaw and Cherokee Indians, stay busy with their hobbies.

His interest in pure-bred Morgan horses and their silver trappings is evident in the countless blue ribbons he has collected, and in tooled leather objects — purses, saddles, billfolds — he has made.

Mrs. Searles' hobby of collecting dolls dressed in Western attire reflects her 33 years of teaching Indians in Vian, Okla. Many of her dolls were sent by friends visiting around the world.

Body Beauties To Vie for Mr. Universe Title

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The "most beautiful body in the universe" will be selected Saturday night when 40 glistening contestants, stripped to the waist, parade before seven judges and exhibit themselves to best advantage.

Wearing only brief, skin-tight bikini bottoms, they will be judged solely on the symmetry of their bodies. Special emphasis is placed on chest and leg development.

Such artificial devices as makeup and hairspray are strictly taboo. Only baby oil is permitted.

And only after the judges see each contestant from every angle and watch them strike a number of "classic poses" will they name "Mr. Universe of 1968."

"The contestants are judged strictly on their bodies," says Walt Framer, whose job is to stage the production. "It's like a horse show when the judges measure the forelock or the length of a tail in a dogshow."

The winner will be the man with the best over-all body symmetry, not necessarily the most heavily muscled. There also will be awards for most muscled, best legs and best chest.

Color Glory Spreads In Missouri Hills

COLUMBIA - Ever since early September there have been dabs of color dotting the countryside. Now these scattered spots of color on the hills are spreading, fusing, and increasing in intensity, so that in a short time we will be surrounded by what is perhaps the greatest natural spectacle of the year. The motorist driving along our great rivers, winding through Ozarks, or visiting our lakes or state parks sees everywhere evidence of a colorful fall rapidly approaching.

Ray Rothenberger, Extension horticulturist at the University of Missouri-Columbia, says, in the poplars, the first traces of yellow are beginning to bleed through the green. The hickories also have begun to clothe themselves in gold and brown. Even the oaks and maples are beginning to blush a faint scarlet, and the sumac and sourwoods have already discarded their green for a rich red-purple hue.

Your own area of the state and land elevation will influence the time when the peak of fall color will reach you but if you live in Missouri there is no doubt that it will find you, even though you may have only one tree. The trees seem to be making one supreme effort to excel all beauty before they shed their leaves and bed down for another winter.

This has been the fall scene ever since man has been on earth. Still we have not the words to describe the magnificent beauty of trees, nor the technical knowledge to duplicate their processes.

As an invisible brush sweeps across the landscape, we can tell what happens, we can predict when it will happen, but few of us realize that not all parts of the world enjoy the beautiful fall color that most of us in Missouri take for granted. In the northern hemisphere, the colored leaves are seen only in eastern North America, England, Western Europe, China, and parts of Japan. Only three small areas in the southern hemisphere show the flaming autumn leaves.

Many people have asked what causes these colors. They are the result of certain naturally occurring pigments. As the days become shorter and nights cooler in the autumn, the replacement of the green chlorophyll in the leaves slows up, and pigments called carotenoids show up in some plants such as the hickories, and cause brilliant yellow-to-brown colors. As the leaves become older, tannins accumulate in leaves of some species such as beech, giving bronze tomes. In still other species, such as the doogwood and sweet gum, the anthocyanin pigments develop, causing colors ranging from red to maroon and purple.

These red-purple colors are particularly prevalent under conditions which cause accumulation of sugars in the leaves. Intermediate colors, such as orange, may occur when the leaves contain a mixture of two or more of t e pigments.

Have you ever wondered why we have more brilliant colors some years than others? Some people think that the frost causes the colors to form. Actually, heavy early frosts prvent good color development by causing the leaves to fall early in the season. Colors appear due to the reduction of green pigment associated with shorter days and cool nights, and the formation of red pigments associated with reduced translocation in the tree and the conversion of carbohydrates to sugars, both of which are favored by cold weather.

The best color development seems to take place when a dry summer is followed by crisp, cool (not cold) nights. Clear, sunlit days show colors off to their best advantage, especially in the early morning or late afternoon when the sunlight passes through the leaves and seems to almostmake them glow.

Why do leaves finally fall off? An abscission layer, a double corky layer, a double corky layer, forms at the base of the leaf petiole where it joins the twig. This cuts off the movement of water and nutrients into and out of the leaf, causing it to drop off at the abscission layer, leaving a sealed scar, ready for the long winter.

'69 Chevy Nova Coupe
GM
MARK OF EXCELLENCE

1969 Nova with Torque-Drive. You won't clutch at its price.
Other economy cars may act more modest than Nova but then, they have more to be modest about.
We've done the type of things to the '69 Chevy Nova that you'd expect only from more expensive cars.
Like freshening up its already sporty appearance:
Front.
Side.
And rear.
Like making the instrument panel design smarter, richer.
Like putting on new finned front brake drums.
But we don't rest Nova's case on looks and ride alone.
There's the rest it can give your left foot with exclusive Torque-Drive transmission. Torque-Drive action eliminates the clutch pedal and almost all shifting.
You just flick the lever from 1st to Hi, and that's it. No clutching ever.
What does this boon to stop-and-go driving cost? The price is low enough for you to be able to put your left foot in permanent retirement. And you can order it for any 4- or 6-cylinder model.
If you were comparing Chevy Nova with other economy cars, now you know.
There's no comparison.
Your Chevrolet dealer awaits.
